

HARDMAN TO APPEAR BEFORE JOINT MEETING TO CLEAR UP 'MURDIED' FINANCIAL WATERS'

Pershing Finds American Army Virtually Unarmed

Aviation Forces' Situation Shames New Commander

"Self-Satisfied Provincialism and Smug Complacency Prevented Most Elementary Efforts" Toward Meeting Emergency—British and French, Both Seeking Our Troops, Not Working in Harmony.

BY GENERAL JOHN J. PERSHING.

CHAPTER III.

(Copyright, 1931, in All Countries by the North American Newspaper Alliance. World Rights Reserved, Including Scandinavian. Reproduction in Whole or in Part Prohibited.)

Our deplorable situation as to munitions was fully discussed at a conference called by Secretary of War Baker, May 10. A general survey of our requirements for the immediate future was made as to rifles, machine guns, light and heavy artillery, ammunition and airplanes.

It was brought out that we had for issue, not in the hands of troops, fewer than 285,000 Springfield rifles, caliber 30; only a few more than 400 light field guns, three-inch, and 150 heavy field guns.

As it was impossible because of manufacturing difficulties, for our factories to turn out enough Springfield rifles within a reasonable time, the secretary decided to adopt the Enfield rifle for our infantry. It was then being manufactured for the British in large quantities at private factories in our country, and a slight modification of the chamber only was necessary to make it fit our ammunition. The total production of this rifle exceeded 2,000,000 during the war.

As to machine guns, it was reported to the conference that we had a few types, 1,500, and these were of four types. Congress in 1916 had appropriated $12,000,000 for machine guns, but the war department had not decided definitely to adopt any particular one for our army, although an order had been placed late in 1916 for a quantity of the heavy Vickers-Maxims.

Of artillery ammunition, except for the 3-inch, we did not have enough to provide more than nine hours' supply even for the limited number of guns on hand, firing at the rate ordinarily used in laying down a barrage for an infantry attack.

The situation at that time as to aviation was such that every American ought to feel deeply chagrined to hear it mentioned. Of sixty-five officers and about 1,000 men in the air service section of the signal corps, there were 35 officers who could fly.

With the exception of five or six officers, none of them could have met the requirements of modern battle conditions and none had any technical experience with aircraft guns, bombs or bombing devices.

We had some fifty-five training planes in various conditions of usefulness, all entirely without war equipment. Of these planes, it is amusing now to recall that the national advisory committee for aeronautics, which had been conducting an alleged scientific study of the problem of flight, advised that fifty-one were obsolete and four others obsolescent.

We could not have put a single squadron in the field, although it was estimated that we should eventually need at least 300 squadrons, each to be composed on the average of some 24 officers, 180 men and 18 planes, besides a large reserve of planes for replacements.

The expectations of the allies as to aviation are shown by the following cable, May 24, from the French:

Continued in Column 1, Page 12.

Sibley Confirmed

Samuel Hale Sibley, who Tuesday was elevated from the federal district bench of the north Georgia district to the United States circuit court of appeals for the fifth district when the senate confirmed his nomination without a roll call.

SENATE CONFIRMS SIBLEY SELECTION

Atlanta Jurist Wins Final Approval for Appeals Bench.

Without the formality of a record vote the United States senate Tuesday confirmed the nomination of Judge Samuel H. Sibley as a member of the United States circuit court of appeals for the fifth circuit.

The nomination of Judge Joseph C. Hutcheson, of Texas, appointed to the second vacancy on the fifth circuit court, also was effected.

Now that Judge Sibley has been confirmed, a vacancy officially exists on the bench of the United States district court for the northern district of Georgia, the post he leaves in going up to the appellate court and for which a spirited contest already has developed.

There were no indications, however, that the senate's action will cause the department of justice to rush a decision in the appointment of a successor to Judge Sibley. While the matter has engaged the attention of department officials for some days, expectations are that it will be next week at least before a nomination is sent to the senate.

Meantime arrangements have been made for the delegation of lawyers and others headed by Reuben Arnold, of Atlanta, which left Tuesday, to be received at the department of justice today for a conference on the judgeship situation. Before the week is over it may be that other individuals

Continued in Page 12, Column 8.

Auto Accidents Here Tuesday

12:05 A. M.—Lee and Gordon streets. Eddie Carmichael, negro, slightly injured when car struck and driven by R. C. Hayman, Negro charged with reckless driving.

8 A. M.—Peachtree and Auburn. W. J. Sailer, of McDonough boulevard, charged with reckless driving after accident in which he struck a post in dodging a truck.

12:30 P. M.—Central avenue and Glenn street. Car driven by C. H. Foster, 280 Pryor street, S. W., and E. D. Pines, of the city waterworks department, collided. No injuries.

2:45 P. M.—Oak and Ashby streets. Car driven by Mrs. Cliff Clements, 890 Rose circle, struck a truck driven by Frank Johnson, 430 West North street, S. W., released brakes on her car, backing into street car operated by W. E. Beauford, 331 Whiteford avenue. Slight damage to auto. No case.

5:30 P. M.—Ivy and Edgewood. Car driven by Eli Baran, negro, and H. B. Weber, 448 Flat Shoals avenue, collided. Slight damage. Cases of reckless driving made against both drivers.

STRONG FINANCIAL CONDITION SHOWN BY ATLANTA BANKS

Institutions in Soundest Liquid Cash Position in Many Years, Annual Reports Reveal.

Atlanta banks and those in this vicinity affiliated with them are in the soundest liquid cash position in many years, according to the statement of executives delivered before the annual stockholders' meetings of the three largest financial institutions in this city.

That a return to normalcy in economic conditions generally is not far distant was another feature of the annual report of presidents of the First National and Fulton National banks Tuesday; while the report of the Citizens and Southern National bank, which probably will be released today, is confidently expected to coincide with the views of other banking officials. The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Citizens and Southern was held in Savannah, and while no official statement was forthcoming Tuesday, it was understood that the annual report will show that institution has experienced a most satisfactory year.

Reports of the three banks showed that during 1930 dividends totaled almost $2,000,000. The Fulton National paid dividends of 7 per cent, amounting to $700,000; the First National distributed a total of 20 per cent, approximately $1,080,000, and the Citizens and Southern a 16 per cent dividend, amounting to $880,000.

Three Men Promoted. All officers and directors of both the First National and the Fulton National were re-elected Tuesday. The Citizens and Southern, however, promoted three new officers.

The First National and the Fulton National promoted three new officers. The First National promoted three new officers. The Fulton National promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers. The Citizens and Southern promoted three new officers.

Hughes Sworn In To Succeed George M. Dame

Senator A. L. Hughes, of the fifth district, successor to the late George M. Dame, is shown above as he was sworn in by Judge Alexander H. Stephens, of the court of appeals. Senator Hughes is at the left, and Judge Stephens at the right. President W. Cecil Neill of the senate is in the background. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

OCCUPATIONAL TAX IN BOROUGH URGED

Levy on Intangibles Also Suggested in Atlanta's Financial Crisis.

Tax on intangibles and hidden assets and an occupational levy Tuesday furnished the latest hope for permanent relief of the borough from future financial worries as Mayor James L. Key, department heads and members of the finance committee of council continued in their attempt to raise more than $1,000,000 to keep expenditures for this year within the anticipated receipts.

Alderman Ben T. Huie, of the third ward, will champion the new measure before the finance committee when it meets at 10 o'clock Thursday morning and makes another heroic effort to balance the finance sheet.

He declared that he would insist that the law be so amended as to require banks, bond houses and others selling securities to file lists of their sales with the borough, and that the estimates at $400,000,000, be the same rate as that now charged against real estate, but that they be accepted at 25 per cent of their face value instead of the 70 per cent now levied against real property.

The occupational tax would be levied against male employees of firms and others in Atlanta and would be $3 for each person, the same as is now charged against Atlanta citizens for street taxes.

Another drive which Mr. Huie plans to initiate is an effort to get all citizens living in Atlanta on the tax rolls.

"If these three things are done, Atlanta's fiscal troubles will be over," he declared Tuesday afternoon, following a conference of department heads.

Continued in Page 8, Column 6.

Mexican Capital Sees First Snow of Years

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13.—(AP)—For the first time in many years the mountains surrounding Mexico City were covered with snow. A raw wind swept the city, forcing temperatures to unusually low marks.

Mount Ajusco had snow several feet deep at its peak, and patches of snow extended several thousand feet down its sides.

There was a light snow in Mexico City early today, but it quickly disappeared.

SMITH ASSAILS LUCAS CIRCULAR

Presidential Aspirant Also Asks Apology From G. O. P. Committee.

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Echoes of the 1928 presidential campaign were heard at the capital today in a demand from Alfred E. Smith, the democratic standard-bearer for an "apology and reparation" from the republican national committee.

In a letter to Senator Wagner, of New York, a democratic member of the senate campaign funds committee, Smith characterized as "false" statements attached to a barroom cartoon circulated in Nebraska last fall against Senator Norris, republican independent, by Robert H. Lucas, executive director of the republican national organization.

The statement, which Smith said was due to a "hoax" on the Joel Parker Association of Newark, N. J., and denied by him August 21, 1930, quoted him as saying the democratic party would soon be in control and "will make this a happy as well as a prosperous nation."

Smith referred to testimony before the campaign funds committee that Lucas had 800,000 copies of the cartoon distributed in several states, including Nebraska, and said:

"I think an apology and reparation is due me from the republican national committee which permitted its director to do this and that I am entitled to have 800,000 copies of a

Continued in Page 8, Column 6.

Want Ads Fill Household Needs

Buyers and sellers of household needs will find Constitution want ads the greatest, most economical of markets. Here every day dozens of miscellaneous items change hands. Prices are always fair... always represent a bargain to those who purchase... and the cost of reaching these CASH customers is very small for the results obtained. Call WAlnut 6565 Today!

Read and Use
THE CONSTITUTION'S
Want Ad Pages

"First In The Day—First To Pay"

EXTRA SESSION THREAT WANES

Confirmation of Tariff Commission Disperses Some of Danger.

BY HERBERT LITTLE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(UP)—The Hoover administration swept away two principal extra-session threats today by completing confirmation of the president's tariff commission and voting down the $15,000,000 drought fund loan provision.

The administration won decisively on a vote in each house. The senate confirmed the nomination of Edgar B. Brossard, Utah, storm-center of sugar tariff battles for years, as a member of the tariff commission, and the house voted against the senate's food relief appropriation bill.

Thereafter a new relief fight was foretold by the action of senate conferees in refusing to agree to the house drought bill action. The disagreement will be brought up in the senate tomorrow, along with the fight over the $30,000,000 battleship modernization program.

In the senate vote, as in the sugar tariff battles of a year ago, the coalition of western independents and democrats crumbled through the defection of a half dozen or more members from sugar-growing states. Brossard has been identified in this and many previous debates as a leading proponent of higher sugar tariff rates for the protection of western and southern beet growers.

After Brossard was confirmed by a vote of 45 to 36, the nomination of Vincent Dixon, Indiana democrat, was approved without a record vote, thereby completing the approval of the six members named by President Hoover, all of whom have been serving for several months under recess appointments.

The house vote broke a deadlock which has persisted for more than a week over drought relief, and republican leaders were confident that the senate would vote to approve the drought fund tomorrow in order to get the $45,000,000 for seed and stock feed loans immediately to the president for signature.

The action of the Red Cross in opening a campaign for $10,000,000 in public contributions for drought relief was believed by some to have insured the victory, and the Red Cross in making its funds available for feeding stock in some sections depended on the importance of early action on this measure. But Senator T. H. Cavanaugh, democrat, Arkansas, has pending an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill which would require $10,000,000 for food loans, which the administration has refused to approve.

Continued in Page 8, Column 6.

Capitol Box Office Robbed of $273.25

Two young and unmasked vandals held up and robbed the Ellis street box office of the Capitol building at 8:25 o'clock Tuesday night, escaping with $273.25, the day's receipts for the office, according to John Thomas, manager.

Miss Evelyn Lambert, cashier in charge, reported that one of the two men held a pistol on her while the other forced her to open the door, permitting him to enter and scoop up the money from a cash box.

The Ellis street office is patronized by negroes who use the theater balcony. The theater manager reported that the vandals chosen the Peachtree box office they would have obtained about $1,200.

SURPRISING TURN FEATURE OF BUSY LEGISLATIVE DAY

Date of Governor's Appearance Before Ways and Means and Finance Bodies To Be Set Today.

MANY IMPORTANT BILLS INTRODUCED

Effort Made To Restore Lash to Georgia Convict Camps; Co-operative Marketing Attacked.

BY R. E. POWELL.

Georgia's problem of paying her state debt took a sharply surprising and potentially dramatic turn Tuesday, when Governor Hardman decided to go as soon as possible before a joint meeting of the house ways and means and senate finance committees in an effort to clear up what legislators describe as "the muddled financial waters which have overflowed his administration."

The chief executive's decision came as the high spot of a legislative day which brought the introduction of bills to restore the lash to Georgia convict camps, saw the beginning of a legislative effort to kill co-operative marketing associations and the defeat, by a committee vote of 30 to 3, of Representative Walker's bill to divert $8,000,000 of highway funds to the settlement of the state's obligations.

Public Utility Tax Deferred. Action on Representative Harry Kennedy's bill to levy a consumption tax on public utilities, regarded as one of the more important measures before the special session, was deferred when, after hearing proponents and opponents, the house ways and means committee, voting 26 to 11, refused to vote on the bill pending further consideration. Earlier in the day the house, sitting as a committee of the whole, had deferred final action on the Culpepper bill to clarify the pension law.

Upper House of the Finance Committee. Although Senator Lanford, chairman of the finance committee, had deferred final action on the Culpepper bill, the house ways and means committee, both were without formal action on the bill. Hardman's decision to appear before the respective committees in a joint session, other members said the executive had asked for the hearing and that a date for his appearance would be fixed probably today.

Reports that the governor would stress before the special session of the two revenue committees the importance of borrowing money from the highway funds, included in the plans he suggested to the legislature, and make a vigorous protest against hypothecating railroad rentals or levying additional taxes, were somewhat minimized by the overwhelming committee vote on the Walker bill and by the reference, also by a big majority, of Representative Dyke's bill to borrow $8,000,000 to the highway committee as asked by the author.

With sentiment for "doing some

Continued in Page 12, Column 3.

The Weather PARTLY CLOUDY.

WASHINGTON.—Forecast: Georgia—Partly cloudy and colder today. Considerably cooler with temperature below freezing to the coast tonight. Thursday fair and continued cold.

Weather forecast for all cotton states may be found on market pages.

Local Weather Report.

Highest temperature 43
Lowest temperature 20
Mean temperature 32
Normal temperature 50
Rainfall in past 12 hours, inches .00
Excess since 1st of month, inches .26
Excess since January 1, inches .26
Total rainfall since Jan. 1, in .234

T. a. m. Noon 7 p. m.
Dry temperature 32 38 41
Wet bulb 50 52 55
Relative humidity 78 49 42

Reports of Weather Bureau Stations

STATIONS AND DATE OF WEATHER

ATLANTA, clear 41 48 50
Augusta, clear 40 45 48
Birmingham, pt. cldy 40 45 48
Boston, clear 39 45 48
Buffalo, clear 38 45 48
Charleston, cloudy 46 50 50
Chicago, cloudy 26 38 40
Denver, pt. cldy 24 28 30
Des Moines, pt. cldy 32 38 40
Detroit, clear 32 38 40
Hartford, cloudy 44 46 48
Havana, clear 46 48 50
Knox, pt. cldy 46 48 50
Jacksonville, clear 46 48 50
Kansas City, clear 34 38 40
Louisville, clear 44 46 48
Miami, rain 74 74 74
Memphis, clear 44 46 48
Montgomery, clear 44 46 48
New Orleans, clear 44 46 48
New York, clear 32 38 40
North Platte, clear 10 18 20
Oklahoma City, clear 34 38 40
Phoenix, cloudy 62 64 66
Pittsburgh, cloudy 38 46 48
Portland, clear 38 46 48
San Francisco, rain 50 52 54
St. Louis, snow 32 38 40
Salt Lake City, pt. cldy 30 34 36
Savannah, cloudy 52 54 56
Tampa, cloudy 42 48 50
Toledo, cloudy 28 34 36
Vicksburg, cloudy 42 48 50
Washington, clear 34 44 46

C. F. von HERMANN,
Meteorologist, Weather Bureau.

ATTENTION, ALL WAR VETERANS

Did You Meet General Pershing Personally During the World War?

For the most interesting 200-word accounts concerning any kind of personal contact with the Commander-in-Chief of the American Expeditionary Forces, written by ex-service men

The Constitution is offering the Following Prizes:

1st$15.00 3rd$7.50
2nd$10.00 4th$5.00

For the next five selected, $2.50 each.

World War veterans are reading with keen interest General Pershing's "MY EXPERIENCES IN THE WORLD WAR," now running in this paper. These personal anecdotes, to be used concurrently with the serial, will enlighten the interest of all men who served under "Black Jack," beloved commander, no less picturesque than he was efficient.

So get busy. Write yours today. Remember, only 200 words and only one side of the paper, please. State your rank and the organization in which you served.

No account mailed after midnight of Saturday, January 17, can be considered.

We reserve the right to publish any of the letters submitted. Address to

Pershing Contest Editor
The Atlanta Constitution

EMBEZZLEMENT LAID TO NORTH CAROLINIAN

HENDERSONVILLE, N. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Henderson county grand jury today returned a true bill charging W. Gaither Rhodes, former teller in the suspended First Bank and Trust Company, with the embezzlement of approximately $40,000 in cash and securities.

SAWYER'S Country Sausage

2 STORES
909 Peachtree St. at 10th St.
38 Roswell Road at Buckhead

Suitcase of Money Halts Honeymoon

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—(AP)—John Metyk and Josephine Maluchik ran away to get married—but they came back today, Josephine meek and John's arms tired from carrying a suitcase loaded with 620 nickels, 1,140 dimes, 110 quarters, 71 half-dollars and 1,000 pennies.

"I stole it from grandmother," John said, "and we didn't feel right."

SWANN AGAIN NAMED COLLECTOR AT MOBILE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—President Hoover today reappointed Joseph C. Swann, of Wetmore, Ala., to be collector of customs at Mobile, Alabama.

KILLER OF HUSBAND, SON DIES ON GALLOWS

Hungary Hangs First Woman in Many Generations.

SZOLNOK, Hungary, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Marie Kardos, the first woman to be hanged in Hungary in many years, went to the gallows early today for the murder of her husband and her 22-year-old son last year.

The woman was on the verge of collapse when she was led from her cell to the scaffold. They gave her brandy to drink and she sipped some coffee after a brief session with a clergyman and some friends.

Frau Kardos was one of 40 women who were tried together after their husbands and other relatives had died mysteriously of poison. Most of the crimes were traced to an old woman called "Aunt Susie," who, it was established, incited most of the murders and in most of the cases administered the poison for a fee. She was said to have made a small fortune this way, but after she had been convicted of murder she took her own life in prison.

Help the Unemployed

The Atlanta Better Business Commission invites your co-operation towards increasing employment in our city. Take an inventory of the needs of your home and premises. Fill out the appended coupon, adding anything other than comes to your mind.

Sign your name.
GARDEN WORK, BASEMENT OR ATTIC CLEANING, HOUSE CLEANING, YARD CARPENTRY, HOUSE CARPENTRY, PAINTING, PAPERING, CALCIMINING, WHITEWASHING, MASONRY.

House No.
Telephone No.
Mail to EMERGENCY EMPLOYMENT HEADQUARTERS
85 Poplar Street.

Hoop Skirt Due For an Encore In Style Parade

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The hoop skirt—with modifications—is due for a comeback.

This was disclosed tonight by Amos Parrish, fashion expert, in discussing spring styles at his semi-annual fashion "clinic."

And not only the hoop-skirt idea, originated and worn by the Empress Eugenie, but several fashion ideas inspired by Queen Victoria are due to grace the 1931 miss. Among these will be modern versions of the Victorian fitted jacket to be worn with evening jackets with evening costumes.

Other inspirations for spring have been derived from the ancient Greek goddesses, whose costumes Mr. Parrish explained, consisted of a piece of cloth draped around them in a very artistic yet very simple way.

"Long, straight flowing lines," he said, "peplums or short tunics on skirts, draped necklines, cowls and scarfs, draped girdles and sash ties are some of the important fashion details that are Greek in their inspiration."

The question of dress length, he said, is no longer a question. "For general street and daytime wear," he said, skirts worn by a majority of women this spring will be middle calf length; for the more formal afternoon wear the lower calf length will be most popular, and for evening wear ankle length."

POSTMASTER NAMED FOR JACKSONVILLE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—President Hoover today nominated Herbert E. Ross to be postmaster in Jacksonville, Fla.

LEGGE IS DEFENDED, CRITICIZED BY FARMERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Alexander Legge, outspoken chairman of the farm board, tonight was the center of another dispute.

But he remained silent while the controversy spread from the capital out to Nebraska.

It started here today when Cal A. Ward, of Kansas, announced a special committee of the National Farmers' Union had exonerated Legge of charges that he told the senate agriculture committee the farm board had acted to depress the price of wheat and cotton.

As soon as John A. Simpson, president of the National Farmers' Union, heard about the statement, he asserted in Falls City, Neb., the committee headed by Ward had not acted for the national organization.

Simpson, who brought the charges against Legge, said he had not changed his opinion.

Ward, who said his committee had investigated Simpson's charges, expressed confidence in the methods employed by the farm board.

COLORADO WARDEN ASKS GAS EXECUTIONS

DENVER, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Substitution of a lethal gas chamber for the gallows at the state penitentiary will be asked in the event the Colorado legislature does not abolish capital punishment, Warden F. E. Crawford said today.

The warden is personally opposed to capital punishment. He said, however, if the legislature does not abolish the death sentence in Colorado the state should seek a more humane system of execution than hanging or electrocution.

CONTINUING OURPERSONAL

Wise buyers, who plan ahead and make a business of getting their money's worth, trade at A&P Stores as a matter of course.

The thrifty shopper is by nature an A&P customer.

AT A&P MEAT MARKETS

Fresh Shoulder

PORK STEAK LB. 19^c

Fancy Beef

CHUCK STEAK LB. 23^c

WIENERS POUND 19^c

SAUSAGE LB. 25^c

Smoked Country Style

LUNCHEON HAM 1/4-LB. 20^c

HAM Patties LB. 33^c

VEGETABLES AND FRUIT

SPINACH LB. 7^c

Fresh Tender

GRAPE-FRUIT 3 for 10^c

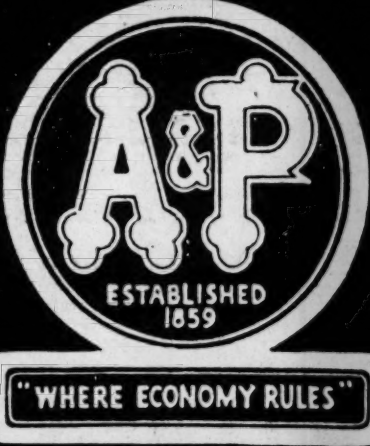

ORANGES DOZ. 17^c

CEREALS

Heinz Rice Flakes — Kellogg's Bran — Kellogg's Rice Krispies — Kellogg's Krumbles — Kellogg's Bran Biscuit — Kellogg's Pep — Quaker Crackles — Muffetts Post's Bran — Comet Rice Flakes — Ralston's Wheat Flakes — Skinner's Raisin Bran — Shredded Wheat.

YOUR CHOICE

2 PKGS. 25^c

OCTAGON WASHING POWDERS 6 Pkgs. 25^c

- 1 Large Package Gold Dust
- 1 Lb. Section Fresh Honey
- 1 Pint Rajah Salad Dressing
- 1 12-oz. Jug Vermont Maid Syrup
- 1 No. 1 1-2 Can Libby's Lunch Tongue
- 1 No. 2 Can Libby's Tripe
- 1 1-2 Pint of Pure Encore Olive Oil
- 1 24-oz. Jar Sohomey Vegetable Relish
- 1 No. 1 Can Libby's Corned Beef
- 1 26-oz. Jar Alabam' Girl Pickles
- 1 8-oz. Jar Pappy's Guava Jelly

- 1 No. 1 Can Del Monte Royal Anne Cherries
- 1 6-oz. Can Royal Baking Powder
- 1 28-oz. Jar Sultana Apple Butter
- 1 16-oz. Jar Anne Page Preserves
- 1 4-oz. Can Instant Postum
- 1 No. 2 Can Del Monte Crushed Pineapple
- 1 No. 2 Can Del Monte Sliced Pineapple
- 1 Lb. Libby's Sweet Mixed Pickles
- 1 4-oz. Can Hotel Mushrooms
- 1 Quart Heinz White or Cider Vinegar

YOUR CHOICE EACH 25^c

- 2 Lbs. Pure Hog Lard, Bulk or Carton
- 2 No. 2 Cans Stokely's Sauerkraut
- 2 Glass Jars Encore Cooked Spaghetti
- 2 No. 1 Cans Libby's Tripe
- 2 Pkgs. Baker's Coconut
- 2 Cans Gorton's Deep Sea Roe
- 2 Cans A&P Ground Black Pepper
- 2 No. 1 Cans Del Monte Spinach
- 2 No. 1 1-2 Cans Alaga Syrup
- 2 Cans Golden Star Syrup
- 2 Pint Cans Libby's Tomato Juice
- 2 No. 2 Cans Mixed Vegetables
- 2 No. 2 Cans Strained Vegetables
- 2 No. 2 Cans Iona Corn
- 2 Cans Jolly Time Popcorn
- 2 Pint Bottles Red Rock Ginger Ale
- 2 Bottles Yukon Club Pale Ginger Ale
- 2 No. 2 Cans Turnip Greens

- 2 Cans Libby's Corned Beef Hash
- 2 Mackerel Fillets
- 2 No. 2 Cans Cut Okra
- 2 No. 2 Cans Iona Peas
- 2 Lbs. 30 to 40 Size Prunes
- 2 No. 2 Cans A&P Apple Sauce
- 2 No. 2 Cans Bean Hole Beans
- 2 Cans of Oysters
- 2 Pkgs. Ivory Snow
- 2 Large Pkgs. Selox
- 2 7-oz. Jars A&P Grape Jelly
- 2 5-oz. Jars Guasti Mint Jelly
- 2 1-Pound Cartons Iona Cocoa
- 2 5-oz. Cans Libby's Cooked Brains
- 2 No. 2 Cans Sultana Red Kidney Beans
- 2 Pkgs. A&P Barley
- 2 No. 1 1-2 Cans Aunt Dinah Molasses
- 2 Lbs. Pacific Peanut Butter
- 2 8-oz. Cans Pimento Peppers
- 2 No. 2 1-2 Cans A&P Pumpkin
- 2 Lbs. Evaporated Apples

YOUR CHOICE

2 for 25^c

- 3 Cans Vienna Sausage
- 3 Cans Encore Spaghetti
- 3 Pkgs. Skinner's Macaroni or Spaghetti
- 3 No. 2 Cans Iona Tomatoes
- 3 Pkgs. Royal Fruit Gelatine
- 3 Bottles Nu-Icy Ginger Ale
- 3 Packages of Jell-o—Assorted
- 3 6-oz. Jars Gibbs Bullhead Jelly

- 3 12-oz. Pkgs. Comet White Rice
- 3 Pounds Navy Beans
- 3 Packages Brill-o
- 3 Tall Cans White House Evaporated Milk
- 3 Cakes Camay Soap
- 3 Cakes Lux Toilet Soap
- 3 Cakes Octagon Toilet Soap
- 3 Cakes Palmolive Soap
- 3 Bundles Kindling Wood

YOUR CHOICE

3 for 25^c

MATTHEWS 83 BROAD STREET, S. W.
25 Lbs. Domino Sugar CLOTH BAGS $1.22
24 Pounds IDAHO FLOUR . . 95c
Six Cakes Perfection Soap . . 25c
Six Large 5c Boxes MATCHES . . 16c
100 Pounds Best Chicken Feed $2.58
100 Pounds Best Laying Mash . $2.88

RAISIN BREAD

TODAY

A large 18-ounce Golden Loaf—chock full of Sun-Maid Raisins! Splendid toasted!

18-OZ. LOAF 10^c

Pullman Loaf loaf . . 9c
Whole Wheat loaf . . 10c
Poncy Bread loaf . . 7c
Parker House Rolls . . . pkg. . . 8c

ROGERS
QUALITY FOOD SHOPS

The more you eat the more you want because ~ they're BETTER for you!

HUBIG'S famous honeyfruit PIES

MADE WITH LOVING CARE

FRESH DAILY AT YOUR GROCER'S

NATIONAL BELLAS HESS Co.

37-39 Whitehall Street

Oh! What Values

For Today's Selling

BROWN SHEETING 1,000 Yards Only

A fine, soft muslin, good for many uses. Washes and wears. . . . YARD (BASEMENT)

5^c

OUTING FLANNEL

Regular 15c Quality
Soft and fleecy, and in all colors and white. Will sell right out at. . . YARD (BASEMENT)

10^c

PAJAMA CHECKS

Usually 15c Yard
Not the thin flimsy kind, but the real good grade. YARD (BASEMENT)

10^c

TURKISH TOWELS

Good, Large Size
Sturdy, soft and absorbing, with colored borders. EACH (BASEMENT)

10^c

NEW SPRING PRINTS

Any Other Time, 25c
New patterns to choose from. Small and large designs. Oh! Yes! Guaranteed fast colors. YARD (BASEMENT)

19^c

36-INCH CRETONNES

15c a Yard Usually
Think of buying these full width goods at this price. Patterns? Lovely! YARD (BASEMENT)

10^c

RAYON UNDERWEAR

Heretofore at Least 89c
The finest quality rayon. Lace-trimmed and tailored. Bloomers, teds, step-ins. Now EACH (MAIN FLOOR)

69^c

SATIN SLIPS

A Very Special
Rayon satin slips with deep hems. All colors to choose from. Priced at only EACH (MAIN FLOOR)

98^c

CHILDREN'S SWEATERS

$1.00 Quality
Right now is the time to buy the youngsters a new one. Seeing is believing. EACH (MAIN FLOOR)

69^c

BOYS' SUITS

What a Value!
Broadcloth blouse and wool pants. The best we have ever shown. EACH (MAIN FLOOR)

98^c

BOYS' KNICKERS

All Wool-Lined
They will melt away at this price. Shop early. Ages 6 to 16 years. PAIR (MAIN FLOOR)

$1.00

WASH FROCKS

Elsewhere $1.98
A special purchase. Light and dark colors. Long and short sleeves. All sizes. EACH (THIRD FLOOR)

$1.39

MEN'S SHIRTS

We Marked 'Em Down
Can you resist these regular $4.59 and $4.98 shirts at this price? All sizes. EACH (MAIN FLOOR)

$1.00

WOMEN'S SHOES

How Can We Do It?
Just cleaning up the stock. You have never before seen such shoes at this price. PAIR (MAIN FLOOR)

$2.00

CHILDREN'S HOSE

Every Day 25c Sellers
Sturdy school hose in every color and size. Also a large lot of children's high-grade sock. PAIR (MAIN FLOOR)

15^c

HAND BAGS

The $1.00 Kind
All are new. No old stock. Envelope and pouch styles. EACH (MAIN FLOOR)

59^c

LACE NECKWEAR

An Odd Lot Clearance
Clearing away all odd lots of lace neckwear. Wonderful values at. EACH (MAIN FLOOR)

54^c

LIFEBUOY SOAP

Limited Quantity
We can sell you only 10 cakes. Come and get yours. 10 CAKES FOR (MAIN FLOOR)

50^c

JAMES B. ZACHRY LAID TO LAST REST

and S. J. West served as pallbearers and members of the board of stewards of the Park Street church formed an of the Park Street church formed an honorary escort.

Mr. Zachry, who had been ill for about a year, was a veteran in the Atlanta business world, having been secretary and treasurer of the T. S. Lewis Company for 30 years. He also was one of the founders of Zachry, Incorporated.

666

is a doctor's Prescription for COLDS and HEADACHES

It is the most speedy remedy known.
666 also in Tablets

Judgments Affirmed.
Lynch vs. Ford et al.; from Atlantic City, N. J., affirmed.
V. K. Mearns, O. J. Bundy, for plaintiff.
R. N. Jackson, C. E. Moore, for defendant.
H. J. Hays vs. State; from Atlantic City, N. J., affirmed.
from Macon city court—Judge Hall, J. L. Hughes, for plaintiff. Howard Ell, Jr., for defendant.
Glann vs. State; from Taliaferro superior court—Judge Perkins, for plaintiff.
Perkins vs. State; from Taliaferro superior court—Judge Perkins, for plaintiff in error. M. L. Felts, solicitor general, contra.
Harris vs. State; from Taliaferro superior court—Judge Perkins, for plaintiff. Administrator, vs. Whitaker vs. State; from Taliaferro superior court—Judge Perkins, for plaintiff in error. L. B. Wyatt, L. M. Wyatt, contra.
Gardner vs. State; Kelley vs. State; from Miller superior court—Judge Yeomans, W. C. Goer, for plaintiff in error. L. C. Gardner, J. H. Kelley, contra.
Mays vs. State; from Savannah city court—Judge Perkins, for plaintiff in error. Walter C. Hartridge, solicitor general, Julian Hartridge, contra.
Scott & Son vs. Newberry; from Whitfield superior court—Judge Perkins, for plaintiff in error. W. L. Mitchell, for plaintiffs in error. W. L. Sapp, contra.
Grady vs. Bates Southern Music House vs. Toney; from Colquitt superior court—Judge Perkins, for plaintiff in error. W. L. Sapp, for plaintiff. Hoyt H. Whelchel, for defendant.
Barlow vs. State; from Butts superior court—Judge Perkins, for plaintiff in error. Frank B. Willingham, solicitor-general, contra.
State vs. Johnson; from Taliaferro superior court—Judge Camp, J. L. Kent, G. Eugene Johnson, for plaintiff. Fred Kent, solicitor-general, contra.
Hearings Motio.
Adamson vs. Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; from Fulton Granted.
Baltimore vs. Baltimore Company, vs. Eyles vs. State; from Atlanta Denied.

Hoover Appeals to Nation To Give 10 Million to Needy

House and Senate Con- feres Disagree Again on Administration's Drouth Relief Measure.

BY H. O. THOMPSON.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(UP)—President Hoover appealed to the nation today for the contributions of at least $10,000,000 for the destitute, while in congress disagreement developed between senate and house conferees on the administration's drouth relief bill.

The disagreement came late in the afternoon. Previously a week's deadlock had been broken in the house and a vote, taken unexpectedly, had placed the house on record against the senate's amendment adding $15,000,000 for food loans to the original $45,000,000.

Senator Wesley L. Jones, republican, Washington, announcing the conferees' disagreement, said it would be reported to the senate tomorrow, when the battle between the administration, opposing the loan, and the western and southern senators who favor it, probably will be resumed.

The senate conferees were Senators Jones, Reed, Smoot, republican, Utah, and William J. Harris, democrat, Georgia. The house conferees were Representative Will Wood, republican, Indiana, chairman of the appropriations committee, and Representative Louis C. Cramton, republican, Michigan; Edward H. Wason, republican, New Hampshire; Joseph W. Byrns, democrat, Tennessee, and James P. Buchanan, democrat, Texas.

In both senate and house today there were new appeals for food for the hungry. But despite these and the conferees' disagreement, it appeared likely the relief appropriation, when finally approved, would be only for live stock feed, seed and tractor fuel.

The house voted, 215 to 134, against instructing its conferees to accept the senate food amendment. House republican leaders had given the impression they feared a test on this direct issue and democrats had appeared confident they could carry it if it were allowed to come up. But even less than the usual democratic strength was visible when the vote was taken.

Democrats Vote.
Eleven democrats from city districts, which would not have been benefited by the senate amendment because it applied only to rural communities, voted with the republicans.

It was believed also that the Red Cross campaign for $10,000,000 to distribute in food and clothing among the rural needy took some of the edge off the drive for the food provisions. The regular democratic leadership in the house was caught napping when the opportunity came to force the roll call and the motion on the subject was introduced by Representative James V. McClintic, democrat, Oklahoma. While 13 republicans voted with McClintic, their strength was nearly balanced by the 11 deserting democrats.

President Hoover's proclamation declared it "imperative" to raise at least $10,000,000 for the Red Cross to use in its relief program in 21 states. He expressed confidence the response would be speedy and ample.

There is some dissatisfaction in congress over this method of helping the needy. Representative Fiorello La Guardia, republican, New York, who sought unsuccessfully to have provisions for food for city dwellers included in the drouth relief bill, believes it will place an additional bur-

Million-Dollar Bequest Has Unique Stipulation

MEDIA, Pa., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The will of George McFadden, wealthy Philadelphia cotton broker, who died suddenly at his home in Villanova January 5, leaves an estate reported valued at several million dollars to his widow and his two sons and two daughters.

One of the stipulations in the will, which was probated today, provides that the widow, Mrs. Josephine McFadden, must remain in the United States eight months of each year to receive a trust fund income of $120,000 a year, and that "residence in the city of New York shall not be regarded as residing in the United States."

den on the cities, already heavily involved in caring for their own people. Something of this same attitude was reflected in a telegram read into the Congressional Record by McClintic. The message was from Walter M. Harrison, publisher of the Daily Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times, who said "the political aspect of President Hoover's Red Cross appeal for $10,000,000 is obvious."

"The public is thoroughly aware this call is made now in an effort to defeat the (food) measure in congress," Harrison wired. "This appeal is going to communities all over the land which are already groaning under their own burdens of local relief. In a Red Cross announcement tonight, Payne was quoted as saying the present emergency is the greatest his organization has been called upon to meet."

The Mississippi valley flood of 1927, in which the Red Cross spent $12,000,000 for relief of approximately 10,000,000 people, was probably shadowed in the present drouth relief work, Payne said.

OCEAN FLIERS' FATE REMAINS MYSTERY

PONTA DELGADA, Azores, Jan. 13.—(UP)—There was no news of the trans-Atlantic seaplane Tradewind here tonight and reports that the machine had fallen into the sea near here, off San Miguel island, were believed false.

The rumor started a thorough scouring of the seas, still rough under a heavy swell after a terrific week-end storm. Ships were asked to join the search. They found nothing.

The white monoplane flown by Mrs. Beryl Hart, 27-year-old American widow, and lieutenant Lieutenant William S. MacLaren, has been missing since it disappeared into the storm east of Bermuda at 11:15 a. m. last Saturday. It should have covered the 2,000 miles over rough seas to Horta, on Fayal island, in the Azores, by 7 a. m. Sunday.

Rumors that the sturdy little monoplane had landed off San Miguel island were circulated from the village of Mosteiro. Villagers said they saw an object fall about 20 miles off the coast, landing in the sea.

COPYRIGHT LAW REVISION VOTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The house today passed the Vestal bill to revise the copyright laws.

The vote was 185 to 34. The bill now goes to the senate. It would provide of the United States in the International Copyright Union, divisible royalties from sales of separate rights of copy, and automatic copyright.

An effort by Representative Stafford, republican, Wisconsin, to send the bill back to the house patents committee failed, 165 to 20.

MERIDIAN, MISSISSIPPI, BANK CLOSES DOORS

MERIDIAN, Miss., Jan. 13.—(AP)—In an effort "equitably to safeguard the interests of its depositors," by order of the board of directors, the First National bank of Meridian closed its doors with the end of business today. The bank will remain closed in the hands of the federal comptroller for liquidation.

Directors and heads of other banks of Meridian in day and night conferences made every effort to work out a solution of the problem. After exhaustive study and effort a satisfactory solution seemed impracticable, they said, and the closing order followed.

It is understood that the other Meridian banks have fortified themselves and are in excellent condition to meet all legitimate financial needs of the community.

The stock of the First National was $200,000 with surplus of $240,000.

TEXAN TO SEEK CUT IN COTTON ACREAGE

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 13.—(AP)—State Senator Oliver C. Cunningham, of Abilene, chairman of the committee on agriculture, said today that he was planning to introduce a bill to reduce cotton acreage in Texas.

Cunningham said his bill would prohibit any land from being planted in cotton two years in succession, and that it would be constitutional under the provision that the legislature can enact laws to conserve the state's natural resources. In this instance, the soil would be the natural resource.

PROBE RESOLUTION IS SIGNED BY HORTON

Investigation of Tennessee Affairs Expected To Start Immediately.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Appointed late today by Speakers Scott Fitzhugh, of the senate, and Walter M. Hay, of the house, the Tennessee joint legislative committee made plans tonight "to investigate and audit each and every department, agency and institution of the state government."

The investigation has been demanded since the failure of three banks with nearly $6,000,000 of state funds on deposit. The committee is a subsidiary of Caldwell & Company, investment banking house.

Under a resolution which received final approval in the house today and Governor Henry H. Horton's signature a few hours later, the committee composed of seven representatives and five senators is directed to "subpoena witnesses, compel their attendance . . . order and compel the production of all records and documents pertaining to any department and do all things necessary and proper to the end that said investigation shall be full and complete."

There were no doubt, the committee's first order was to subpoena Scott P. Fitzhugh, Robert L. Alexander, Nashville; W. W. Craig, Ripley; Leighton Ewell, Manchester; J. A. Rusk, Jackson, and A. F. Officer, Livingston.

Speaker Walter M. Haynes announced the following house members of the committee: Norman M. Bank, Dickson county; L. L. Harrell, Gibson county; Ed Parker, Bedford county; J. M. Payne, Hamilton county; Austin Perry, Jr., Montgomery county; J. A. Rusk, Jackson county; and George Stockton, Fentress county.

Under the resolution, the committee will have authority to investigate the activity of any private citizens, firms or corporations that may have been connected with any transactions with the state or with any of its officials.

A bill which would put "teeth" in the resolution will be up for final action in both houses tomorrow. This bill would grant immunity from criminal prosecution or civil action to those witnesses who may be summoned to give incriminating testimony before the committee. It also stipulates that persons appearing falsely before the committee would be guilty of perjury, and provides that persons refusing to appear before the committee or to give testimony would be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Lynch and Whitaker were in Nashville yesterday for a conference with the governor.

FLORIDA WILL SPEND $11,000,000 ON ROADS

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Florida expects to spend approximately $11,000,000 on her highways in 1933.

The state highway commission will meet here tomorrow, adopt a budget for the year and elect a chairman and award road and bridge contracts amounting to approximately $500,000.

While the year's budget will not be drawn up until tomorrow's meeting, road department officials and engineers today estimated that the year's activities will represent the expenditure of approximately $11,000,000 on roads and bridges. Some $2,200,000 will be federal aid funds. Robert Bentley, chairman of the state highway commission, said.

NORTH CAROLINA SEEKS TOBACCO TAX REBATE

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 13.—(UP)—The state senate today passed a resolution requesting congress to rebate to the state of North Carolina at least 20 per cent of the tobacco and cigar tax collected from the state to relieve the land tax for schools.

During discussion of the resolution Senator Hallett Ward, Beaufort, charged tobacco manufacturers estimated tobacco acreage and then fixed the amount for the ensuing year. The resolution termed the federal tobacco tax "onerous and confiscatory" and requested the governor to memorialize congress to grant the rebate.

Minister, Run-Down in Health, Gains 7 Pounds in 3 Weeks

Don't be "Skinny!"

Photos of two different men show why "skinny" puny weaklings cannot compare with well-built, "peppy" men.

Imagine just 3 weeks to change from a "skinny" tired person to a strong, well-filled-out man or woman that everybody admires. Thousands tell how ugly hollows in face and neck vanish. "Broomstick" limbs become round and chubby. Tired feeling disappears. Blotchy skin clears quick.

Only when Yeast is brought in to more effectively for iron is needed to bring out the weight-building and strengthening values of Yeast. Get these handy, pleasant little tablets today. No yeast taste. Do not upset stomach. Cause no gas or bloating.

Try on "Money-Back" Offer
Go to any drugist today and get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. Take it regularly as directed. If after this generous trial you are not satisfied with the health benefits gained, your money promptly refunded by drugist or manufacturer.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and generally weakened condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to gaining weight.—L.T.C.

Amazing Numbers of Georgians Write Letters Like These!

Gains 7 Lbs. and Rosy Complexion
"Tried many things and all failed. Took IRONIZED YEAST and gained 7 lbs. and pale complexion is now rosy."—Elena Cask, Lawrenceville, Ga.

Nervousness Gone, Gains 10 Lbs.
"I only took one bottle of IRONIZED YEAST and gained 10 lbs. My nerves and pep increased and my nervous feeling stopped."—W. F. Smith, Glenville, Ga.

New YEAST and IRON Builds Weight. Quick Results—no pay nothing

"After a 7 weeks' revival campaign I was entirely run-down and had lost flesh so rapidly I became excited about the prospect of a 3 weeks' trial. After 3 weeks I found my strength returning and the tired feeling gone. In 3 weeks I had gained 7 lbs. and was myself again."—Mrs. A. H. Taylor

Only when Yeast is brought in to more effectively for iron is needed to bring out the weight-building and strengthening values of Yeast. Get these handy, pleasant little tablets today. No yeast taste. Do not upset stomach. Cause no gas or bloating.

Try on "Money-Back" Offer
Go to any drugist today and get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. Take it regularly as directed. If after this generous trial you are not satisfied with the health benefits gained, your money promptly refunded by drugist or manufacturer.

CAUTION! While the amazing health-building value of IRONIZED YEAST tablets has been demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and generally weakened condition, IRONIZED YEAST should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to gaining weight.—L.T.C.

Amazing Numbers of Georgians Write Letters Like These!

Gains 7 Lbs. and Rosy Complexion

"Tried many things and all failed. Took IRONIZED YEAST and gained 7 lbs. and pale complexion is now rosy."—Elena Cask, Lawrenceville, Ga.

Nervousness Gone, Gains 10 Lbs.

"I only took one bottle of IRONIZED YEAST and gained 10 lbs. My nerves and pep increased and my nervous feeling stopped."—W. F. Smith, Glenville, Ga.

Annapolis Heads Refuse To Reinstate Middies

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Naval academy officials declined today to take the responsibility for reinstating the two midshipmen dismissed last year for taking two girls into the mess hall at Annapolis.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, author of the reinstatement resolution, said questions by members of the committee indicated they thought the discipline was "a little too severe," in view of the statement of the students they considered the incident merely a "prank."

The two boys were dismissed after they had escorted two girls dressed as midshipmen into the mess hall. They ate the meal with the other students and were not discovered until they were leaving.

DRY REPORT GOES OUT TODAY, RUMORED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The possibility that the law enforcement commission may send to President Hoover tomorrow its views on prohibition was unofficially forecast tonight, but the commission itself remained silent.

A meeting of the commission was scheduled for tomorrow. However, three members could not possibly reach the capital and the arrival of at least three more was doubtful.

No secret was made of the fact that its much-discussed prohibition report lacked only the finishing touches. Henry W. Anderson, of Richmond, has been working night and day to complete his opinion and save for this no official reasons were advanced as to why there should be further delay.

Anderson was one of the three members in Washington today. The commission members have been leaving the capital during the week by ones and twos.

One sailed for Europe, another left for the west coast, and a third returned to St. Louis, with the possibility that he could not return before February.

If not tomorrow it was held likely that the report would be submitted before the week ends.

FRAT HOUSE BLAZE DESTROYS LIBRARY

Fire which destroyed the Phi Delta Theta chapter house at Emory University Monday night took with it one of the most complete and valuable libraries owned by any chapter in the United States, besides records covering 60 years of the fraternity's history, it became known Tuesday.

The library was known as the Walter B. Palmer Memorial library. Mr. Palmer, fraternity historian, attended Emory in 1877, and will the library to the chapter in 1925.

Other losses included silver trophies given the chapter as honorary campus award, photographs of alumni dating from 1873, and personal belongings of men who were occupants of the house. The men are E. C. Smith, W. E. Williams, Eugene Palmer, Leonard Rowen, Morgan Thomas and Tom Calloway.

The building, a two-story stucco structure, was completely destroyed.

NO ACTION TAKEN AGAINST LYNCHERS

MARYVILLE, Mo., Jan. 13.—(AP)—County officials took no action today against members of a mob that yesterday lynched Raymond Gunn, negro, conscript attacker and slayer of Velma Collier, although it was understood Governor Henry S. Caulfield planned an investigation.

As the state legislature was tabling a motion to condemn the lynching today, the temper of Nodaway county citizens was revealed by threats against another negro accused by Gunn of participation in the crime. The other negro, Paul "Shike" Smith, arrested at Omaha, was released today when officers here said he had established a clear alibi.

Harve England, elderly sheriff of Nodaway county, said "higher authorities" would have to order any action taken against the men who seized his prisoner and sent him to death, chained to the blazing schoolhouse in which was found the mutilated body of the 19-year-old teacher.

England said a fear of wholesale bloodshed deterred him from calling for assistance from the battery of national guardsmen mobilized under direct command of A. V. Adams, adjutant general.

FIRESTONE REQUESTS FIGHT ON SLAVERY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Harvey S. Firestone today urged Secretary Stimson to take whatever steps are necessary to end slavery in Liberia.

In a letter to the secretary of state, the Firestone Rubber Company executive expressed appreciation for the recent demand that slavery be abolished.

Firestone said his company, which holds vast rubber plant concessions in Liberia, had experienced difficulty in obtaining free labor upon which it always has insisted.

Fertilizer loans requested of banks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Harvey S. Firestone, president of the American Agricultural Chemical Company, in a letter sent today to presidents of banks east of the Rockies, requested bankers "not to lay down a general rule saying 'no loans for fertilizer'."

Reports from the company's district managers in the agricultural areas, he said, showed a probable reduction in fertilizer consumption next season of 10 to 30 per cent. One of the principal reasons, Bowker asserted, was the inability of farmers to obtain credit.

"While I realize the necessity for the utmost caution in safeguarding the banking resources of the country by a sound credit policy," Bowker's letter continued, "I feel impelled to direct attention to this situation because I am convinced that widespread restriction of the purchase for use of fertilizer will react against the best interests of the banks themselves as well as of the farmer and industries which supply the farm market."

GIRL MAKES SURE SHE DROWNS HERSELF

MATTAPOISETT, Mass., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Drowning was by far the probable the most difficult of deaths, because of her ability as a swimmer, so Miss Lillian Fritz, socially prominent New Bedford girl, tied hands and feet before leaping into Buzzards' bay. Her body was recovered today, about 50 feet from the pier on which some of her garments were found yesterday. One silk stocking bound her feet, and the other her hands.

ONE KILLED, SIX HURT IN COLOMBIAN RIOT

SINCELEJO, Colombia, Jan. 13.—(AP)—One man was killed and seven were injured in a political riot last night between liberals and conservatives.

MOSLEM ASKS RIGHTS IN INDIAN GOVERNMENT

BY FRANK H. KING.

LONDON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A Moslem ultimatum on the age-old Hindu-Moslem quarrel today focused the attention of the Indian round table conference on a problem which may delay the realization of India's dream of responsible government.

Sir Muhammad Shafi, as Moslem spokesman, declared at today's session of the conference that "no constitution, by whomsoever devised, shall be accepted by Indian Moslems unless their interests are adequately safeguarded in that constitution."

The statement was a mere repetition of the Moslem position but coming as it did almost on the eve of adjournment it caused something of a sensation. It followed the outline of a scheme for a federal government, given yesterday by Lord Chancellor Sankey and which last night was the basis of a good deal of optimism that the conference labors would be crowned with success.

Sir Muhammad virtually declared that Indian Moslems will not support self-government for India until their differences with the Hindus are settled.

Thus the conference approaches its final sessions with the broad shoulders of Premier Ramsay MacDonald again carrying the load of responsibility for British statesmanship. The whole fate of the negotiations seems to rest on the declaration he will make at the final plenary session either Friday or Monday.

The basic point of the Hindu-Moslem dispute is that the Moslems demand separate electorates in federalized India, while the Hindus insist that Moslem candidates take their chances in joint electorates of all communities.

FRENCH LEGISLATORS REASSEMBLE IN PARIS

PARIS, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The French chamber of deputies reconvened today after the Christmas holidays with a crowded calendar of domestic and international problems confronting it.

Political observers believed the government of Premier Theodor Steeg to have improved its parliamentary position since the close vote in the chamber just before the recess.

ATLANTAN ADDRESSES ORTHODONTISTS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Members of the Southern Society of Orthodontists in eleventh annual convention here today heard an address by Carlton B. Mott, Asheville.

N. C. president of the society and participated in the discussions pertaining to the profession. Papers were read by A. Leroy Johnson, New York, and Herbert A. Pullen, Buffalo, N. Y., while Clinton C. Howard, Atlanta, presented a report outlining relations of dental-ties of jaws to general body conditions.

Miss Audrey Denness Cooper

Representative of the Irish and Scottish Linen Guild

Authority on Entertaining

Lectures This Afternoon at 3 O'Clock on
"Traditions Up to Date."

She Will Be Introduced by

Mrs. Thornton M. Fincher

President of the Atlanta

Woman's Club

The modern hostess will not want to miss this delightfully informal talk, which will be given in our Tea Room on the Sixth Floor. In connection with her talk, Miss Cooper will exhibit the newest table linens on correctly set tables.

No Admission Charge

Won't You Stay to Tea?

DAVISON-PAXON CO.

Atlanta - affiliated with MACY'S, New York

Again We Lead the Way to Thrift--Sale of Radios!

CROSLEY BUDDYS

$49.50

Complete, Installed
With Tubes

Regular Price
$64.50

Current models of Crosley's famous midget radio at a price that means definite savings. The Buddy is an attractive table or clock-type radio—15 3-8 inches high.

It has the ultra modern screen-grid feature, and is equipped with dynamic speaker. Remarkable tone quality and distant station reception. The cabinet is the replica of a costly old hand carving. Come early!

You May Buy These Crosley Buddys on Our Convenient Deferred Payment Plan

Radios, Fifth Floor

DAVISON-PAXON CO.

Atlanta - affiliated with MACY'S, New York

Our entire fall and winter stocks are reduced. Clothing not included in the above group, is now priced at $27-$37-$47-$57

One Group

SUITS AND OVERCOATS

formerly $25 to $75

Now 1/2 Price

ZACHRY

87 Peachtree St.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes,

Furnishings, Hats and Shoes

AIR NEWS

BY GENE HINTON.

TUESDAY AIR MAIL.

From	Schedule	Arrived
New York	4:35 pm	8:25 am
New Orleans	5:30 pm	9:12 pm
Miami	6:30 pm	9:50 pm
Chicago	7:40 pm	10:40 pm
Nashville	8:10 pm	11:40 pm
Los Angeles	9:00 pm	12:15 pm

Left

From	Schedule	Arrived
New York	4:35 pm	8:25 am
New Orleans	5:30 pm	9:12 pm
Miami	6:30 pm	9:50 pm
Chicago	7:40 pm	10:40 pm
Nashville	8:10 pm	11:40 pm
Los Angeles	9:00 pm	12:15 pm

Flights like the one now being conducted by Lieutenant Walter Hinton, who landed at Candler field Tuesday on a nationwide tour of the country under the auspices of the National Exchange Club, are good for aviation, in that they stimulate interest among the general public through the wide publicity they receive. Hinton is an interesting talker and presented his message in such a way as to command the attention of every-day citizen who might be passing thought. The famed navy pilot, though he realizes that there is still much to be done at Candler field, had nothing but praise for the splendid way in which the county is going about the business of getting the airport into shape.

In addition to the visit of Hinton, which created enough excitement in itself, the airport was bustling with activity, as the aftermath of the Miami air races. No less than six planes, bound for various points in the United States after participating in the third annual meet, stopped for service, the group of fliers involved, including two aviators and one famous ex-army pilot.

Carrying Jimmie Doolittle, who, until a year or so ago, when he resigned, was regarded as the army's

Nervous Headaches
Stopped in 3 minutes
When one of those sick, nervous headaches come and you want three-minute relief, go to any drug store or soda fountain and ask for a package of "B-C" (10c and 25c packages) the wonderful new preparation of a North Carolina druggist that is guaranteed safe and speedy, without depression or bad after effects. "B-C" relieves any kind of headache, sciatic, neuralgic or female pain, because it contains several ingredients that function together for the relief of pain, regardless of its origin. The "B-C" formula is one of the most important medical discoveries of recent years, accomplishing in a few minutes what no one drug formula can do under 1 to 3 hours.

New Way to Hold Lower FALSE TEETH
Firmly in Place
Do false teeth annoy and bother by dropping and slipping when you eat, talk or laugh? Just sprinkle a little Fasten on your plates. This new, tasteless powder holds teeth firmly and comfortably in place. Gummy, gooey, pasty taste. Makes breath pleasant. Get Fasten today at Jacobs or any other drug store.—(adv.)

CONSTIPATED?
Take MR-NATURE'S REMEDY—tonight. Your eliminative organs will be functioning properly by morning and your constipation will end with a bowel action as free and easy as nature at her best—positively no pain, no griping. Try it. Mild, safe, purely vegetable—no drugs—only 25c. FEEL LIKE A MILLION. TAKE Nature's Remedy MR-NATURE'S REMEDY Turns for the tummy! Quick relief for sour stomach, acid indigestion and heartburn. Turns are antacid. Only 10c.

Rub-My-Tism Salve
Is a doctor's prescription for treating Children's Colds Externally.
The Most Speedy Remedy Known.

Has Your Back Given Out?
Backache Often Warns of Disordered Kidneys.
If miserable with backache, bladder irritations and getting up at night, don't take chances! Help your kidneys at the first sign of disorder. Use Doan's Pills. Successful for more than 50 years. Endorsed by hundreds of thousands of grateful users. Get Doan's today. Sold by dealers everywhere.

Doan's Pills
A DIURETIC FOR THE KIDNEYS

Pastors Hear Williams.
Dr. A. D. Williams, pastor of Ebenezer Baptist church, was principal speaker at the Atlanta Baptist Ministers' Union at its meeting held Tuesday at Greater West Street Baptist church. He delivered an appeal in behalf of the state Baptist convention, saying that the union must renew efforts to raise $6,000 by February 28. Atlanta Baptists were requested to contribute $1,000 of that sum.

CHAPPING DISAPPEARS
when you apply MENTHOLATUM
Keeps skin smooth and white

BOOKS—BOUGHT
WE PAY CASH FOR All Kinds of Saleable Books
Call or Write C. Rozetta—103 Whitehall St.

Lt. Hinton Thrills Listeners With Tales of Air Adventure

Lieutenant Walter Hinton, navy aviator and pilot on two historic flights, who visited Atlanta Tuesday. He is shown here on the left being greeted by Harry S. McCown, president of the Atlanta Exchange Club, local branch of the national organization sponsoring his nationwide tour. Staff photo by George Corbett.

The saga of a great aviator, told in the simplest and most unassuming manner by the hero of a series of "stranger than fiction" adventures, held a large gathering of the Atlanta Exchange Club members and local aviation leaders spellbound for more than an hour Tuesday. Lieutenant Walter Hinton, first man to pilot a plane across the Atlantic ocean and first to use a plane for exploration, was the speaker.

Lieutenant Hinton arrived in Atlanta Tuesday morning, accompanied by his co-pilot and mechanic, Bob Chew, flying a new blue and gold Fairchild monoplane that was furnished the noted pilot to tour the nation in behalf of the advancement of aviation. The tour is being sponsored by the National Exchange Club, of which Hinton is a vice president and in charge of the organization's permanent aviation program.

Historic air adventures constituted only about half of the aeronautical experiences related by Lieutenant Hinton to his listeners Tuesday. Apparently more exciting than the pioneer trip across the Atlantic as pilot of the NC-4 was the balloon cruise made by him in 1921. The balloon was carried by a "weather almost half-way to the north pole, where its lost occupants were landed on top of a tree in a forest in the Hudson bay district, miles from civilization. A trip that took 25 hours in balloon required the rescued aviator 21 days of trekking to reach the nearest railroad. Lieutenant Hinton told his hearers.

The adventurous balloon flight, the mapping of 12,000 miles of unexplored territory in the Amazon valley and a good-will flight over the vast expanse of Brazil in 1922 were all related.

STIMSONS HONOR HOOVER AT DINNER
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The first of the cabinet dinners in honor of the President and Mrs. Hoover during the current social season was given tonight by Secretary and Mrs. Stimson at their home, Woodley. The other guests were personal friends of the Secretary and Mrs. Stimson. It was the third time the president had dined at the secretary's home.

The guests were Justice and Mrs. Stone, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Sheffield, of New York city; Major General and Mrs. Frank R. McCoy; Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Hillis, of New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Cass Gilbert, of New York city; Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Gamble, of Haverford, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred L. Loomis, of Tuxedo Park, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Grosvenor Atterbury, of New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Putnam, of Rye, N. Y.

As is customary when the president is dining outside the White House, secret service men examined the entire house before his arrival and were stationed around the grounds while the President and Mrs. Hoover were present.

FIVE-DAY WORK WEEK IN NAVY YARDS URGED
MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 13.—(UP)—A resolution declaring the government should inaugurate a five-day work week for government workers in navy yards and other services to relieve unemployment was adopted today by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

President William Green of the Federation in announcing the resolution, said situation reports show the government has been discontinuing employment in other branches of the government service.

"We believe the government should increase its service to help unemployment," he said.

DARR GOES ON TRIAL IN BLACKMAIL CASE
C. Dempsey Darr, former army aviator, the third of six persons accused of complicity in an attack last September on Dr. S. Iverson Case, went on trial Tuesday before a jury in Judge E. B. Thomas' division of the Fulton superior court.

Dr. Case was the chief state's witness. Darr in his statement to the jury testified that he was not at the apartment at the time of the attack. Other witnesses corroborated Darr's story.

After completion of the testimony Tuesday a recess was taken until this morning when Assistant Solicitor Ed A. Stephens and H. A. Allen, defense counsel, will make arguments. The case is expected to reach the jury about noon.

BOOKS—BOUGHT
WE PAY CASH FOR All Kinds of Saleable Books
Call or Write C. Rozetta—103 Whitehall St.

CHAPPING DISAPPEARS
when you apply MENTHOLATUM
Keeps skin smooth and white

CARNEGIE-TECH... All American Football Capt. Drescher and classmates take concealed name test.

KEY PROMISES TO AID AIRPORT DEVELOPMENT

Mayor Attends Aviation Dinner Given Officials by Chairman Berman.

Close co-operation of the borough government in effecting improvements vitally needed at Candler field, Atlanta's municipal airport, was promised Tuesday night at an informal dinner given at the home of Councilman Joseph E. Berman, chairman of confil aviation committee, for members of that body and representatives of the Candler field operators.

While the borough finance sheet, as drawn by the committee some time ago, not only carries no provision for proposed improvements at the airport, but actually cuts expenses by calling for a reduction in the borough's working staff there, Mayor Key assured the guests that he would do all in his power to have the necessary sum included in the paper. It is estimated that it would cost $5,400 to change the position of the field's floodlight, place boundary lights and day markers and install a flashing code beacon, in accordance with department of commerce requirements.

In addition to a revenue-producing administration building costing $40,000, which was brought out at the meeting, is likely to be erected by private capital, a large storage garage to house automobiles of passengers making trips on transport planes and of visitors at the field was proposed as a method of producing revenue. It was pointed out that were the garage and administration buildings erected visitors staying more than an hour would be required to store their cars at a nominal cost, but would be provided with seats atop the administration building from which they could view activities on the field.

Mayor Key, while assuring the committee of his interest in the airport, pointed out the borough's precarious financial position and urged the necessity of finding means by which the field could produce revenue, which then could be put back into its development.

In addition to Key and Berman, the following were present: J. H. Gray, Candler field manager; Postmaster E. K. Large, Willis B. Haviland, of American Airways, Inc.; John K. Outley, of Eastern Air Transport, Inc.; Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction, and Ben Huiet J. L. Wells and Homer Foster, members of the committee.

COURT OF APPEALS. SHERIFF RENAMED

Sheriff P. W. Derrick, of the state court of appeals, Tuesday was appointed for another six-year term. State officers have come and state officers have gone, but Sheriff Derrick, like Treasurer W. J. Speer and other veteran state officers, seems to go on forever. He has held his present office since October 1, 1907, and has the esteem and friendship of all persons who know him.

Sheriff P. W. Derrick, of the state court of appeals, was photographed at his desk after his re-election Tuesday for another six-year term. Staff photo by Kenneth Rogers.

Sheriff Derrick lives at 1637 Rock Springs road. He is a native of Hampton, Ga., and prior to his appointment as sheriff, was a dry goods clerk in Griffin, Donaldsonville and Blakely.

LEGION WILL CONDUCT ART ACORD'S FUNERAL

EL PASO, Texas, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A military funeral under auspices of the American Legion has been planned for Art Acord, film cowboy, who died in Chihuahua City, Chihuahua, Mexico, recently from effects of poison. Arrangements were made by El Paso Legion representatives to receive the body when it was brought here by plane from the interior of Mexico and to forward it to Hollywood, Cal., for interment.

JUDGE STRUM HEADS FLORIDA HIGH COURT

Two Divisions of Supreme Tribunal Are Also Reorganized.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Judge Louis Willard Strum was elected chief justice of the Florida supreme court here today.

The court also reorganized its two divisions. Chief Justice Strum, Justice Ellis and Justice Brown now form Division "A," while Justices Whitfield, Terrell and Buford form Division "B."

The court heard oral arguments in four cases. Three were minor suits. The fourth had to do with efforts of state officials to restrain Circuit Judge George W. Todder, Fort Lauderdale, from acting in a case in which depositors of the defunct Citizens Bank of Tampa sought appointment of a separate receiver in place of the regular liquidator appointed by the comptroller.

Counsel for the judge and the depositors failed to appear for the arguments. Attorney-General Fred H. Davis, representing State Treasurer W. V. Knott, Comptroller Ernest Amos and others, pleaded for a permanent restraining order against Judge Todder in the case.

FOR HEAD COLDS

The vapors of Vicks have a most remarkable effect, in relieving that "stuffed up" feeling. Every few hours place a little Vicks up each nostril and snuff well back; also melt in boiling water and inhale the steaming medicinal vapors. At bedtime, rub Vicks on throat and chest to get its double effect during the night.

VICKS VAPORUB

OVER 47 MILLION JARS USED YEARLY

PITTSBURGH GOES OLD GOLD

BY BIG PLURALITY

Famous Steel City gives O.G.s. Smashing Vote in latest Ripley Taste-Test

Believe it or not, taste is taste, whether its owner sports a dinner coat or a dinner pail.

I covered Pittsburgh from the Mayor's office to the sootiest, hottest steel mills. Gave every mother's son I met the four leading cigarettes with brand names concealed, and said "Try 'em!"

At the steel mills, OLD GOLD won... by 34%. At the William Penn Hotel... O.G. won... by 32%. At Pittsburgh Police Headquarters, O. G. by 49%. At the Westinghouse works... a high voltage victory. O. G. ahead by 36%!

Blue bloods... red bloods... brain and brawn... they all like OLD GOLD'S throat-ease and taste thrill.

Can't OLD GOLD lose? It hasn't yet.

(Signed) Ripley

WHITE-HOT STEEL... and white-hot enthusiasm for OLD GOLDS as Ripley tests steel-jacks in Pittsburgh mills. Steel men give O.G.s. smashing verdict.

MEN O' STEEL in Pittsburgh mills snapped in action-making test.

OFFICIAL BOX-SCORE
As audited by Certified Public Accountant
"I hereby certify that the following is a true and complete audit of the test of the four leading cigarettes, conducted by Robert Ripley in Pittsburgh."
OLD GOLD... 334 Brand Y... 229 Brand X... 283 Brand Z... 176
(Signed) MAIN COMPANY, Certified Public Accountant

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

WRITER RENEWS RASKOB CHARGES

Frank R. Kent Answers
Chairman's Letter With Restatement.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The assertion that John J. Raskob is "the first mortgage holder" of the democratic party was made today in a letter to the national chairman by Frank R. Kent, of the Baltimore Sun.

"I further assert that in the history of this country no political party was ever under such financial obligations to any individual as the democratic party is today under to you," said Kent, political writer for the Sun and author of several books on politics.

"You brought the party out of bankruptcy, put it through the receivership, stood it on its financial feet, and then clapped a first mortgage on it."

Kent's letter was occasioned by one from Raskob made public yesterday, in which the latter defended his chairmanship against criticism by the writer.

"The democratic party ought not to let any rich man so completely finance its activities and pay its bills," said the Baltimorean. "It isn't self-respecting and it isn't democratic, and it isn't good."

Kent referred to Raskob as "a breast-beating amateur in politics, who has had the courage to lead the list and you are the chief responsible person and so recognized."

"There may be other endorsers on the note but you are the chief responsible person and so recognized. You have done all the financing and it is you who have reduced the $1,000,000 debt to approximately $600,000. Further, I assert that you selected Mr. J. M. Shouse as executive chairman, arranged for the expanded headquarters in Washington, for the high-priced publicity department and underwrote for a period of three years the unprecedented expenses of the work there."

"I further assert that the record shows the democratic party owes you for money loaned a quarter of a million dollars. I further assert that it owes you more every month, not less; that in the last campaign the records show nine-tenths of all money contributed came from you."

"You say that ultimately you expect the democratic party to pay you back the money you have loaned. I think you are optimistic and not sincere about that."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"You know perfectly well," said Kent, "that I did not infer that you had become a demagogue because of your religion and because Smith is a Roman Catholic. You know perfectly well that I hate bigots as bitterly as you and have fought them with clearer conscience. You know that part of your letter is not."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

"I did not in any article," said Kent, "intimate that in what you had done financially for the democratic party you had any sinister purpose. . . . I think you are a little out of focus or you would not have come as far as you have, even though the money means little to you."

Kingan & Company Formally Opens New Atlanta Plant This Afternoon

Branch plant erected in Atlanta by Kingan & Co. at 238 Peters street. The new structure will be formally opened today in the presence of officials from headquarters of the company in Indianapolis.

Kingan & Company's new plant at 238 Peters street, at the corner of Fair, which has been under construction for the past several months, will be formally opened today under the direction of John M. Royall, branch manager.

Invitations have been issued to all the customers and friends of the company to inspect the plant and regular tours have been arranged to cover the entire building. Open house will be held from 1 o'clock this afternoon until 11 tonight.

R. S. Sinclair, president of the company, of Indianapolis, Ind., accompanied by a number of other officials from headquarters, will be in Atlanta for the opening of the new branch plant.

Accompanying the president will be A. C. Sinclair, vice president in charge of all branches; B. N. Jones, district supervisor of branches, and others.

The building is modern and up-to-date in every respect, and is operated under United States government inspection. It fronts 70 feet on Peters street and extends back on Fair street 140 feet, having three floors in the rear and two in front.

Of brick, concrete, and tile construction, the building is entirely fire-proof, and provision is made for an additional floor whenever it is needed. Kingan has owned the property on which the building is located for a number of years and also owns the adjoining property, showing the company's faith in Atlanta.

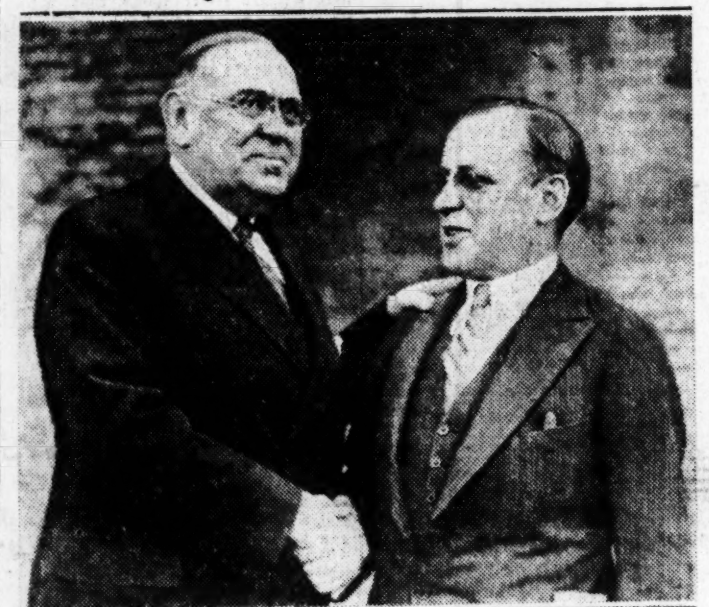

For 17 years the company has maintained a branch in Atlanta and has been selling its products here for nearly 50 years, showing a steady growth throughout this time, and with the improved facilities of the new plant the company will be in a position to handle a much greater volume. The location offers many advantages, the branch manager points out, having its own railroad tracks and a wide street, and being adjacent to the freight depot, express office, parcel post office and having ample parking facilities.

Heretofore the branch had facilities only for cured meats and a small line of fresh meats, while the new plant provides accommodations for preparing meat and a full line of fresh meats, including dressed beef, lamb, veal and all fresh pork cuts.

The building was erected by Braxell, Miller & Neubanks, Inc., Atlanta contractors, who had entire charge of constructing the plant. The contracting firm specializes in this type of building.

Business Depression at End, Realty President Believes

National leaders in the real estate field, who headed a party of more than 100 realtors en route to the winter convention at St. Petersburg, Fla., as they stopped over in Atlanta Tuesday as guests of the Atlanta Real Estate Board. Harry Kissell, incoming president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is shown on the left, shaking hands with President Leonard P. Reame, of Detroit. Staff photo by Bill Mason.

Encouragement in the realm of national prosperity was brought to Atlanta Tuesday in the form of an address by Leonard P. Reame, Detroit realtor and president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The speech by the well-known realtor, who, with a party of more than 100 mid-western real estate men en route to the national convention at St. Petersburg, was guest of the Atlanta Real Estate Board, included a number of optimistic statements.

"There will be considerable building activity during the ensuing months and, since much of the over-production in building is consumed, I believe that will help conditions mature," Reame told members of the Atlanta board who served as hosts to the "president's special" party that stopped over in Atlanta.

"The depression has retarded business for the past year or so, but, in my opinion," the speaker added.

have the same people with their fine spirit which has made this country what it is, and we look with confidence to the gradual return of business to normal, when we are sure that this bank will share in the business prosperity, and that its earnings will, in normal times, satisfy its shareholders. Your bank is as sound as the rock of Gibraltar and will stand as a beacon among banks in the south."

At its Savannah meeting the Citizens and Southern stockholders elected the following directors: Samuel R. Adams, Robert C. Alston, A. E. Clift, R. S. Cope, T. M. Cunningham, Milton Dargatz, T. C. Erwin, Howard C. Foss, Gordon L. Grover, Frank H. Hensel, Herschel Y. Jenkins, E. W. Lane, Mills B. Lane, H. Y. McCord, William Murphy, Joe D. Myers, J. Cheshire Nash, W. J. Pierpont, A. C. Reed, H. P. Smart, R. O. Sprague, H. D. Stevens, E. S. Trosdal and H. Lane Young.

Directors will hold their annual meeting today and elect officers.

"COUNTRY GOING FORWARD" NEW YORK BANK HEAD SAYS NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—In his first public statement concerning business conditions in a year, Charles E. Mitchell, chairman of the National City bank, said today that "unquestionably this country is going forward."

He said in his annual message to stockholders, who met at noon today, that 1930 was a year of debt paying on a great scale, which necessarily means curtailment of purchases and a check upon enterprise.

"But it also means that when this policy has run its course new and sustained buying power will appear in all markets. Gradually the new conditions will make themselves felt. A new state of mind also will be developed, more sane and constructive than that which ruled in the boom period."

This attitude of mind is likely to be reflected in the bond and security markets even before the industrial recovery is perceptibly under way.

Mr. Mitchell asserted that while at the moment there is little basis for a prophecy of speedy recovery, judging by past experience, it would seem that "the volume of business has fallen as low as it is likely to go, that replacement may be expected at least to maintain the present level, and that as industries take the measure of conditions with which they have to deal, a general revival of activity will gradually develop."

That was the extent of his prophecy. The rest of his statement touching on the business situation was related to the cause and a comparison with the past which led him to assert that "the business organization is ready to function more promptly and with greater efficiency than after any other major crisis."

"There is, however," he added, "work to be done to restore the bal-

HAL F. HENTZ HEADS SCOUT COUNCIL AGAIN

Hal F. Hentz Tuesday night was re-elected president of the Atlanta Council, Inc., Boy Scouts of America, at a meeting held on the Ansley roof. W. E. Mitchell was elected vice president, W. D. Ellis III was named commissioner, E. J. Hardin, secretary, and A. G. Maxwell, treasurer.

The following members of the board of directors were re-elected: F. G. Gould, W. A. Sutton, W. D. Hoffman, Floyd W. McInnis, W. Eugene Harrington and T. W. Moore.

Among the features of the evening was the awarding of honors to leading troops and scout leaders. Scoutmaster W. F. (Bill) Long, Dallas aviator, was back home today. Seven days ago he made a parachute jump from an airplane into the Yucatan jungle to begin a hunt for the treasure.

Coming back from Mexico, he had traveled on a mule, a train and an airplane. Harry A. Hamill, Low field flier, who piloted the plane from which the captain made his leap into the jungle, returned with him from San Antonio, where they had rejoined each other.

LANDSLIDE HID GOLD, TREASURE SEEKER SAYS DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Believing a landslide has hidden the treasure cave in Mexico where he expected to find gold concealed by Maya Indians, Captain W. F. (Bill) Long, Dallas aviator, was back home today.

Seven days ago he made a parachute jump from an airplane into the Yucatan jungle to begin a hunt for the treasure.

Coming back from Mexico, he had traveled on a mule, a train and an airplane. Harry A. Hamill, Low field flier, who piloted the plane from which the captain made his leap into the jungle, returned with him from San Antonio, where they had rejoined each other.

GERMAN LEADER DIES IN MÜNSTER MÜNSTER, Westphalia, Germany, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Carl Herold, "father of the German reichstag," died here today at the age of 82. He had been for 12 years a member of the Prussian diet and for 33 a member of the reichstag, and was honorary president of the centrist party.

JOHN W. BURGESS, BROOKLINE, Mass., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Professor John William Burgess, soldier and educator, died here today, aged 87. He was a native of Giles county, Tennessee, and was the author of numerous books dealing with political science, history and constitutional law.

H. R. HORNE, FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—H. R. Horne, 32, one of the few survivors of the Confederate forces which engaged in the Battle of Bethel, initial land battle of the War Between the States, died here today.

BABY STOLEN TO GAIN HUSBAND'S LOVE DIES NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Now neither the mother who bore the child nor the other who stole it to deceive her husband will have little Gilda Rotundo.

The six-week-old infant, whom the police found in possession of Mrs. Angelina Schiron, after a four-day hunt, died today of pneumonia.

Mrs. Lauretta Rotundo, physicians said, was prostrated by the loss of her baby.

Mrs. Schiron, the childless wife, wept bitterly and repeated over and over: "I never meant to harm the baby."

There is grave danger that if general business accelerates too fast a sharp relapse would take place in the early summer of 1931, with results perhaps more far-reaching than the present depression.

Colonel Robbins, a former assistant secretary of war, said the outlook for the first quarter of 1931 was for a slightly upward turn in general business, including life insurance.

NATHAN STRAUS GOES TO GRAVE SIMPLY

Plain Pine Box Last Resting Place for Revered Philanthropist.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The body of Nathan Straus, philanthropist, was carried to a grave today in a plain box of white pine boards.

Instead of huge fortune, he left behind him the love of the needy and suffering on whom he lavished most of the wealth he earned as a merchant.

Eight Jewish policemen bore the pine coffin through throngs which filled Temple Emanuel and crowded 57th Avenue for blocks. Benny Leonard, former lightweight boxing champion walked beside John D. Rockefeller, Jr., among the honorary pallbearers, and Mayor James J. Walker was among those who attended the rites.

There was no eulogy in the simple funeral service, psalms were read and Professor William Lyon Phelps, of Yale, read a factual biographical sketch of his friend.

AMY JOHNSON PLANS TO RETURN TO LONDON MOSCOW, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Amy Johnson, the British aviatrice, left this morning by train for Warsaw from where she plans to fly back to London, abandoning her project for a solo flight across Siberia to Peiping.

The only NEW thing in motoring free wheeling Studebaker Builder of Champions

Second Day High's Free Cooking School Conducted by Mrs. A. P. Boardman

No need to invite those who were here yesterday! Don't miss this second day of the Free Cooking School! Come and bring a friend!

Remember! In High's Furniture Department 2 to 4 P. M.

Wednesday's Menu. Kitchenette Planked Steak, an individual serving, showing how to use up left-over roasts.

Vanderbilt Salad, a bit of French pastry, served with frozen peaches.

Pineapple and Banana Cream

Hot Biscuits

FURNITURE—HIGH'S STREET FLOOR J. M. HIGH CO.

Combining Two Dress Sales Today!

FROM HIGH'S SECOND FLOOR

A Breath-Taking Sale! New Spring Dresses

The Most Sensational Value of the Year!

$8.00

Very smart, very lovely, very new is this collection of spring frocks we have gathered for your selection on our Second Floor! They're marvels of attractiveness and chic at the most marvelously low price in years! Choose one, two, three or four for your spring wardrobe . . . and still be giving your budget a treat in savings! Prints and high shades, sizes 14 to 44.

DRESSES—HIGH'S SECOND FLOOR

COMPANION BASEMENT SALE Spring Silk Dresses

A Marvelous Collection Destined to Sell in a Day at This Low Price!

$5

Worth Very Much More! Every Dress a New One!

Worthy copies of far more expensive models! Fashioned with infinite care as to detail, workmanship and quality! Vivid new prints, brilliant high shades. Half sizes, sizes 14 to 44. A Sister Sale of Incomparable Value!

Frocks for Every Hour of the Day For Every Occasion! The Last Word in Chic!

READY-TO-WEAR—HIGH'S BARGAIN BASEMENT

J. M. HIGH CO. 48 Years a "Modern" Store

5-Day Specials Set of Teeth $7 All Other Work Reduced 1/2 Gate City Dental Rooms 93 1/2 Years in Same Location 93 1/2 Whitehall and Wal. 9333 Corner Whitehall and Huie when you catch cold The old reliable combination of Quinine and a Laxative is your protection against more serious complications. Take Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE Tablets

THE CONSTITUTION

CLARK HOWELL
Editor and General Manager
Clark Howell, Jr., Business Manager
Entered at the Postoffice at Atlanta as second-class matter.

Subscription Rates:
Daily and 1 Yr. 1 Mo. 5 Mo. 1 Yr.
Daily $2.00 $5.00 $10.00
Single Copies 10c
By Mail Only
Single Copies 10c
By Mail Only $2.00 $5.00 $10.00
For 1st, 2nd and 3rd years only.
Daily (without Sunday) 1 Yr. $10.00
Daily and Sunday 1 Yr. $12.00

ATLANTA, GA., JAN. 14, 1931.

J. M. HOLLIDAY, Constitution Building, 215 Peachtree street, Atlanta, Ga.
Advertising manager for all territory outside of Atlanta.

THE CONSTITUTION is on sale in New York City by 5 p. m. the day after issue. It can be had: Herald's News Stand, Broadway and Forty-third street (Times building corner); Shasta News Agency, at Bryant Park and Grand Central Depot.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements placed in its columns. It is not responsible for the opinions of its writers. It is not responsible for the opinions of its writers. It is not responsible for the opinions of its writers.

Member of The Associated Press.
The Associated Press is exclusively authorized to use for publication of all news dispatches credited to it or to others credited to this paper and also the news published herein.

THE SMITH-LUCAS CASE.

The protest of ex-Governor Al Smith against the republican national committee for allowing Robert H. Lucas, chairman of its executive committee, to circulate 800,000 copies of a false and scandalous cartoon of Smith in the late Nebraska and other western state campaigns, is fully warranted and his demand for an apology from the national committee should be fully met by the honorable men of that body.

Lucas has been revealed to the Nye campaign investigating committee of the senate as a person of unenviable and repulsive political skulduggery. He tried desperately and expensively to double-cross the republican majority of Nebraska and assassinate politically a distinguished senator of his own party.

He is defiant now of public contempt for his conduct in those respects, and we assume he is proud of the false and libelous use he made of an alleged attitude of Al Smith in the matter of prohibition.

Certainly political honor and decency have fallen into almost hopeless rottenness when the Lucas acts can find excusers and defenders in a party boasting its character as one of "great moral ideas." It will be hoped by honorable persons in both parties that ex-Governor Smith will be given the just vindication which the republican national committee owes to him.

BIG BERTHA BACK-FIRES.

A supreme court justice in New York city, William Harmon Black, native Atlantan, has just rendered a decision in a labor dispute that will be of far-reaching interest to union labor and their employers.

Eighteen controlling construction concerns in New York city signed last May a contract with a union of iron workers to maintain "closed shops" that is to employ union labor only. Recently they sought to evade the contract by employing "scab labor." Judge Black enjoined them from breaking their contract, after ex-Governor Alfred E. Smith and President Green of the A. F. L. had failed to bring the parties to agreement. Judge Black warns the employers to obey the injunction, or face the consequences which he will impose upon them.

Thus the labor people who have for years been fighting against the too free use of injunctions to restrict and coerce them, now find the injunction, in the hands of a just judge, coming strongly to the protection of their contractual rights.

This action by Judge Black will be hailed by labor and its friends throughout the country and will have a restraining effect upon employers who hold their labor contracts lightly. The equity injunction, righteously used, is a great weapon for enforcing justice and is as free to labor as it is to those who would try to coerce it.

Many states have fiscal deficits, but grand old Georgia carries the banner one. It's great to be a Georgian!

As yet ex-President Coolidge has offered Hoover no workable advice of how to avoid entangling defiances of the senate.

The Louisiana people hog-tied themselves when they elected Huey P. Long.

Long to the United States senate. He refuses now to be senator until he ceases to be governor two years hence.

AN OMINOUS OUTLOOK.

The likelihood of an extra session of the new congress, to be convened sometime next spring, becomes more likely every evening that the senate of the United States adjourns leaving a goose-egg stamped on its record.

Scarcely anything should be more obvious to the members of the present congress than that the people do not want an extra session of the new congress. It is normally due to get into action next December.

In the meantime the conditions of business which affect the work and welfare of all the people demand as little legislative uncertainty as possible.

If the people are to labor sanely and safely to readjust their economic relations and get themselves back to regular production and exchanges they must be freed from the menace of disturbing or demagogic legislation.

No one ever knows which way the nation is headed while congress is in session and the affairs of the people are being held in the air and hung all over with question marks.

The democrats in congress, if they are awake enough to sense the public temper and wise enough to forward the popularity of the party, will strongly oppose any extra session of the new congress. They should resist every temptation to aid the insurgent republicans to hector and coerce their own party. They should stand for the people and not play uncertain politics.

SUPREME COURT REFORM.

The supreme court of the United States is setting an admirable example to similar courts in the states. On Monday it rendered one opinion, granted two appeals, dismissed one suit for cause and denied 17 reviews asked for.

The court, after Judge Taft became chief justice, so reformed its rules as to examine all applications and predetermine whether they show jurisdiction and proper causes for a formal review. Unless they do one or the other the appeals are summarily denied and the court not burdened with reading unnecessary briefs, hearing useless arguments and writing labored opinions for no better reason than to reaffirm former decisions.

The court has found that a majority of the appeals are mainly for dilatory purposes and present no new or unadjudicated issues. Indeed a remarkable many of the applications to the court are for permission to present the cases in forma pauperis, which indicates quite strongly their dilatory character.

The supreme courts of the several states ought to adopt the like practice and discourage all resorts to their time, patience and labor that are not plainly justified by the constitution and by prima facie evidence of error and miscarriage of justice in the lower tribunals.

Why should it seem incumbent upon the judges of a supreme court, or court of appeals, to consume valuable time, the money of the people, and thousands of pages of printed reports, only to please fishing lawyers and cast litigants wanting time in which to comply with judgments, when the judges know from the pleadings before them that the case is foredoomed to fail in their hands?

The court reports of every state in the Union are loaded with thousands of pages, and volumes of "opinions" that are of no more significance and use to lawyers or people than a book as big as Webster's dictionary that only repeats the alphabet on every page.

It will work great expedition of justice and largely reduce court expenditures if the supreme courts of the states will adopt the wholesome and sensible practice of the federal supreme court.

A senate confirmation looks like bread cast on the waters with a string to it.

The latest Hollywood freak is an actress who has never had but one husband, and still has him.

We are a sporty nation all right. The athletic goods sales last year were $53,000,000.

Just to keep on the front page Chicago has discovered another Linde murderer.

Panama is waiting for her new president to arrive. Then he will wait for a new revolution to arrive.

No, Mamie, we have no knowledge of what has become of Senator Cole Blaise!

Business is improving. It had a nervous prostration rather than a chronic depression.

Judges are falling off their bought benches in New York city like lemons medly rotted.

That ex-Chaplin lady lost some alleged jewels, but she gained a big advertisement.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASEN

Tut, Tut On Parade.

Cursing is a lost art in England. The decline of biting invective was deplored by Lord David Cecil, when he expressed regret that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

Us Democrats Are Guessing What We Believe in These Dubious Days.

For about the fortieth time in a year I am asked to write a discrimination between a democrat and a republican.

These requests have come to me principally from young men who are students in the universities of this and nearby southern states.

It is not because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

"Vituperative efforts have died," he wrote, "because people are nicer than they used to be, but because the advance of science has made us look upon ourselves as mere mechanisms."

There is no doubt that the language used in 1930 finds no semblance to the good old full-blooded days of Burke and Dr. Johnson.

Young Stribling and Schmeling Sign to Fight For Heavyweight Championship Late In June

Our special agents in Nashville send in a doleful report about Vanderbilt's football prospects for next year.

What? Of course, Vanderbilt is supposed to have one of the greatest teams in the conference. All those matchless sophomores who beat Minnesota last year are supposed to return and show what they have learned in a hard campaign.

Yet if a projected ruling of the Vanderbilt faculty goes into effect, not all the sophomores—and a few of the juniors, too—may not be able to play football at all.

It is reported that a section of those in authority at Vanderbilt are trying to make it compulsory for every athlete to make a grade of "B" (80 per cent) in his studies to be eligible.

If such a burden of scholastic performance is placed on the noble athletes the Commodore football team will be wrecked.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN?

Presuming that the Vanderbilt student body is of the general average intelligence and physical development of other southern universities, one can visualize what would happen to the team.

In any student body there are a few spindle-shanked, anemic boys with large heads and horn-rimmed glasses who make grades of A in all subjects.

There are a few more average sized lads who make grades of B and go out for track and la crosse. Most of the big men have to hustle to make an average of passing or a bit better. Human nature is that way.

THE EXCEPTIONS.

Now and then one finds a Freddie Sington who can make Phi Beta Kappa and All-American.

Once in a blue moon a Peter Pund comes along to win honors in an engineering course and make All-American center.

A few star football players annually achieve an average of 80 in all studies. But most of them simply are not the intellectual type; they are intelligent, but not studious; alert, but not bookish.

OVEREMPHASIS IN BOOKS.

If this radical standard is set at Vanderbilt—it obviously is an effort to reduce a fancied overemphasis in football—it undoubtedly will greatly reduce the number of good football players on the Vanderbilt squad. Something like that was done at the University of Chicago some time ago and Chicago's recent record on the gridiron is eloquent of the results.

A young man who has casually checked up on the performance of honor graduates after leaving college is inclined to believe that there has been a notable overemphasis in certain extremely dull and utterly useless subjects with which our university curricula are cluttered. He does not believe that our educational system has reached perfection.

And he knows of several young men who have been politely ejected from classic halls of learning who have done very well out in the world. One he knows came back to be president of the university that gave him, as they say, the gate.

This is no modest broadside at higher education, but a plea for common sense and a little old-fashioned sportsmanship on the part of the best minds in our universities.

HIGH AND OUTSIDE.

Somebody gave Harry Robertson, football coach at Oglethorpe University, a fine golf club for Christmas. Harry unwrapped it and admired the fancy leather grip, the polished steel shaft and the fancy ivory trimming about the clubhead.

He tried it for balance and slowly it dawned on him that it was a left-handed club—and Harry plays right-handed (after a fashion).

Turning to Claude Herrin, one of his star players, he declared: "Say, this is a left-handed club. Wonder if this fellow is trying to kid me?"

"No, coach," Herrin replied in a kind way. "If he had been kidding you he would have sent a right-handed club."

WORTH MONEY.

A colored boy, ragged, with a sack of something over his back, dropped into Spalding's yesterday.

"Boss, Ah wants ah pa'n dice," he told the clerk.

"What sort of dice do you want?"

"Some sided dice."

"What kind of dice are sided dice?"

"Boss, deys fixed on one side so dey won't th'ow craps."

Independent Court Tourney Planned

An independent basketball tournament, sponsored by the Calvary Methodist church, is slated to get under way next Thursday, January 22, on the Calvary court, according to an announcement made Wednesday.

A Sunday school or independent team already organized is eligible to compete. Gold basketballs will be awarded members of the winning team.

Cy Vann, at Raymond 2248-J, and Bill Coker, at Raymond 3310-J, are handling entries. Teams wishing to compete should file their intentions at once, as the list will be restricted.

Nabholz Is Signed As Pro at Lakewood

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Lafayette Nabholz, of Cleveland, Ohio, was employed today as golf professional for the Lakewood Country Club, succeeding Jim Mackenzie, whose contract expired December 31.

Nabholz has been professional at the Colonial Country Club Houston, at the Club at Cleveland, Meadville, Pa., and Lima, Ohio.

Marist Courtmen Beat Russell, 50-36

Marist College opened its 1931 North Georgia interscholastic basketball season with an impressive 50 to 36 victory over Russell High Tuesday afternoon on the Ivy street court. Marist will play Chamblee High this afternoon in their second game of the week.

Marist opened up with a brilliant offensive attack and ran up a total of 28 points before the half ended. Russell, with a new and inexperienced team, opened up near the close of the first half and on the short end of a 28-to-15 count at the intermission.

Marist continued its spectacular field goal shooting in the second half with Ray and Hoyt Lyle leading the attack. They scored 26 and 12 points, respectively, while Sunberg played a good defensive game at center. Edington and Stith led the attack for Russell.

Marist continued its spectacular field goal shooting in the second half with Ray and Hoyt Lyle leading the attack. They scored 26 and 12 points, respectively, while Sunberg played a good defensive game at center. Edington and Stith led the attack for Russell.

TECH DEFEATED BY GATOR FIVE; BULLDOGS WIN

Rally Gives Florida 39-31 Decision; Staters Lose, 26-20.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Florida's Gator cagers won their first conference game of the season here tonight by nailing out Georgia Tech, 39 to 31.

* First one team then the other forged slightly ahead and the half ended with the tally knotted at 15 all.

In the final half, Ben Clemens showed the way in offensive play, aided by Captain "Muddy" Waters, and the Gators pulled out in front. Clemens scored 14 of the Florida points. Perkins featured the Tech play, both offensive and defensive, although individual scoring honors for the visitors went to Waters.

LINEUP AND SUMMARY.
FLORIDA (39) G. T. TP.
Emmelhain, f. 10 14 2
Clemens, f. 8 12 1
Bradley, f. 1 0 0
Cherry, f. 1 0 0
Baker, f. 1 0 0
Pittman, f. 1 0 0
Dorsey, f. 1 0 0
Waters, f. 1 0 0
DeFord, f. 1 0 0
North, f. 1 0 0
Totals 39 31 2

Georgia Tech (31) G. T. TP.
Gooding, f. 10 14 2
McArthur, f. 4 10 1
Perkins, f. 1 0 0
Wages, c. 1 0 0
Phillips, f. 1 0 0
Sullivan, f. 1 0 0
Jones, f. 1 0 0
Totals 31 26 2

Bulldogs Beat Wolfpack, 26-20.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 13.—A ravening pack of wolves from North Carolina State and a growling kennel of Bulldogs with Georgia colors tangled up here tonight on Woodruff Hall court and the Bulldogs emerged victorious, 26-20, to take the lead in the Southern conference race with four wins and no losses on their record.

Starting their scoring a few minutes after the first half opened, the Bulldogs took the lead from the Carolina warriors and they managed to hold it throughout the game, with the pack unable to come up within more than four points of the fast-traveling Georgians.

"Sweet William" Strickland, the young man who alternated at center with "Catfish" Smith last season, who now plays forward, took the honors away from them all tonight when he dashed his way around the floor to account for 11 of Georgia's points and keep the ever-threatening Carolina State quintet from making too many points. Strickland was all over the court tonight as he spread joy in the Georgia camp and sent the pack into the depths of despair. He made the ball game tingle with action. The Wolfpack accounted for seven field goals during the entire game, and three of them were made by long shots from the center of the court. The Bulldog defense clicked like a 5-day clock, and trying to get through the five Georgia players gathered around the goal was like trying to break out of jail.

Five men played the entire game for Georgia without a substitute going in at any time. Ray Strickland and Tommy Moran divided the forward duties between them; Captain Sandy Sanford was at center and LeRoy Young and Tommy Reeder stayed at guard.

Strickland was the star scorer, but Sanford, Young and Reeder fell the tall one balls under the basket and he made lots of them good. Tommy Moran was all over the court tonight, but he left the heavy scoring to his teammates. LeRoy Young shot three himself, one of them coming from near the basket.

LINEUP AND SUMMARY.
GEORGIA (26) G. T. TP.
Moran, f. 10 14 2
Strickland, f. 8 12 1
Sanford, f. 1 0 0
Reeder, f. 1 0 0
Young, f. 1 0 0
Substitutions:—Clark (3), Grammer (1), Johnson, Gurnea (2), Third Score at half, 14-12; Georgia, 26-20; A. C. C. time, Broadland, scorer, Loker.

Panhandle Lady Wins Texas Derby

HOLLY SPRINGS, Miss., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Panhandle Lady, English setter, owned by J. W. Dickie, Jr., Amarillo, Texas, won the derby of the United States here today.

Handled by W. H. Warren, of Whiteville, Tenn., the bird dog won the final heat by beating the second place winner, Evergreen Jersey Mack, to a bevy of birds in the closing minutes after both had shown fine performances. Evergreen Jersey Mack, a pointer, is owned by P. S. Groves, Riverton, N. J., and was handled by Ed Farrell, Union Springs, Alabama.

Third place went to Sisco, a pointer, owned by H. M. Balch, Tulsa, Okla., and handled by Pete Dixon, of Catotosa, Okla.

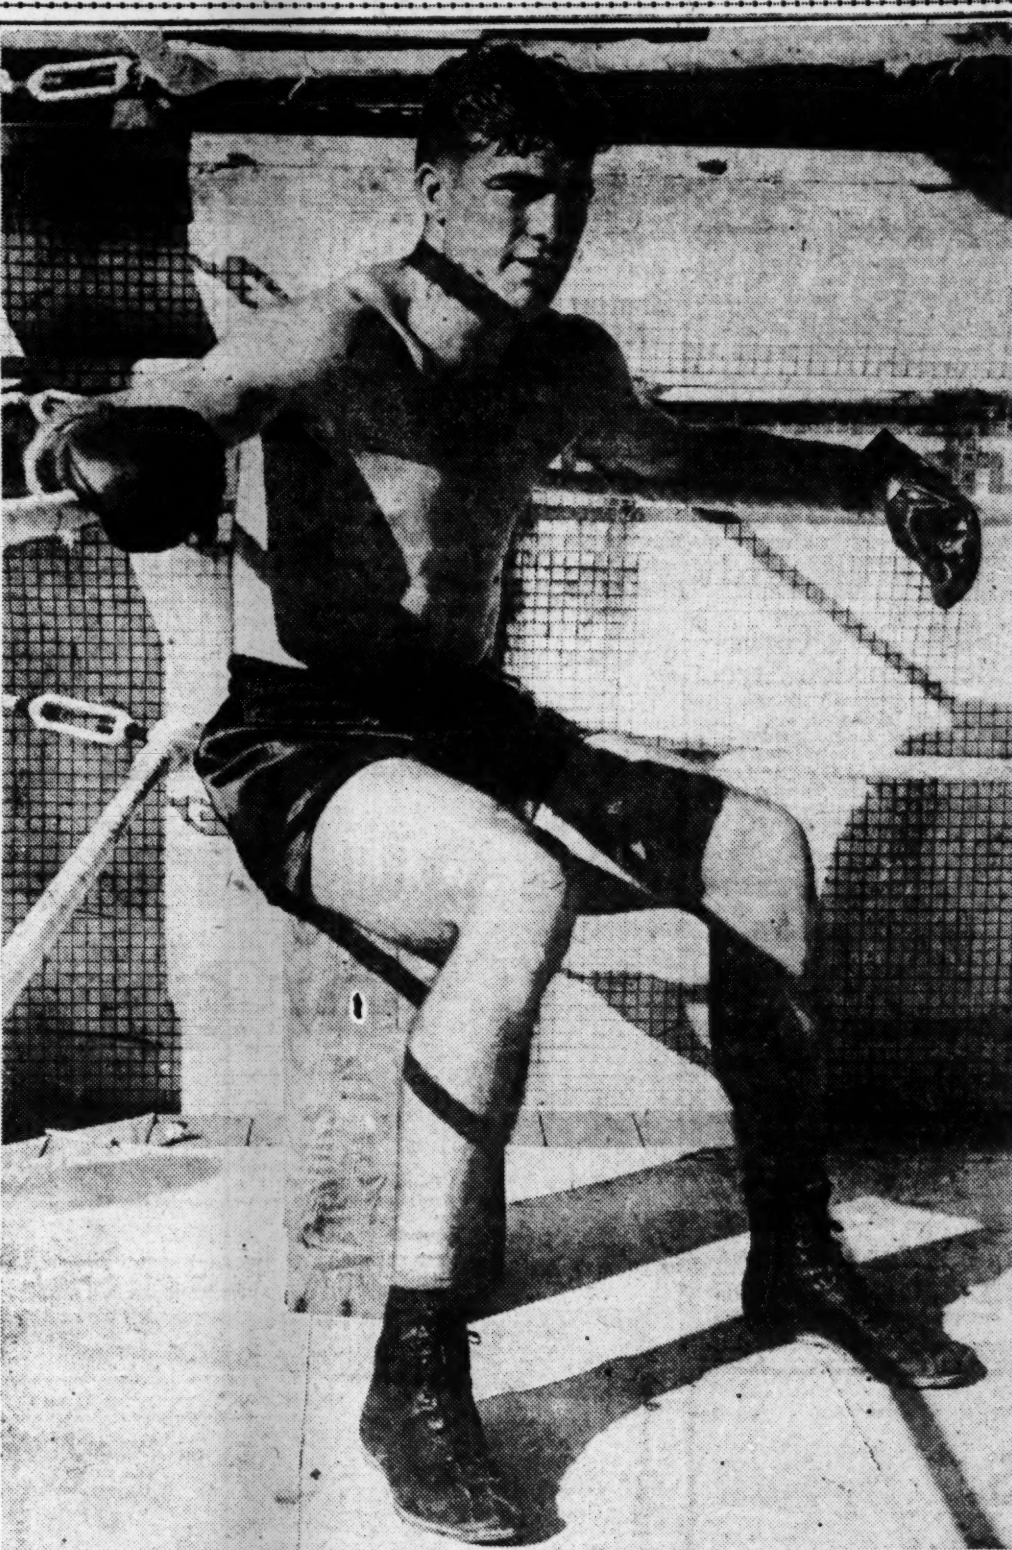

Evergreen Jersey Mack won first in the all-American stake here last week, and in the recent Cotton States trials.

With 29 dogs entered, an all-age stake will be completed here this week. The derby was for dogs not more than two years old.

Enright Is Free To Join Mehre

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Enright has been given a release from his contract by the University of North Carolina and will return to Athens this week to sign a contract. This is official as announced by H. J. Stegeman late today.

He'll Look Like This to Maxie in June

W. L. (Young) Stribling, of Macon, Ga., will be sitting right across the ring from Max Schmeling, of Germany, along about the latter part of June, according to papers signed by Pa Stribling and Joe Jacobs in New York late Tuesday afternoon. When Stribling stands up, he'll be seeking the world's heavyweight crown.

CIUCI WINS GOLF MEET IN FLORIDA

Bridgeport Pro, Pushed by Farrell and Hutchinson, Scores 213.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 13.—(UP)—Henry Ciuci, Bridgeport, Conn., shot a 74-70-69 for a 213 to win the second annual Fort Lauderdale open golf tournament today. He was awarded winner's prize of $300 and a gold medal.

Johnny Farrell, New York, former national open champion, had a 73-71-70 for the 54 holes, 214 to tie with Willie Klein, Miami, 71-71-72, for second place and $150.

Jack Hutchinson, Chicago, and George Christ, Rochester, earned in 215 for third prize, $87.50, and John Watson, South Bend, Ind., with 216, won $50 in fourth place.

CIUCI holed a 40-foot putt on the 54th green to nose out Farrell, who is rapidly gaining a reputation as a champion runner-up. Willie Klein carded several sixes in the final round to eliminate him from the title.

Watson finished by the light of automobile headlights.

Other leaders:
Jim Dante, medalist, Madison, N. J., 217
Clarence Gamber, Detroit, 217
Edna Hamann, Cleveland, 217
L. LaFont, Kansas City, 217
Willie Dow, Kansas City, 217
Ralph Kingard, Fargo, N. D., 218
Dannie Williams, Westfield, N. J., 218
John Schultz, Troy, N. Y., 219
Mae Miller, Norwich, N. J., 219
John Montross, Kansas, 220
Eddie Williams, Cleveland, 221
Denny Sullivan, Chicago, 221
Jack Cutler, Miami, 221
Eddie Lund, Greenfield, Conn., 222
Bill Thompson, Canton, Ohio, 222
Jim Noonan, Chicago, 222

Frank Ball Cards 225 in Tourney.

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla., Jan. 13.—Frank Ball, Atlanta professional, rimmed his 80 of yesterday twice today to flash under the wire in the Fort Lauderdale $1,500 open golf tourney here with a 54-hole total of 225.

Ball carded a 74 in his morning round and was but one stroke over par with a 71 this afternoon.

Old, Old Dream Comes True for 'Pa' Stribling

Hand That Waved Jim Jeffries on His Way Signs for Title Bout.

By Ralph McGill.

A LITTLE more than a quarter of a century ago, a stout young man watched James J. Jeffries, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, board a train at Thomasville, Ga.

Then and there a dream was born that lasted across a stretch of years, some of them cruel, some of them kind, some of them lean, some of them fat.

But the dream lasted and Tuesday afternoon, in a hotel room in New York, it came true: William Lawrence Stribling, of Ochlocknee, Ga., will fight Max Schmeling, of Germany, for the world's title in June.

THE stout young man who stared with big eyes at James J. Jeffries boarding a train was the man now internationally known as "Pa" Stribling, the father-manager of W. L. (Young) Stribling.

His father had forbade him becoming a prize-fighter. It was no profession for a bright young man, said the then senior Stribling.

"I made up my mind that night, after I had seen Jeffries in a play and followed him to the train, that if I ever married and had a son he would be a fighter," said "Pa" Stribling a few days ago as he prepared to go with New York to battle for his son's place in the sun.

GOOD TRAINING.
"Pa" Stribling did go on the stage with the girl he married. They became acrobats and as the family increased the children were added to the act.

As soon as the first one was able to raise his arms in the cradle a small pair of boxing gloves were tied on his hands. When he was able to join the act he boxed with his kid father.

"I used to get down on my knees and box with him," said "Pa." "Later on he boxed his brother. On Saturday nights we had kids in the towns we played come up and box with W. L."

BULLIES CAUGHT IT.
As the eldest Stribling boy grew larger many a town bully would be knocked kicking as a crowded house cheered.

"Stribling was slick then. He'd invite the boys up to box. With the aid of the manager the town 'tough boy' was always lured in. And 'Pa' always refused to let W. L. box him, claiming too much weight or something else. That is, he refused for the first night.

On Friday night, after the mid-

"Pa's" Conditions In Contract Met By Illinois Group

Jersey City Seen As Site of Battle—Winner Will Defend Title Against Primo Carnera in September.

By Ed Danforth, Constitution Sports Editor.

"They signed my contract—I didn't sign theirs." Pa Stribling's voice came tripping over the long distance telephone wire last night in glee as he told The Constitution about signing his son W. L. to fight Max Schmeling, of Germany, for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world. The fight will be held somewhere in June under auspices of the Milk Fund.

"They signed the contract I wanted, not the one they wanted," Pa went on. "And, oh, what a headache I have had. Why, the contracts they offered us were unheard of. They wanted to bind us so that if the United States went to war with Africa, I'd have to fight for Africa. They were going to fix it so that I might as well have turned The Boy over to them to manage. They planned to have us fight Schmeling first, then Carnera or anybody else they wanted to name and finally Sharkey or anybody else they might have in mind. All the money we could have made would have been tied up as guarantees for appearance.

"Well—of course, I was going to sign some kind of contract. 'Do you imagine I had any idea of not signing . . . passing up the champion and a shot with the big guy from Italy and then another sure-fire fight in 1932 with Sharkey or somebody else?' Not much. Of course I was going to sign.

"But, believe me, I have done more acting than Sarah Bernhardt ever did in any one week. I have been little Edwin Booth himself. I have registered at four different hotels under assumed names. But they had guys following me. Finally I just quit answering the telephone.

"But all of us got together tonight and signed up. There were people representing Schmeling, Carnera and the Milk Fund as well as myself. The whole sequence is all set. Nothing to do now but go back home and get ready for the battle."

Pa Stribling then told how they modified the terms of their earlier contracts so that the conditions did not work such a hardship on the Striblings.

Stribling and Schmeling will fight for the championship in June, probably about the third week, under the auspices of the New York Milk Fund committee. The Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois, a corporation formed by Tex Rickard to promote the Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago, is named officially as the promoter.

The place of the title fight has not been selected. It is said it will be held in Jersey City, or Detroit, or Cleveland, or Chicago. And he would not be surprised if it were the last-named place. However, it will not be in New York.

The winner of the fight—Pa signing an agreement for W. L. and Joe Jacobs for Schmeling—will meet Primo Carnera under the auspices of the Milk Fund again will have the champion—whether it be Stribling or Schmeling—to fight any opponent that will be mutually satisfactory to all parties.

"I expect to leave New York in a day or so," Pa went on. "We have contracts to look after such as moving picture rights and news syndicates. I feel like a load of bricks has been lifted off my back."

MAX IS TOUGH.
Pa was asked: "Has anybody considered that Schmeling might beat W. L.?"

"Say, ain't that funny? But nobody has considered that a possibility except my own. I think Schmeling will be a tough man to beat. Of course it is a question of what sort of shape he will be in, but if he is ready to fight, W. L. will have to be at his best to win."

Pa was asked if he had any money in the Luther Williams bank at Macon which was closed yesterday.

"You would bring that up," he exclaimed. "We had a fine break on that. Just before I left W. L. in Florida he told me he had loaned a friend of ours $5,000 out of that bank, and he asked me to take care of it. I told him I would make a deposit at once. And he said, 'Don't forget to make that deposit. So we had only a few hundred dollars in it.'"

So Pa will be coming home to his farm near Thomasville in a day or so to begin acting ready for the big event. He has landed a championship match for his boy and lined up two tremendous bouts for him in case he wins. The goose is threatening high. The fairy story has just about come true.

Third Week in June Slated for Battle.

BY HERBERT W. BARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer.
NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, of Germany, will defend his heavyweight title against W. L. (Young) Stribling, of Macon, Ga., next June, and the winner will face Primo Carnera, giant Italian carpenter, in September, under terms of a contract signed by the interested parties late today.

The three-cornered contract was signed on behalf of Schmeling, Stribling and Carnera with the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois after a series of conferences in which one obstacle after another threatened to bring negotiations to a dead stop.

Briefly the contract calls for Stribling and Schmeling to meet in June, and the winner to fight Carnera in September. A third verbal stipulation was that the ultimate survivor of these two matches would defend the title for the Milk Fund alone in 1932.

Neither the exact date nor the site for the Stribling-Schmeling bout was fixed, but observers in touch with the situation understood that the third week in June had been decided upon.

The games with Newark and Boston would be played late in March if arranged.

JACK WASHBURN MEETS DEFEAT

Texas Wins Straight Falls; Zaharias Throws Gene LaGene.

Paul Harper wore down the giant Jack Washburn Tuesday night at the auditorium and won in straight falls. George Zaharias, "The Human Truck," won from Gene LaGene in the semi-windup. It was a one-fall match.

Both matches pleased a large crowd that gathered to witness the double-header.

Harper really won three falls. His match with Washburn, in which he gave away 20 pounds, saw the big fellow from the west subject him to some rough treatment. Washburn showed a really vicious armlock that caused Harper considerable trouble. He also indulged in some extra rough tactics which earned some boos from the crowd.

After 24 minutes of wrestling that was furious and chock full of action, Harper grabbed Washburn with a croch hold and heaved him up. The ropes were at hand and all of Washburn's 6 feet and 3 inches went hurtling four feet to the floor.

He failed to return to the ring by a count of 10 and claimed that he was illegally thrown over the ropes, contrary to the rules. The fall had already been awarded to Harper. Harper, however, gained the referee's consent and went after Washburn again. The big fellow's hip had been hurt in the fall and he failed to escape the maddest rush of Harper, who grabbed another croch hold, spun him around in the airplane spin and pinned him with a body block as the crowd stood up and screamed in delight.

Washburn came back despite his bad hip and punished Harper with some front headlocks. He began a series of flying mares and Harper was able to apply the hook scissors hold. He held it for about three minutes before he was able to pin the giant from the coast.

The semi-windup was exciting throughout. Both LaGene and Zaharias went at it hammer and tongs and the latter, with a series of headlocks after 38 minutes of wrestling.

The opening preliminary was the best of the winter season with A. E. Bell and George Harbin wrestling to a draw. Bell looked much better so far as style was concerned.

Florida Schedules 20 Baseball Games

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—A 21-game schedule has been arranged for the University of Florida baseball nine. Two additional games with the Boston Braves and the Newark Bears are pending.

April 24—Georgia in Gainesville.
April 25—Georgia Tech in Gainesville.
April 26—Georgia in Athens.
April 27—Georgia Tech in Atlanta.
April 28—Georgia in Atlanta.
May 1—Auburn in Gainesville.
May 2—Oglethorpe in Gainesville.
May 3—Auburn in Panama City.
May 11—Mercer in Macon.
May 12—Mercer in Gainesville.

The games with Newark and Boston would be played late in March if arranged.

Stribling and Schmeling Sign for Championship Bout In June

WINNER MEETS PRIMO CARNERA IN TITLE BOUT

Date and Site To Be Named Later; Sharkey Left in Cold.

Continued from First Sport Page.

and that the site would be either Jersey City or Detroit.

Selection of Jersey City as the place for the battle depended, it was said, upon whether a new stadium to seat something like 100,000 persons would be constructed in time. In the event that it is, the second match of the series, Carnera against Stribling or Schmeling, also might be held there.

If it is found that Jersey City cannot be selected, Detroit was understood to be the second choice. Some experts clung to the belief that before the selection is finally made, Chicago would be suggested as the logical place. Soldier's field in that city would accommodate about 125,000 and was the scene of the greatest promotional triumph of the late Tex Rickard's career—the second Dempsey-Tunney fight.

The odd quirk in the contract was insisted upon by Carnera's representatives, Leon See and Billy Duffy. They had inserted in the agreement a provision granting Carnera the right, should he win the championship, to fight at intervals of 30 days should he so desire. See and Duffy asserted that the big Venetian would want to fight often even should he capture the title.

NO OTHER FIGHTS. Neither Stribling nor Schmeling will engage in any bouts until they clash for the title.

The entrance of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of New York into the negotiations may bring down upon the New York state athletic commission, both Schmeling and Carnera are under suspension in this state and a commission rule provides for the suspension of any promoter or organization which deals with a boxer on the ineligible list.

Bill Carey, of the Madison Square Garden Corporation of New York, took no part in the negotiations. He has maintained that the Illinois corporation is a separate organization with a perfect legal right to deal with any boxer so long as it obeys the rules and regulations of the Illinois boxing commission. Just what answer the New York commission will make to this claim remains to be seen but forecasts tonight were that some action would be forthcoming when the solons meet tomorrow.

The Illinois corporation was organized by Rickard to handle the second Dempsey-Tunney match as a gesture of friendliness to the Illinois boxing commission.

Another of the interesting angles was the complete exclusion of Jack Sharkey, Boston sailorman, from the picture. The New York commission, when it recently relieved Schmeling of his title in this state, designated Sharkey as the outstanding contender and announced it would recognize as champion the winner of a match between Sharkey and Stribling.

Frowns Now

Jack Sharkey was all smiles when this picture was made but he's all frowns now. He was left out in the cold, as the boys on the corner say, yesterday when "Pa" Stribling, manager of Young Stribling, made the "Big Boy" of the fight game sign his contract for a championship fight with Max Schmeling in June.

Basketball

CHESTER GIRLS' LEAGUE.
CENTRAL (13) Pos. ASSO. R. (12)
Holmes (2) E. Young (12)
Harris (6) L. F. H. Flaxico (4)
Phillips (7) C. E. Flaxico (8)
Barner (5) E. G. Young (8)
Chambliss (4) E. G. Young (8)
Substitutions: Central Presbyterian, Arwood, Riderberg, Associate Reformed Presbytery, none. Referee, Gage.

FTREE (23) Pos. DECATUR (8)
Dildy (6) E. F. Bennett (4)
Thompson (4) L. F. Rowland (1)
Ellis (4) L. F. Rowland (1)
Pineau (4) E. G. Roberts (3)
Webb (5) L. G. Hanson (3)
Substitutions: Peachtree Christian, B. Barber (5), S. Barber (4), Walters, Decatur Presbyterian, Harper, Referee, Wells.

J. DE LEON (8) Pos. W. HOTS (25)
Miller (23) E. F. Bennett (4)
Shoup (1) L. F. Dildy (7)
Morris (4) L. F. Rowland (1)
Mathis (4) E. G. Jones (6)
Pickert (4) L. G. Rogers (3)
Substitutions: Ponce de Leon Baptist, Jones (1), White, Western Heights Baptist, Stewart (3), Garner, Referee, Wells.

CITY LEAGUE. GULF (25)
Ratz (3) E. Clark (4)
Mayo (4) F. Tinsley (4)
White (8) E. G. O'Connor (14)
Towers (3) G. O'Connor (14)
Cupland (8) E. G. O'Connor (14)
Substitutions: 1224 Infantry, Bettall (4), Gulf, Cordell, Referee, Doyal, Umpire, Hammond.

1ST NAT. (21) Pos. POWER CO. (22)
McConnell (10) E. J. Goolaby (2)
M. Adams (6) F. Thompson (3)
Coffman (4) G. Goolaby (15)
Curry (1) G. Goolaby (15)
E. Adams (6) G. Carter (1)
Substitutions: First National, S. Adams, Vinings, Power Co., Caudle, Thornton (2), Referee, Hammond, Umpire, Doyal.

JR. CHAM (35) Pos. Gasco (17)
Englin (23) E. Davis (15)
Green (4) E. Davis (15)
Cook (4) E. Davis (15)
Morris (2) E. Davis (15)
Laffler (4) E. Davis (15)
Waxelbaum (4) E. Davis (15)
Echols (1) E. Davis (15)
Referee, Gasco, Doyal, Umpire, Hammond.

JACK DEMPSEY IS CHALLENGED BY BOSTON GOB

Sharkey Answers Mauler's Boast With Demand for Early Battle.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—(UP)—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, today openly challenged Jack Dempsey, former world's heavyweight champion, to a bout to be held "in the United States within a period of six weeks."

In a telegram to Dempsey at Hartford, Conn., where the erstwhile titleholder was scheduled to referee a bout tonight, Sharkey said:

"In view of your recent statement to the effect that you believe you can knock me out, I hereby challenge you to meet me in a bout to be staged in the United States within a period of six weeks."

"You have always claimed you regretted you failed to enlist for service when the United States entered the World War. If you are sincere in your present stand, I now offer you an opportunity to meet me in a bout which will be promoted to relieve the suffering of the unemployed and wounded veterans of the World War."

"It was my privilege to serve in the navy at $30 a month for four years, but I still feel I owe a duty to my fellow countrymen to do what I can to help them in the present national emergency."

"I realize that your recent attack on me was inspired and worded for you by those selfish interests who would thrust a Schmeling-Stribling bout on the city of Chicago."

"I await your answer to my challenge. I know that millions of unemployed and those boys who were wounded in real battles will also be interested in your reply."

College Park Girls Beat Gordon Street

Fighting doggedly all the way, the College Park Methodist girls' team of the Cherokee League turned in a victory over the Gordon Street Presbyterian girls of the City League in the finale to the Tuesday night Cherokee League program.

LINEUP AND SUMMARY:
C. P. K. (14) Pos. G. S. P. (12)
Fullen (2) E. F. Carlton (4)
Walker (5) L. F. Turner (3)
Sherraz (6) C. Cunningham (1)
Dalsch (1) E. G. Caldwell (2)
Burnett (1) E. G. Hendrix (2)

Pee-Wee Golf Loop Formation Is Seen

This competitive age! Now it's pee-wee golf! Plans were announced Tuesday for the formation of a Junior Chamber of Commerce Miniature Golf League, with a probable list of 10 five-man teams to participate. Definite word as to the project is expected to come from the Jaycee luncheon Thursday noon.

The Nineteenth Hole is pushing the Jaycee plans as well as others which may lead to the forming of several other leagues.

Old, Old Dream Comes True for 'Pa' Stribling

Hand That Waved Jim Jeffries on His Way Signs for Title Bout.

week opening, the "tough boy," sure that the boxer at the show was afraid of him, would be up again. By this time the audience was yelling for the fight. And "Pa," apparently troubled, would announce that the two would fight on Saturday night.

ALREADY MANAGING. "Pa" was caged. Saturday would find the house jammed. The ring, with its velvet ropes and polished brass standards, would be wheeled out and W. L. would knock that "tough boy" kicking.

Great days they were, the Striblings are still trouping. "Ma" Stribling, who looks not more than a year or so older than her 26-year-old son who is to fight for the world's title, has followed the trail all the way. She and "Pa" have become famous.

They are fine people, the Striblings. Somehow all their trafficking up and down the world and all the contact with the great of the ring and the world that flocks to see the ring, has not touched them.

They never got contaminated with the New York and Chicago boxing rings. They never "cut in" with the promoters and the "fixers." This kept them out, made them the victims of much unfair publicity. It created unusual barriers for them to surmount.

When "Pa" went to New York last week he was threatened and cajoled. They threatened to take the fight away, to give it to another. "Pa" was by himself but he stuck by his guns and Tuesday afternoon, shortly after milking time, the dream came true.

SAME HAND. The hand that waved farewell to James J. Jeffries at the Thomasville, Ga., railroad station more than 25 years ago signed the papers for a world's title fight.

There is something fine about it, something of real sentiment. Without being maudlin or without over-emphasizing the thing one might venture that the chunky little Georgian's first thought was one of relief and then of "Ma" and the kid in the cradle on whom he had tied a pair of toy boxing gloves 26 years ago.

Boston Golfer Wins Medal at Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 13.—(AP) The new ball, used in the annual mid-January golf tournament today for the first time in a major event here, apparently proved quite a problem for the 40 contestants in the event.

Although the day was very calm and the weather was excellent, the scores were so high that an 85, carded by George A. Law, Jr., of Boston, won the qualifying round of the tournament. Entrants taking as many as 96 strokes on the 18-hole round qualified for the championship division of eight.

In the first round match play tomorrow Law will meet C. B. S. Marr, of Carnoustie, Scotland. Other pairings are:

W. D. Hyatt, Toledo, versus T. R. Ruddle, Chicago; H. G. Phillips, New York, versus A. B. Jenks, Manchester, N. H., and T. H. Somerville, Wilmington, Del., versus H. C. Buckminster, Boston.

COACH CANNON STARTS EMORY PRE-MED WORK

Year and Half of Preliminaries Face New Jack-et Mentor.

By Max Hall.

John Joseph (Jack) Cannon, the former All-American star of Notre Dame, who is under contract to coach Tech's line next fall, is now attending classes in the college of arts and sciences at Emory University, where he will complete his pre-medical studies before entering the Emory medical school.

Contrary to report, Cannon will not enter the medical school next fall. It will take the balance of this school year and probably all of next to complete enough pre-medical work to enable him to enter the medical school, according to Emory authorities.

Cannon got his A. B. degree at Notre Dame when he was tearing up opposing backfields at that institution, but his course was not pre-medical.

The new Tech coach conferred with Emory authorities Monday and Tuesday and signed up for first-year biology and first-year physics. He is rated as an unclassified student at the registrar's office. After a degree at Notre Dame and a year of coaching the freshman team at Auburn he is now again taking two subjects with little college freshmen. These medical students have a hard road to travel.

STILL TIME. At that, Cannon is only 22 years old, and he has plenty of time. He feels that while coaching at Tech he can use his spare time in no better way than to go to school.

Cannon stated that he attended lectures in several courses last year at Auburn when he was coaching the baby Tigers, but he was not registered as a student and received no credit for his work.

Alexander's newest assistant was born in Columbus, Ohio, and still calls that city his home.

He still intends to become a doctor, and is planning to enter the Emory medical school in 1932, or just as soon as he can get credit for enough undergraduate science.

If he hits those books as hard as he hits footballs, he should be a good doctor, should John Joseph Cannon.

Short Sport News

DUNN IS MANGAER.

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The Boston American says Dick Dunn, of the Olympia Club of Detroit, has been made general manager of the Boston Garden. John H. O'Brien, now general manager, the American says, will remain in an executive capacity.

Official announcement of the appointments would be made within a few days. Frank Joyce, assistant to the vice president of the Boston and Maine railroad, will become president of the Garden corporation.

ROMANO WINS.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Mike Romano, Chicago, heavyweight wrestler, defeated Joe Vargo, Austrian, in straight falls here tonight. Romano downed Vargo in 26 minutes in the first fall and hurled him to the canvas in 53 seconds in the second.

In the semi-windup, Bill Middlekauff, former University of Florida football player, threw Virgo Wilcox, Tulsa, Okla., in 14 minutes.

THALER WINS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—"Cowboy Red" Thaler, 175, from Phoenix, Ariz., spotted George Gemas, 185, Philadelphia, 10 pounds tonight in the main bout on the American Legion program here and then methodically beat him down to his size and knocked him out in the sixth round. Thaler had Gemas on the floor in every round.

RENAME FIELD.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Crescent Lake park here, winter training camp of the New York Yankees, is to be renamed "Huggins Field" in memory of the late Miller Huggins, manager of the five times pennant winners.

SPORTS HALTED.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Officials of the University of Richmond announced today that all athletic contests and public gatherings on the school's program have been canceled or postponed during the next two weeks on account of the discovery of a case of smallpox in the student body.

If he hits those books as hard as he hits footballs, he should be a good doctor, should John Joseph Cannon.

the Emory medical school in 1932, or just as soon as he can get credit for enough undergraduate science.

If he hits those books as hard as he hits footballs, he should be a good doctor, should John Joseph Cannon.

TUNNEY NOW FREE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—For the first time since he earned it, Gene Tunney was free today to enjoy whatever remains of the $1,715,833.54 he collected as world heavyweight champion, without having to worry about some of it being taken away from him.

The last of the lawsuits against him—lawsuits which began almost as soon as he won the championship and which, had he lost them, would have taken practically all of his earnings—was dropped today by Max (Boo-Boo) Hoff, Philadelphia promoter, who was suing for 20 per cent of Gene's bank roll.

SUN BEAU ENTERS RACE.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 13.—(AP) Sun Beau, one of the outstanding horses in America, will compete in the Azusa Caliente handicap March 22, J. H. Crofton, general manager of the Azusa Caliente Jockey Club, announced today.

Crofton said he had received a telegram from W. S. Crawford, trainer for Willis Sharpe Kilmer, owner of the great thoroughbred, saying Sun Beau would arrive here February 1 to go into training.

Top weight of 120 pounds was assigned to Sun Beau.

JERSEY DOGS LEAD.

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 13.—(AP) Competition in the all-age stake of the Pinehurst Field Trial Club was started today with 24 of the 28 dogs entered completing their runs. The remaining four are scheduled to go out tomorrow.

At the close of the all-age stake, the derby event of the Field Trial Club will be run.

TARHEELS WIN.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Jan. 13.—(AP)—North Carolina's basketball team ran roughshod over South Carolina tonight to win, 38 to 8.

The Old Kentucky Way.

Chapure Colors, Mellow, Flavors—No Drugs—No Filtering—More efficient than other methods. Sold by leading Drug and Cigar Stores. Try it today. The Chapure Co., Decatur, Ga.

"You are to be commended for this public service"

Says
DR. A. F. ADAMS
City Health Officer, Reno, Nevada

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. Adams' letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. Adams writes: "The use of the word 'spit' forcibly calls attention to the evils of the 'spit-tipping' methods."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

CITY BOARD OF HEALTH
CITY HALL
RENO, NEVADA

September 23, 1930.

The American Cigar Company,
111 Fifth Avenue,
New York, New York.

Gentlemen:
Your very effective campaign in the newspapers against "spit-tipping" by some cigar manufacturers is decidedly in the interest of the public health and in my opinion you are to be commended for this public service.

The use of the word "spit" forcibly calls attention to the evils of the "spit-tipping" methods and no other word could as effectively get over your message to the public.

Our health department is interested in those campaigns which tend to improve general health conditions and in our opinion your present campaign comes within this classification.

Therefore since I consider your campaign to be in the interest of public health since it directs attention to a bad sanitary condition in some cigar manufacturing plants, you have my permission to use this letter if my statement is of value to you.

Sincerely yours,
A. F. Adams
City Health Officer.

LEW ADLER'S
TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY SALE
MEN'S OVERCOATS
(Entire Stock)

regularly $30-$35	NOW $19.75
regularly $45-$50	NOW $29.75
regularly $60	NOW $39.75
regularly $65-$75	NOW $48.75

ALL OVERCOATS IN STOCK WERE PURCHASED FOR THIS SEASON AND ARE THE LATEST MODELS AND EXCLUSIVE PATTERNS OFFERED ONLY BY LEW ADLER.

NO CHARGES NO APPROVALS
LEW ADLER
Outfitters to Gentlemen
113 Peachtree St. Opposite Piedmont Hotel

In this period of cold weather and cracked lips, above all insist on a cigar—free of the spit germ.

Certified
Cremo
... THE GOOD 5¢ CIGAR THAT AMERICA NEEDED

General Pershing Finds America's Military Forces Very Poorly Armed, Equipped

Continued from First Page.

their representatives to earlier action.

Thus the deeper we went into the situation the more overwhelming the work ahead of us seemed to be. As the degree of its accomplishment within a reasonable time would be the measure of our aid to the allies, extreme haste in our preparation was urgent.

We were called upon to make up in a few months for the neglect of years during which smug complacency had prevented the most effective efforts toward a reasonable precaution to meet such an emergency.

Among other subjects considered with the secretary was the assembly for training of the national guard and the men to come in under the draft. The organization of our army had never been based upon the tactical requirements of battle, but we still retained our troops at small posts, as in the days of Indian warfare. Some of these were convenient enough, and although they lacked sufficient barracks and training areas for units as large as a division they could have been advantageously used in the earlier stages of training up to the limits of their accommodations.

In lieu of any previous plans, the secretary contemplated the construction of cantonments in different parts of the country, and May 7 the commanding generals of the several departments were directed to select sites.

The actual construction of cantonments was not begun until nearly three months after we were in the war, and so great was the task of erecting buildings and putting in waterworks and sewers that some ninety days more elapsed before these centers of instruction were ready to receive troops. Thus it was, with some exceptions, practically six months before the training of our army was under way. Even then several of these camps were not favorably located, and training was seriously handicapped during the fall and winter months.

About this time the allies brought up the question of utilizing our men to build up the armies. As we were the subject arose from time to time in one form or another, and we had to fight against it until the end of the war.

Both the French and British missions, under Mr. Rene Viviani and Mr. Arthur G. Balfour, respectively, then in our country, were very keen to have us consent to fill up the ranks of their armies with Americans. The French really wanted us to send small, untrained units for incorporation in their divisions. Their views were clearly set forth in a memorandum by the French general staff which was presented by their military attaché.

Marshal Joseph Joffre, of the French mission, however, evidently learned that such a proposal would not appeal to us, so he suggested that we also organize our own divisions, and urged the one division be organized immediately to stimulate French morale, which they frankly confessed was then at low ebb. In addition, he asked for 50,000 men for service on their railways and in the shops, including trained personnel for their medical units.

Asked 80,000 Workmen. There was another proposal known as the General Nivelle scheme in which it was requested that we send 80,000 men to perform various kinds of work. The following paragraph was in the French attitude which may follow a neglected copy to command as well as their view regarding the urgency of their requirements:

"In order that there may not be any officers of higher rank than the French officers, who are to be called upon to work it is preferable that in the different units there should not be for the present any officer above the rank of captain. When the units will become sufficiently numerous to require superior officers these can be chosen from the captains of existing units."

A definite proposal that our men should be drafted into the British army was also pressed by the military representative with the British mission, Major General Scott as follows, in part:

"If you ask me how your force could most quickly be increased in Europe, I would say by sending 500,000 untrained men at once to our depots in England to be trained there, and drafted into our armies in France. This is the view of the British command-in-chief in France and the chief of the imperial general staff (Sir Douglas Haig and Sir W. Robertson), their reasons being that we are short of men, the war is at a critical stage, and we are yet to be able to turn the scale and force a decision during the summer, and every day counts."

You will have the language difficulty to contend with if your divisions go to the French. The French have very few English-speaking officers; not so many as they think. A good instructor can indeed seldom speak English, and men will soon get tired of being instructed through interpreters.

We have been told that the sentiments in this country is in favor of fighting with and for the French. We understand the sentiment. . . I think I have made it clear there are serious military disadvantages, and you will be sacrificing some of your efficiency for this sentiment, and making, in my opinion, the task of your commanders and staff more difficult in the field. Once you had a sufficient force in France, however, it would be quite feasible to place your army between the French and ourselves, where it could, if so desired, be under French direction, and supplied by us. . .

We would be glad if you would consider the question of allowing recruiting of American citizens for the British, Canadian and French armies, from the surplus you will have over your requirements. We are all going to suffer from a shortage after this summer's fighting. . .

General Bridges requested that, in event we could not see our way clear to draft men as individuals, then minor units, such as battalions and regiments, should be incorporated in British divisions. . .

I was decidedly against our becoming a recruiting agency for either the French or British, and at that time this was the attitude of the war department also. While fully realizing the difficulties, it was definitely understood between the secretary of war and me that we should proceed to organize our own units from top to bottom and not a distinctive army of our own as rapidly as possible.

The evident rivalry between the British and French for control and the lack of co-operation between them. Their efforts were often separate and distinct, that is, first one and then the other would make a proposal. Generally speaking, such methods could not seriously affect the enemy, who would thus be at liberty to utilize the spoils of either one or the other. I had often remarked that the allies would never win the war until they secured unity of action under some form of co-ordinated control.

First Meeting With Joffre. My first meeting with Marshal Joffre was during his farewell call on the secretary of war late in May. I entered just as he and his party were leaving the department. He was in a very good mood, and expressed the hope of seeing American troops on the western front very soon. . .

Here was one of France who, as commander-in-chief of the French army for nearly three years, had made his name immortal, appealing for military assistance from me, and yet designated to be commander-in-chief of an army not yet in existence. . .

Another friend who was most anxious to join my headquarters was William Straight, whom I had known in Manchuria during the Russo-Japanese war. Although his request could not be granted, he came to France with me, and he was very efficient in the army and with the peace commission, being a duty with the latter at the time of his death.

Lloyd Griscom, with whom I had been pleasantly associated when he was my minister and I was military attaché to Tokyo, asked to join me, but it was impossible to arrange it. When he came over later as adjutant of the 7th division, I at once detailed him as representative at the war office in London.

A few days before my departure, while at lunch at the Metropolitan Club with Charles E. Magoon, ex-governor of Ohio, and a similar group of friends in the days when we were together at Lincoln, Neb., Magoon and I discussed the situation in France, and he had knowledge of his business ability and experience, and knew that he would be valuable in some position requiring his qualifications, so I spoke to the secretary of war and suggested that he be sent to France.

Requests from national guard officers and from governors for the early acceptance of their state units were numerous. The secretary was very sympathetic, and he was very happy to conceive the idea of forming a composite division of units from every state in the Union. I thought the suggestion a good one and gave it my hearty endorsement. This was in the origin of the 42d (Rainbow) division, which was later distinguished in several engagements.

TOMORROW: General Pershing meets President Wilson, sets orders and sails for England.

As Uncle Sam Picked Soldiers By Number

1	21	41	61	81	101	121	141	161	181	201	221	241	261	281	301	321	341	361	381	401	421	441	461	481	501	521	541	561	581	601	621	641	661	681	701	721	741	761	781	801	821	841	861	881	901	921	941	961	981	1001
1	21	41	61	81	101	121	141	161	181	201	221	241	261	281	301	321	341	361	381	401	421	441	461	481	501	521	541	561	581	601	621	641	661	681	701	721	741	761	781	801	821	841	861	881	901	921	941	961	981	1001

Newton D. Baker, then secretary of war, shown blindfolded in a drawing for the draft. (P. & A. photo.)

In Georgia's Legislative Halls

Vigorous demand by county commissioners and others for all sections of Georgia led him to introduce a bill Tuesday in the senate for restoration of the lash or whip in Georgia, charged Senator King, of the eleventh, said. The lash was abolished by an executive order of Governor Tom Hardwick nearly nine years ago. Senator King, who introduced the bill, said it was more humane than the present sweatbox used on chain gangs, and will get results where the sweatbox and other methods of punishment have failed. The bill would give the courts power to order the lash in cases of public nuisance, commerce and labor, county and public matters, penitentiary, pension and public property committees.

The Young Men's Club of Brunswick is opposed to highway fund day in a resolution signed by Albert Fendley, Way Highsmith, B. F. Mann and D. W. Krapas.

E. L. Walker, of Morgan county, Tuesday took his seat as a member of the house, succeeding the late John Bostwick. Walker was sworn in by Judge Alexander H. Stephens, of the court of appeals.

School teachers of Morgan county Tuesday sent a resolution to the state senate asking that the state make possible the payment of all unpaid 1931 appropriations and not to reduce the 1931 appropriation.

The Cornelia Kiwanis Club Tuesday asked the senate to add the Alto tuberculosis sanitarium by adding 5 per cent to the sales tax on cigarettes, the revenue to go to the sanitarium.

Senator Leon L. Peebles, of the 1st district, Tuesday was granted leave of absence. His father is ill, and the senate adopted a resolution extending its sympathy.

Live within their means be applied to the commonwealth's problem. "So far as imposing a tax on luxuries," Mr. Howell said, as he digressed from his argument for the telegraph company, "there is only one luxury left that can stand the gaff and that is the bootlegger."

Culpepper Bill Debated. The house spent more than two hours Tuesday in debating the Culpepper bill, which was devoted to debating an amendment to the Culpepper Confederate pension bill on the reduction of the pension from $100 to $75.

Calling up the Culpepper measure, which was to have received final action on its third reading, the house resolved itself into a committee on the bill, and the amendment was taken up.

Kennedy Champions Bill. Championing his own bill, which would pay a 2-cent per kilowatt tax on electricity, Kennedy introduced a bill Tuesday in the house to levy a 1,000 cubic feet upon gas and levy a 4 per cent tax on the earnings of telegraph and telephone companies.

No action was taken either on the amendment or the bill as a whole and the matter went over until a later date.

The house committee on highways in a 20-minute session voted 30 to 3 against a bill to levy $6,000,000 from the highway department, and 18 to 16 against a measure which would have made it necessary for each driver of an automobile to procure a driver's license.

First Action on Diversion. The motion on the highway funds provided that the bill be reported out of the committee with a recommendation that it do not pass. The vote was the first official record of the extra session of sentiment on the question of diverting highway money for payment of general state deficits, a subject which figured prominently in the 1930 campaign for the governorship.

The bill was introduced by Representative Wesley R. Walker, of Ben Hill county, early last week and provides that $3,000,000 be diverted this year and $5,000,000 in 1932. The money would be placed in the general treasury and used to meet unpaid appropriations.

When the highway committee convened in the assembly room of the public service commission Mr. Walker was not present. Members voted to record him as favoring the bill, however, and Representative L. L. Patton, of Lanier, then moved that it be reported out with the recommendation that it do not pass. Only Representative W. C. Kinnard, of Coweta, voted against the motion, their votes, with the one cast for Mr. Walker, making the three in opposition.

Redwine Presents Bill. A similar bill, but calling for diversion of $5,000,000 instead of $6,000,000 for payment of state debts, was introduced by Senator Redwine and several others in the senate and was scheduled for hearing Tuesday. Death of a brother of Senator Terrell, of the thirty-sixth district, caused postponement, however, until today.

The diversion bill has another chance of being brought to the floor of the house, however, providing a minority report be filed with the majority report giving the vote today. No intimation was given if such a report would be filed.

During the 1930 gubernatorial campaign George H. Carswell advocated diversion of automobile license fees, amounting to approximately $5,000,000 for payment of state debts and Richard B. Russell, Jr., who was elected governor after a runner campaign, opposed such a plan. Mr. Russell has stated that he would fight any diversion measure in the present extra session of the legislature. One important financial measure and a bill to regulate operations of motor buses and trucks were introduced Tuesday, the former in the house and the bus bill in the senate.

The financial bill was by Representative Key, of Jasper county, which would amend the constitution to authorize the general assembly to classify property for taxation.

Chief among its three important phases was one to tax intangibles at the rate of 5 mills on the dollar, and to provide for exemption of forest lands and limit the state tax on real estate and tangible personal property to one mill.

Senator Whaley, of the fifth district, is author of the motor bus and truck regulation measure which would limit the speed of such vehicles, depending on the weight of the carrier, from 20 to 30 miles an hour, for the use of speed governors to be placed on all freight and passenger cars operated within the state.

Carriers would be limited to the use of speed governors to be placed on all freight and passenger cars operated within the state. Freight carriers weighing more than 14,000 pounds.

Carrying of baggage on the top or sides of buses would be limited to such luggage weighing not more than 50 pounds.

Size of Vehicles. Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

The trailer to not longer than 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

Size of these vehicles would be limited to those not more than 96 inches, wide, 12 feet high and 30 feet in length and where there is a trailer, 45 feet. The trailer to not longer than 45 feet.

General Hugh Scott Answers Pershing's Charge That Staff Lacked Foresight in War

Editor's Note: No man in the United States has a greater personal interest in the general staff of the United States army than General Hugh L. Scott. At the time General Scott was chief of staff, he knew better than anybody else why the United States was not more adequately prepared for the war than it was. He knew better than anybody else why the United States was not more adequately prepared for the war than it was. He knew better than anybody else why the United States was not more adequately prepared for the war than it was.

BY HUGH L. SCOTT.
Former Chief of Staff and Major General U. S. A., Retired.
(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

PHILADELPHIA, N. J., Jan. 13.—I have just read the opening chapters of the memoirs of General Pershing. In them, I find some strictures against the conduct of the war department and the general staff, of which I was chief, prior to our actual entrance into the war. On these strictures I wish to comment, in a friendly and by no means captious or controversial spirit, not only on my own account, but on account also of my comrades in the war department.

I have admired General Pershing ever since our first meeting and recommended him for command, but in Mexico and France, and always rejoice that I did so. In his conduct of the part we took during the war in France, he held high the Americanism against strong opposition that might have crushed a weaker man; maintained his point for an American army and brought back a wonderful victory. Our army in the great war of all times, for which the American people owe him an eternal gratitude and admiration, in which I share.

The conduct of our army during the war of all times, for which the American people owe him an eternal gratitude and admiration, in which I share. The conduct of our army during the war of all times, for which the American people owe him an eternal gratitude and admiration, in which I share.

Compromise Act. In his first chapter General Pershing says that "congress passed a compromise act, but scarcely a move was made to carry it out prior to our actual entrance into war." While I have no papers at hand for reference, my memory tells me that the act General Pershing refers to was passed at a time when congress had no thought of war—and it was a peace-time force by increments from time to time and the provision of the act had been carried out as far as proper time arrived.

As for sending a political army to France, there was no disposition to do this in the mind of anybody in the war department. All the better informed officers in the regular army, such as General Pershing himself, were fully conversant with the mistakes made in our former war, and I was fully determined, so far as my power should go, that these mistakes should not be repeated in this war. They were not repeated, because I was thoroughly supported in this by the secretary of war and the president—without whom I would have been unable to accomplish a thing.

Not Made Clear. General Pershing does not make himself clear when he says in Chapter Two: "It had been apparent for months that we were likely to be forced into a war, and a state of war had actually existed for several weeks, yet scarcely a start had been made to prepare for it. The war department seemed to be suffering from a kind of inertia, for which it was probably altogether responsible." Nor does he make himself clear in the same chapter in saying "Until a few days before the war was declared, the general staff nor the war college had received any hint or direction to be ready with recommendations except as indicated by the general staff. The general staff had apparently done little more, even after war was declared, than to consider the immediate question of organizing and sending abroad one combat division of 10,000 men."

This statement differs widely from that the general made earlier in this same chapter: "Beginning with February 1, 1917, the war college and the general staff presented a number of recommendations for action in the event of war with the central powers. One of these recommendations was that the general staff be organized as a permanent body, and that it be given the right of direct law (upon which I had been engaged myself for four months), and others referred to the size of the army to be organized and the necessity for the procurement of equipment and supplies. March 15, acting under instructions from the chief of staff, the war college submitted a more detailed report, recommending an increase of the army to 1,000,000 men."

To be more accurate, these studies had been going on all winter with many conferences between myself and the chief of staff, and the heads of bureaus. I had been engaged in preparing the mind of the administration and the country for a possible war, and the war college had been receiving from newspapers in all parts of the country before the counting was completed.

Congressmen Laughed. I asked the committee of congress for a million men in 1916. This request was laughed at, and the committee was asked: "What do you want with a million men? The United States will never be at war with anybody. Do you want to eat? You certainly do not have any other use for them." The temper of congress was such as to discourage further effort at that time. I have since felt with General Pershing that it would have been better so. Had my request been granted such a gesture would have convinced Germany of our purpose, with the probability that she would have caused the acts that brought us into the war with the chance of our continuing to stand on the sidelines, while the civilization of France and England was being destroyed—our turn to come later, unprepared and alone.

No doubt the ideas of all of us were new at the beginning, and by no means the ideas we have now—even General Pershing. We all had to grow through experience. I remember General Pershing asking me to consider the possibility of his getting a Cadillac touring car for his personal use in France. I told him to go out and buy ten for himself and staff. I would now have given him 100, but I gave him ten times as many as he asked.

It was not possible to order the recommendations of the general staff carried out at once for the reason that all of them could not be approved on account of minor imperfections or until the policy of the government was decided upon, as to the size and character of the contribution we were to make to the war. Congress thought at one time our contribution to the war would be mainly in money.

None of our allies thought it possible for us to send more than 200,000 trained men to France. Marshal Joffre asked that our flag be sent over for the sake of the effect our representation would have in Europe, even if no force were behind it. I considered it, however, that this would be an improper and undignified way to treat

DISPUTE OVER NITRATE PLANTS SHALLOO ACCORD

Disagreement Over Nitrate Plants Disrupts Previous Understanding

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A dispute over disposition of the nitrate plants at Muscle Shoals tonight had wrecked the tentative conference agreement reached last week and ensnared the legislation in another controversy.

The conferees will meet again soon in an effort to compromise their latest differences but they expressed little hope of an agreement.

House conferees today insisted the lessee of the nitrate plants should be permitted to manufacture other chemical products besides fertilizer. Senate conferees demanded that production be limited to fertilizer and its ingredients.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, author of the senate government operation bill, walked out of the conference, charging the house conferees had "completely violated the tentative agreement reached last week."

He said the house had presented a "joker" under which the lessee would be permitted to make anything he wanted.

"This would mean," Norris said, "a great chemical plant operated by private interests with a government subsidy."

House conferees proposed to limit the production of fertilizer to 10,000 tons annually.

SENATE CONFIRMS SIBLEY SELECTION

Continued from First Page.

and groups will desire to present arguments in the senate and referendum to another who has been put forward for the post, Washington dispatches said. In Mr. Arnold's party are Marion Sibley, a republican, and Robert H. Alston. Prominent lawyers from Rome and Cedarhurst will join the Atlanta group in Washington today.

Appropriately, Judge Sibley, the record made by Judge Sibley, and the character of the many endorsements he has received, brought about the unanimous selection of Sibley without debate or a dissenting vote. In view of the propriety of the senate to challenge all Hoover nominations, the unanimity of the state, Judge Sibley was confirmed pleased his friends in Georgia.

At the federal building Tuesday afternoon, Judge Sibley was probably over the district court until his successor has been chosen and given the oath of office. The presiding judge of the federal court in Georgia, Judge Sibley to carry on his present work until his successor is ready, and this procedure is expected.

Judge Sibley's appointment hearing a long docket of civil cases and will continue on that docket today.

SENATE BILLS

The following bills were introduced Tuesday in the senate and referred to committees:

No. 5.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate the business of transporting for hire persons and property by motor vehicles and public utility vehicles.

No. 6.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 7.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 8.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 9.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 10.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 11.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 12.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 13.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 14.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 15.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 16.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 17.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

No. 18.—By Mr. Byrd, of the first, an act to regulate motor vehicles for hire in Georgia.

Doctors Know Best How to Treat Colds

Medical writers agree that the important point in the treatment of a cold, or cough due to a cold, is to relieve the congestion in the nose and throat, thereby preventing serious complications which may follow a neglected cold. To stop this congestion calomel was the accepted and standard remedy until Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablet was introduced.

Now that science has robbed calomel of its nausea and danger, making it pleasant to take and for general use, over forty million Calotabs are consumed in the U. S. yearly with only the most pleasant and satisfactory results. In millions of homes Calotabs have proven their superiority in the prompt relief of colds and coughs due to colds. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of sweet milk or water, will soothe the throat, relieve the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning the congestion has subsided, your cold or cough is relieved, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish.

Get a family package of Calotabs, containing full directions, only thirty-five cents. Trial size, ten cents. At any drug store.—(adv.)

Doctors Know Best How to Treat Colds

Medical writers agree that the important point in the treatment of a cold, or cough due to a cold, is to relieve the congestion in the nose and throat, thereby preventing serious complications which may follow a neglected cold. To stop this congestion calomel was the accepted and standard remedy until Calotabs, the improved calomel compound tablet was introduced.

Now that science has robbed calomel of its nausea and danger, making it pleasant to take and for general use, over forty million Calotabs are consumed in the U. S. yearly with only the most pleasant and satisfactory results. In millions of homes Calotabs have proven their superiority in the prompt relief of colds and coughs due to colds. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of sweet milk or water, will soothe the throat, relieve the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning the congestion has subsided, your cold or cough is relieved, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast

OLD GUARD WILL CELEBRATE 74TH ANNIVERSARY

Dinner Dance At East Lake Marks Event January 19

Invitations have been issued by the Old Guard of Atlanta to a dinner-dance that will celebrate the seventy-fourth anniversary of this prominent Atlanta organization Monday, January 19, at the East Lake Country Club. Preceding the dinner members of the Old Guard will officially install Colonel William M. Camp, who was recently elected for the seventh time as commander of the Old Guard. Commander Camp will also appoint his corps of officers for the forthcoming year at this affair. Another feature of the occasion will be the awarding of medals and handsome silver trophies to winners in successful marksmanship in the target practices held during the year under T. G. Woodford, chairman of the rifle team committee, and J. E. Oxford, chairman of the team.

The Old Guard is one of Atlanta's oldest organizations, being the outgrowth of the original Gate City Guard, which was organized in this city January 8, 1857, with the late Major George Harvey Thompson serving as first captain. In 1893 the Gate City Guard withdrew from state service and the Old Guard was organized January 6, 1895, with the late Joseph F. Burke acting as its first commander. The present membership of the Old Guard numbers 100 prominent Atlanta citizens who are leaders in the city's military, patriotic and civic circles.

Missionary Circles.

The circles of Batillo Memorial Missionary Society will meet Thursday, January 15, as follows: Circle No. 1 with Mrs. C. J. Johnson, as chairman, will meet at 10:30 with Mrs. Johnson, 927 Atlanta, Ave. Circle No. 2, Mrs. O. D. Posey, chairman, will meet with the co-chairman, Mrs. Wade Woodward, 189 Field avenue, at 2:30 o'clock. Circle No. 3 with the chairman, Mrs. F. E. Congler, 153 Field avenue, at 2:30 o'clock.

Bride-Elect Honored.

Miss Caroline Plowden entertained for Miss Elizabeth Baggett, bride-elect, with a theater party yesterday afternoon. Following the matinee the guests were entertained at ten.

The guests were Miss Baggett, Miss Plowden, Miss Louise Plowden, Sara Frances Plowden, Gladys Crane, Sara Holdbrook, Medaunes E. M. Sasseville, R. C. Bostwick, N. G. Baggett, W. D. Holton and M. D. Roseberry. Miss Baggett's marriage will be an interesting social event taking place Thursday, February 5, at the Calvary Methodist church.

Golden Rule, O. E. S.

At the meeting Friday evening in the hall at the Red Men's wigwam on Central avenue the officers of the Golden Rule chapter, No. 110, O. E. S., were installed for the ensuing year. Mrs. Nell Boyer acted as grand installing officer assisted by Mrs. Arvis Brown, grand marshal; Mrs. A. B. Savell, grand chaplain, and Mrs. C. D. Trice, grand organist. The installing officers were presented gifts from the chapter.

Praetorian Dance.

Praetorian Club will give the second of a series of dances given each Friday evening at Hurst hall on Pine street, from 9 to 12 o'clock Friday evening, January 16.

Women Voters Meet.

Mrs. Phillip Shulhafer, chairman for the ninth and thirteenth wards of the League of Women Voters, announce that the monthly meeting of the two wards will be held at league headquarters Friday, January 16, at 10 o'clock. Those women who have agreed to take the training classes offered by the league will meet to perfect their plans to secure a 100 per cent registration and voting for all members in the two wards. Any other women who may be interested are invited to attend the meeting, but the workers are urged to be present to perfect their plans which are to be put into immediate effect.

Mrs. Holland Heads Egleston Auxiliary

Mrs. Frank D. Holland was elected president of Egleston Memorial hospital auxiliary at the annual meeting held Monday, and the corps of officers elected to serve with her include: Vice president, Mrs. William Prescott; vice president, Mrs. Beverly DuBose; secretary, Mrs. Louis Moss; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Henry Troutman; and treasurer, Mrs. Albert Thornton, Jr.

Chairmen of committees appointed were: General sewing chairman, Mrs. Paul Hufish; membership, Mrs. Page Rees; ways and means, Mrs. Jessie Draper and Mrs. William Henry; breast milk station, Mrs. Walter O'tenger; Cherokee Garden Club, Mrs. George Street and Mrs. Charles Orme; Atkins Garden Club, Mrs. E. L. Harling; nurses' home, Mrs. Hines Roberts and Mrs. Sam Finley; Christmas seals, Mrs. Robert Alston and Mrs. J. J. Goodrum; auxiliary to Kindergarten Association, Miss Jennie Dargan; auxiliary to Fulton County Medical Association, Mrs. Turner Reed; Junior League, Mrs. Clark Howell, Jr.; All Saints Guild, Mrs. Joseph Orme; Central Presbyterian church, Mrs. Alfred Brewster; Congregational church, Mrs. Carl Karston; Sacred Heart Altar Society, Mrs. J. M. Needham; Council of Jewish Women, Mrs. B. J. Phillips; Oakhurst Presbyterian church, Mrs. Walden; Liberal church, Miss M. J. Banks; First Presbyterian church, Mrs. J. P. Allen; Kappa Alpha Theta, Mrs. William B. Bell; Druid Hills Baptist, Mrs. Raymond Nelson; Morning-side Presbyterian church, Mrs. Ross Henderson; Smith College Club, Mrs. Alice Green; St. Philip's church, Mrs. E. C. Crichton; Mrs. A. B. Hiall, co-chairman; St. Catherine's Guild, St. Luke's church, Mrs. Olin Longino; Witches' Club, Mrs. Jack Salmon; Westminster Presbyterian church, Mrs. A. McFarland; Special Sewing Club, Mrs. R. S. Pringle; Epiphany church, Mrs. C. W. McClure; pet trade, Mrs. Stacey Hill; publicity, Mrs. Felton Jones and Miss Yolande Gwin.

Elder—McDonald.

MACON, Ga., Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Elder, of 255 Montpelier avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Elizabeth Catherine, to William Eugene McDonald, of Atlanta, January 11, in Atlanta. The ceremony was quietly solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Anderson, 1425 Oakview road in Decatur, Sunday evening at 9:30 o'clock, the Rev. M. M. Maxwell officiating.

The bride wore a two-piece traveling suit of flat crepe, with accessories to match. The bride is the attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Elder, who has won hosts of friends here and wherever she has lived with her charming personality.

The groom is the second son of William Charles McDonald and the late Mrs. McDonald, of Albany, Ga., and is connected with Ruralist Printing Company, of Atlanta.

Mr. and Mrs. McDonald will make their home in Atlanta at 589 Dunn street.

Honoring Mrs. Smith.

Many unique features developed during the farewell party given Friday by Mrs. M. T. Tony to honor Mrs. Harry Smith and the Pioneer Women. Mrs. Smith leaves today for Hollywood, Cal., to make that city her future home.

The singing of Miss Pauline Barton, whose rich contralto brought out the rare beauty of the old lullaby, "Hush, My Babe, Lie Still and Shush," recalled tender recollections of many of the pioneers in having been lulled to sleep by their mothers with this same lullaby. Miss Barton was accompanied by Miss Helen Schaidt, who gave a group of piano renditions.

Mrs. Robert Blackburn read "Lammy Dreams." Mrs. Ike Ragsdale played and sang an old song in sequence, playing familiar dance music, which brought many of the Pioneer women to their feet in the waltz-like dance. Mrs. Sid Holland, Mrs. Conley, of College Park, and Miss Annie Forsyth taking the lead.

Mrs. Kate F. Logue, who has recently been re-elected president of the Pioneer Women, was requested to play one of her own compositions which is always enjoyed. The historian, Miss Sarah Huff, read a clever original poem, "Recipe—How to Cook a Husband." Mrs. Charles Goodman offered a farewell toast to Mrs. Smith, which carried a note of sentiment in its theme.

Randolph-Macon Tea.

Miss Mabel Wood will entertain the local Randolph-Macon alumnae at a tea Friday afternoon, January 16, at 3 o'clock at her residence, 1403 Cameron court, N. E. An interesting program has been arranged by Mrs. F. J. Messick and all former students of Randolph-Macon Woman's College are invited.

Visitor Entertained.

Mrs. D. Le Grande Spooner, of East Orange, N. J., who is the featured guest of her mother, Mrs. F. A. Johnson, and her sisters, Mrs. J. I. Conine and Mrs. Hubert H. Hall, will be the central figure tomorrow evening at a bridge party at which Mrs. John Perkins will be hostess at her home in Inman Park.

Sunday, January 18, Mrs. W. Brooks McCrorey will be hostess at midday dinner at her home on Moreland avenue, honoring Mrs. Spooner. Mrs. Hubert H. Hall was hostess at a theater party yesterday afternoon honoring Mrs. Spooner.

Among others who have entertained in honor of this visitor, who before her marriage was Miss Eunice Johnson, of Atlanta, are Mrs. F. A. Johnson, Mrs. J. Elmer Slider, Mrs. Herschel Maddox, Mrs. George K. Croft, Mrs. J. L. Conine and Mrs. John Perkins.

Ormeewood Park News.

Mr. and Mrs. Z. A. Johnson and Rev. C. W. Johnson, of Ormeewood Park, have returned from a motor trip to Jacksonville, Fla.

Mrs. W. E. Crane and daughter, Miss Kittie Jane, are confined to their home with influenza.

Miss Elizabeth Hudson has recovered from a recent illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sloat were hosts to the members of their bridge club last evening at their home on Woodland avenue. The members present were Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Norton, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. D. Hooker and Miss Belle Woodfin.

The Ormeewood Wisteria Garden Club will meet with the president, Mrs. L. V. Kennerly this afternoon. Interesting papers on bulbs and the preparation of the soil for them will be read by Mrs. Howard Davis and Mrs. J. C. Stubbs. Plans for beautifying the grounds of the Anne E. West school will be announced by Mrs. H. E. Durham, chairman of the school grounds committee.

Mrs. J. C. Stubbs was hostess to the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Ormeewood Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon at her home on Gilbert street.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Pate announce the birth of a daughter. Mrs. Pate was formerly Miss Helen Garrison.

Elected Third Vice President

Mrs. M. L. Thrower, popular member of Atlanta Woman's Club, who was elected third vice president of the organization at the meeting held last Monday, provision for the creation of this office having been made at an executive board session. Mrs. D. R. Wilder is chairman of revision of by-laws, through which medium the third vice presidency was established.

Tri Deltas Meet.

Atlanta Alliance of Delta Delta Delta International sorority meets with Mrs. Thomas Conner, 952 Lullwater road, Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock. This meeting is very important, as the officers for the new year will be elected. All members of the alliance and visiting Tri Deltas in the city are invited. Please call Dearborn 3147.

P-T. A. Board.

Mrs. Charles Center calls a meeting of the executive board of the Fifth District P-T. A. for Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at Rich's school room. Plans will be discussed for the institute to be conducted by Mrs. Rae, national field secretary.

Mrs. Douglas Gives Series of Teas

Mrs. Hamilton Douglas entertained at the first of a series of teas yesterday at her home on Penn avenue to which a group of congenial friends were invited. Mrs. William Randolph Smith and Mrs. Dorothy Douglas, Rose assisted their mother in receiving the guests.

Another small group of friends have been invited by Mrs. Douglas for tea today, and next week this prominent Atlantian, who has spent the past four months in New York with her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Mark Mankin, will entertain other groups of friends informally at tea.

Robert Taylor III Celebrates Birthday At Children's Party

Mrs. Robert J. Taylor, Jr., will entertain at a children's party Monday afternoon, January 19, at her home at 1985 Ponce de Leon avenue in Druid Hills, the party to celebrate the eighth birthday of her young son, Robert Taylor III. The lovely affair will be in the nature of a wild animal party, and the little guests will assemble at 3:30 o'clock. Assisting Mrs. Taylor in entertaining will be Mrs. James Hinton and Mrs. L. E. Williams. Miss Betty Taylor, sister of the young honor guest, and Miss Martha Hurt will serve punch.

The invited guests include little Misses Betty Hurt, Betty Dickson, Betty Booker, Lucy Green, Elizabeth Keating, Doris Jane McGinty, Charlotte Woodford, Dorothy Estes, Lois Partridge, Frances Hinton, Luther Randall Jr., Bobby Wilby, William Chandler Denman Hammond, Frank Fraser, Allison Williams, Billy Childs, Jane Hinton, Henry Dick and Charles Derry West.

Miss Rhett Honored.

Mrs. William D. Ellis III and Mrs. Rutherford Ellis were hostesses at a bridge-luncheon yesterday at the home of Mrs. Ellis, on Chatham road, complementing their cousin, Miss Phoebe Rhett, a popular debutante of the season.

The luncheon table was overlaid

SOCIETY EVENTS

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 14.

A highway luncheon is being sponsored by the three garden clubs of Marietta to create more interest in beautifying the Rome to Atlanta division of the Dixie highway at Marietta Golf Club.

Miss Marguerite Hodnett will be hostess at an informal luncheon at her home on Piedmont avenue in compliment to Miss Sarah DeSaussure, a debutante.

Mrs. Virginia P. Archer entertains at luncheon and bridge at Druid Hills Golf Club today. Mrs. Martin Dunbar will entertain at luncheon and bridge for them Friday at her home on Montgomery Ferry drive.

Mrs. L. Wolf entertained honoring her daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Klein, at a bridge-luncheon Monday at Davison's tea room.

The guests included Mrs. Leon L. Golanter, Miss Lena Romm; Mesdames A. B. Hannuker, of Chicago; Sam Sussman, E. H. Lippman, J. B. Gordon, S. R. Greenblatt, Sam Rosenberg, H. Pheper, A. Shucoff, Jack Luber, I. T. Cohen, I. J. Jacobs, J. Rosenberg, S. Abelman, J. Stein, A. Abelson, M. Romm, Ralph Abelman, C. Miller, M. Mendel and Miss Ada Galanter. High score prize was won by Mrs. E. H. Lippman, second prize by Mrs. A. Shucoff, consolation prizes were won by Mrs. J. Stein and Mrs. Sam Rosenberg.

New York Matrons Arrive To Visit Mrs. V. P. Archer

Mrs. George H. Williams and Mrs. Alfred Creighton Porter, of New York city, arrived yesterday to visit Mrs. Virginia P. Archer, at 828 Peachtree street. A series of parties have been planned in their honor.

Mrs. Archer will entertain honoring her guests at luncheon and bridge at Druid Hills Golf Club today. Mrs. Martin Dunbar will entertain at luncheon and bridge for them Friday at her home on Montgomery Ferry drive.

Mrs. Klein Honored.

Mrs. L. Wolf entertained honoring her daughter, Mrs. Charles L. Klein, at a bridge-luncheon Monday at Davison's tea room.

The guests included Mrs. Leon L. Golanter, Miss Lena Romm; Mesdames A. B. Hannuker, of Chicago; Sam Sussman, E. H. Lippman, J. B. Gordon, S. R. Greenblatt, Sam Rosenberg, H. Pheper, A. Shucoff, Jack Luber, I. T. Cohen, I. J. Jacobs, J. Rosenberg, S. Abelman, J. Stein, A. Abelson, M. Romm, Ralph Abelman, C. Miller, M. Mendel and Miss Ada Galanter. High score prize was won by Mrs. E. H. Lippman, second prize by Mrs. A. Shucoff, consolation prizes were won by Mrs. J. Stein and Mrs. Sam Rosenberg.

Odd Lots! Bedding and Fine Linens! 1-3 to 1-2 Less!

—Warm, woolly blankets, at the height of the season . . . luxurious silken comforts . . . and satin-smooth sheets and pillow cases! Exquisite pastel-tinted breakfast and dinner cloths! Rugged, absorbent bath mats. All 1-3 to 1-2 less!

Robes! Comforts! Blankets!

FOUR $17.50 IMPORTED PURE WOOL AUTO ROBES. An unusually fine quality . . . $9.85

FIVE $12.85 IMPORTED ALL-WOOL ROBES. Reduced one-half price! Now . . . $6.58

TWENTY-FOUR $12.50 PLAIN SATEEN COMFORTS. Wool-filled! 72x84-in. size . . . $6.25

TWELVE $12.50 FLORAL PRINTED SATEEN COMFORTS. Wool-filled. Size 72x84-in. . . . $6.25

EIGHTY-FIVE ALL-WOOL BLANKETS. Both single and double—as you wish! Now . . . 1-3 to 1-2 Less

TWELVE $15 EXTRA-FINE RAYON COMFORTS. All colors! Size 72x84-in. . . . $8.95

Sheets and Pillow Cases!

RICH'S $1.65 ROUND THREAD SHEETS. Famous for over a quarter of a century for long wear! 72x90-in. . . $1 ea.

RICH'S $1.75 ROUND THREAD SHEETS. 81x90 in. size. Only 169 to go at this price! . . . $1.09 ea.

$1.49 TO $1.95 EMBROIDERED CASES. In white only. 48 pairs to go! . . . $1 pair

$2.55 SCALLOPED SHEETS. Two sizes; 72x99 in. and 81x99 in. Only 96 to go! . . . $1.69 ea.

72c SCALLOPED CASES. In two sizes: 42x36-in. and 45x38-in. Only 36 to go! . . . 49c ea.

$18 FINE ALL-LINEN HEMSTITCHED SHEETS. Size 90x108-in. Only 12 pairs to go! . . . $11.85 pair

$13.50 FINE ALL-LINEN SHEETS. Size 72x108-in. Only 3 pairs to go! . . . $8.65 pair

$1.95 PORTO RICAN COLORED CASES. Only 48 pairs to go! . . . $1 pair

Colored Breakfast and Dinner Sets 1-3 to 1-2 Price!

—All of pure linen . . . in beautiful pastel shades! All are neatly hemmed or hemstitched . . . according to your preference! Only 280 sets to go!

$2.95 FIVE-PIECE ALL-LINEN BRIDGE SETS. 5 pieces—pure linen, hand-embroidered . . . $1.47 set

187 Bath Mats 1-3 to 1-2 Price!

—The $1 bath mats are now 50c! The $2.95 mats $1.47 each! Heavy, durable quality in a choice of patterns and colors!

ODD LOT FANCY LINENS, table cloths, napkins, damask remnants, turkish towels, all reduced. 1-3 to 1-2

No Phone or Mail Orders, Please!

—RICH'S, SECOND FLOOR

MUSE'S

THE FIFTH FLOOR'S

Fall and Winter

COATS at HALF

1 1/2 Price

(99 Coats in All)

$ 69.50 COATS	$34.75
$ 79.50 COATS	$39.75
$ 89.50 COATS	$44.75
$ 99.50 COATS	$49.75
$129.50 COATS	$64.75
$149.50 COATS	$74.75
$169.50 COATS	$84.75
$189.50 COATS	$94.75
$199.50 COATS	$99.75

29 MUSE ENSEMBLES, 1-2 Price

(fur-trimmed and untrimmed)

GEORGE MUSE CLOTHING CO.

—the fifth floor

A NEW SHOE AT A NEW PRICE!

VITALITY SHOES

Popularity Priced

$5 and $6

RICH'S

INC.

Street Floor

TO MODERN WOMEN VITALITY IS MOST PRECIOUS

Odd Lots! Bedding and Fine Linens! 1-3 to 1-2 Less!

—Warm, woolly blankets, at the height of the season . . . luxurious silken comforts . . . and satin-smooth sheets and pillow cases! Exquisite pastel-tinted breakfast and dinner cloths! Rugged, absorbent bath mats. All 1-3 to 1-2 less!

Robes! Comforts! Blankets!

FOUR $17.50 IMPORTED PURE WOOL AUTO ROBES. An unusually fine quality . . . $9.85

FIVE $12.85 IMPORTED ALL-WOOL ROBES. Reduced one-half price! Now . . . $6.58

TWENTY-FOUR $12.50 PLAIN SATEEN COMFORTS. Wool-filled! 72x84-in. size . . . $6.25

TWELVE $12.50 FLORAL PRINTED SATEEN COMFORTS. Wool-filled. Size 72x84-in. . . . $6.25

EIGHTY-FIVE ALL-WOOL BLANKETS. Both single and double—as you wish! Now . . . 1-3 to 1-2 Less

TWELVE $15 EXTRA-FINE RAYON COMFORTS. All colors! Size 72x84-in. . . . $8.95

Sheets and Pillow Cases!

RICH'S $1.65 ROUND THREAD SHEETS. Famous for over a quarter of a century for long wear! 72x90-in. . . $1 ea.

RICH'S $1.75 ROUND THREAD SHEETS. 81x90 in. size. Only 169 to go at this price! . . . $1.09 ea.

$1.49 TO $1.95 EMBROIDERED CASES. In white only. 48 pairs to go! . . . $1 pair

$2.55 SCALLOPED SHEETS. Two sizes; 72x99 in. and 81x99 in. Only 96 to go! . . . $1.69 ea.

72c SCALLOPED CASES. In two sizes: 42x36-in. and 45x38-in. Only 36 to go! . . . 49c ea.

$18 FINE ALL-LINEN HEMSTITCHED SHEETS. Size 90x108-in. Only 12 pairs to go! . . . $11.85 pair

$13.50 FINE ALL-LINEN SHEETS. Size 72x108-in. Only 3 pairs to go! . . . $8.65 pair

$1.95 PORTO RICAN COLORED CASES. Only 48 pairs to go! . . . $1 pair

Colored Breakfast and Dinner Sets 1-3 to 1-2 Price!

—All of pure linen . . . in beautiful pastel shades! All are neatly hemmed or hemstitched . . . according to your preference! Only 280 sets to go!

$2.95 FIVE-PIECE ALL-LINEN BRIDGE SETS. 5 pieces—pure linen, hand-embroidered . . . $1.47 set

187 Bath Mats 1-3 to 1-2 Price!

—The $1 bath mats are now 50c! The $2.95 mats $1.47 each! Heavy, durable quality in a choice of patterns and colors!

ODD LOT FANCY LINENS, table cloths, napkins, damask remnants, turkish towels, all reduced. 1-3 to 1-2

No Phone or Mail Orders, Please!

—RICH'S, SECOND FLOOR

RICH'S

Social Items

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Lane and their young son, Andrew Lane, Jr., and their little daughter, Adeline Lane, have moved to the city from Macon and have taken an apartment at 2534 Peachtree road.

Mr. Thomas K. Glenn is spending this week in New York city at the Hotel Plaza.

Miss Lula Collier and Mrs. John Moore will leave the latter part of January for a motor trip through Florida.

Mrs. Louis Ullman, of Mishawaka, Ind., is visiting her mother, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Ullman, at their home on Peachtree road.

Mrs. Walter Lee and little son, Walter, Jr., of New York, have returned from Greenville, S. C., where they visited Mrs. Lee's sister, Mrs. Henry Brown, to again be the guests for two weeks of Mrs. Lee's mother, Mrs. Pearl Mozley Gay, at her home on Peachtree street.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison R. Glover announce the birth of a son at Wesley Memorial hospital Sunday, January 4, who has been named William Addison.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hartlove and Mr. and Mrs. L. Gerlach have returned to their home in Baltimore, Md., after a visit to Mrs. Lena Nash.

Mrs. George H. Williams and Mrs. Alfred Creighton Porter, of New York city, are the guests of Mrs. Virginia P. Archer at her home at 826 Peachtree street. Mrs. Williams will be remembered in Atlanta, as she was the feted guest of Mrs. Archer last year.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Williamson announce the birth of a son, Saturday, January 10, at Georgia Baptist hospital, who has been given the name of William Benton. Mrs. Williamson was formerly Miss Eugenia Meadows, of Hapeville.

Miss Frances Cary and Archie Almond, of Atlanta, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Billy Cary at their home in Gainesville.

Mrs. Peyton R. Brown has returned to her home on Decatur road after having spent the last two weeks in Chicago, Ill., visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Foreman leave next week for Miami, Fla., where they will spend several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Smythe, and Franklin Miskell returned yesterday from south Georgia, where they spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. John D. Little at Oakland plantation near Leesburg.

Mrs. W. R. Brewster and little daughter, Lucile, of College Park, will leave tomorrow for Miami, Fla., where they will spend a month with Mrs. Brewster's mother, Mrs. J. C. Woodward, who has opened her winter home in that city.

Miss Harriet Wynn is visiting Mrs. Jack Donovan at her home in Rome, Georgia.

John W. Mangham, Sr., is seriously ill at the Georgia Baptist hospital.

Mrs. Paul Johnson will leave tomorrow for Miami, Fla., where she will spend a month with her sister, H. T. Graham, at her winter home.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Clay Moore, Misses Louise Moore and Katharine Flagler leave January 31 by motor for Miami, Fla., where they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harris.

Miss Sarah Law expects to leave in February for Miami, Fla., where she will visit Miss Daisy Kemp, Miss Law and Miss Kemp were classmates at National Park Seminary in Washington, D. C.

Miss Elizabeth Dodd and her sister, Mrs. Sam Worley, leave the latter part of this month for Orlando, Fla., where they will visit Miss Selma Wilson. Before returning to Atlanta Mrs. Worley and Miss Dodd will visit Palm Beach and Miami.

Mrs. Gus Tolson and little son, John, left a few days ago for Chicago, Ill., where they will spend a month with Mrs. Tolson's mother, Mrs. Henry Faurst.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Gallaher, of Forest Hills, Long Island, who have been the guests of their brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. McKinney, will leave early next week for Miami, Fla., where they will spend two months.

Little Billy Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Henry, is at the Eggleston Memorial hospital, where he underwent a mastoid operation a few days ago.

Mrs. Duncan Owens left a few days ago for Miami, Fla., where she will visit her mother, Mrs. L. O. Bricker, at her winter home.

Mrs. Barrett Phinizy and daughter, Miss Laura Phinizy, will return to their home in Athens today after spending a week in Atlanta.

Miss Florence Helmstetter, of New York, is at the Georgian Terrace.

Mrs. Elmer Jarvis has returned to her home in Macon, after a visit to her mother, Mrs. Mary Blount Murphy.

Mrs. Lewis Johnson and Miss Ann Johnson have returned to Barnesville after spending the week-end in Atlanta.

Guests at the Biltmore include: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bailey, of Springfield, Ohio; Mrs. Morris Bartlett, of Madisonville, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. Phil Davis, of Nashville, Tenn.; Augustus Davidson, of Hartsell, Ga.; C. Houston Goudiss, of New York, N. Y.; Mrs. Alfred Greene, of Madisonville, Ky.; H. L. Hagerman, of Greenville, S. C.;

Mrs. Nolen Honored In Marietta, Ga.

MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 13.—Mrs. L. L. Welch entertained at a bridge-tee and linen shower Monday afternoon at her home on Church street, in compliment to Mrs. Nolen, formerly Miss Eugenia Collins, whose marriage was an interesting event Monday, January 5. Invited to meet Mrs. Nolen were: Misses Martha Field, Yrma, Dawn Hancock, Jane Northcutt, Madge Schilling, Martha Gramling, Essie Smith, Marie Brumby, Elizabeth Masser, Marjorie Collins, Agnes Orr, Catherine Abbott, Elizabeth Pique, Barbara Butler, Hazel Lowrance, Marion Cox, Mallie Nolen and Mrs. V. G. Gray, of Acworth, Ga. Coming in for tea were Mesdames A. V. Cortelyou, Norman Collins, R. L. Collins and John Collins. Mrs. Welch was assisted in receiving by Mrs. J. R. Collins, the bride's mother, and the groom's mother, Mrs. Clara Nolen.

Miss Mary Hodges was hostess at a Japanese dinner party Friday evening at her home on Forest avenue.

Mrs. Leon Blair entertained with a bridge-tee Friday afternoon at her home on Cherokee street, in compliment to her sister, Mrs. Leslie L. Blair, of Denver, Col.

Miss Ida Brumby entertained her bridge club Saturday afternoon at her home on Vance circle.

Mrs. Rudy Swartz, of Philadelphia, is visiting her mother, Mrs. R. B. Goodman.

Mrs. W. B. Tate has returned from a visit to Mrs. L. H. Chappell and her brother, William Hart, of Columbus, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. DuPre and Banks DuPre entertained with a bridge-dinner Thursday evening at their home on Whitlock avenue.

Judge S. H. Sibley left Sunday for New Orleans, La., and will be joined by Mrs. Sibley and Miss Weldon Sibley next month.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Hunter, of Canton, Ohio; Mrs. H. Jones, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Lechner, of New York, N. Y.; C. A. Merriam, Jr., of Birmingham, Ala.; W. P. Sawyer, of Washington, D. C.; Mrs. M. D. Sloan, of Chicago, Ill.; E. A. St. John, of New York, N. Y.; Carster Tiedman, of Detroit, Mich.; and B. R. Trotter, of Crawfordville, Ga.

Mrs. S. B. Hawkins has returned from Augusta, where she visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. N. Blackstone.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Montgomery have returned to Griffin, after spending the week-end in Atlanta with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Montgomery.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Parham have returned from a visit to relatives in Unadilla.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Edmondson are in Albany, Ga.

Mrs. M. L. Wilson, of Birmingham, Ala.; Misses Joan Fairchild, Viola Mann and Mrs. J. C. Madden, of Hollywood, Calif.; Albert Barnes, Frank Wallin, Roy Noonan, John Shea, of Hollywood, Calif.; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Phillips, Misses Mary Wood, Mable Todd, Marcia Cleveland, of California; and John Dunn, U. S. A., are at the Georgian Terrace.

Mr. and Mrs. George Forbes Sharp, of Orlando, Fla., announce the birth of a daughter, Monday, January 12, whom they have named Jane Allen. Mrs. Sharp was before her marriage Miss Jane Allen Slaughter, of this city.

Miss Mary McGee has returned to Gainesville, where she will resume her studies at Brenau College, after a visit to Mrs. D. R. Wilder at her home on Ponce de Leon avenue.

Mrs. L. W. Healey, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., is the guest of Mrs. Charles Bickerstaff, on Lullwater road, in Druid Hills.

WOMEN'S MEETINGS

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 14.

Phi Pi Club meets at 3 o'clock at the home of Miss Betty Huff, 3360 Peachtree road.

Mimosa Garden Club meets with Mrs. Alex W. Smith, Jr., at her home on Tuxedo road at 3:30 o'clock.

Executive board of the Civic Club of West End meets in the club auditorium.

"The Psychology of Music and Behaviorism" will be presented at the meeting of the College Park Music Club to be held at 3 o'clock at the Woman's Club auditorium.

Business and Professional Women's Club of Atlanta holds its annual election of officers at 6 o'clock at the Wincoff hotel.

Ormeewood Wisteria Garden Club meets with Mrs. L. V. Kennerly at 2:30 o'clock. Papers on "Bulbs and Preparations of the Soil" will be read by Mesdames Howard Davis and J. C. Stubbs.

Pi Pi Club meets this afternoon at the home of Margaret King on Ponce de Leon avenue. Plans for the formal dance, which will be given at the Piedmont Driving Club February 6 will be discussed.

Young Matron's Service Star Legion meets at the Atlanta Woman's Club at 11 o'clock.

West End Study Class meets at 10:45 o'clock at the home of Mrs. E. W. Klein, 825 Myrtle street, northeast.

Executive board of Highland P-T. A. meets at 9:30 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Marion Smith School P-T. A. meets at the school at 2:15 o'clock.

Executive board of the Tech High P-T. A. meets in the school library at 10:30 o'clock.

Oakhurst P-T. A. meets in the auditorium of the school at 2:30 o'clock.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of schools, will address the O'Keefe Junior High School P-T. A. at the meeting to be held at 3 o'clock.

West End Woman's Club meets at the clubhouse, 1100 Cascade road, at 3 o'clock, preceded by the executive board meeting at 2:15 o'clock.

Atlanta Chapter of Winthrop Daughters meets at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Robert L. McDougall, 510 Pine Tree drive, Garden Hills, with Mrs. Donald Keeler as assisting hostess.

Missionary meeting of the Woman's Council of the West End Christian church meets at 10:30 o'clock at the church.

North Side Embroidery Club meets with Mrs. R. J. Hudson, 744 Sherwood drive, at 3 o'clock.

I. O. O. F. Atlanta Rebecca Lodge No. 62 holds its installation of officers at 428 1-2 Alexander street.

Queen Esther Chapter No. 262, O. E. S., will meet at 7:30 o'clock, third floor of the Red Men's wigwam, Central avenue.

Druid Hills Union of the W. C. T. U. meets at Druid Hills Methodist church at 3 o'clock.

Iris Garden Club meets at 11 o'clock at the home of Mrs. William C. Wardlaw, 200 Peachtree circle. Mrs. T. R. Crowe will be the guest of the club and will talk on "What to Do Now in the Garden."

Delta Chapter of Pi Omicron meets from 3 to 5 o'clock at the Redemmer hotel. The subject is "Atlanta."

Mechanist Auxiliary No. 1 meets at 2:30 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A.

Wednesday Morning Study Class of St. Philip's cathedral meets at 10:30 o'clock in the music room of the chapter house.

Wednesday Afternoon Study Class meets at 3 o'clock in the music room of the chapter house.

Child Welfare magazine chairman of Atlanta P-T. A. Council meet at 10 o'clock in Rich's conference room.

Circle meetings of the W. M. S. of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer will be held at the following homes: Circle (1) with Mrs. William Faust, 1206 Boulevard N. E., at 3:15; circle (2) with Mrs. C. H. Harp, 848 Virginia avenue, N. E., at 3:15; circle (3) with Mrs. Fred Hansen, 411

Beauty Fashions

A SIMPLE PLEASING MORNING FROCK.

7031. Printed linen was selected for this becoming style, with trimming of rows of narrow braid. The design is also in cotton prints, crepe, wash silk, or pongee. The waist portions are long and lap slightly in front, and are joined in shaped outline to flare skirt portions. The sleeve may be finished in wrist length, with a band cuff, or, in short length as shown in the large view. A narrow belt confines the fullness of the dress at the waistline.

Designed in 9 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. To make the dress in a 38-inch size with short sleeves will require 3 3/4 yards, of 36-inch material. With long sleeves 4 1/8 yards will be required. To finished with braid as shown in the large view will require 18 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 10c in silver or stamps.

A SIMPLE FROCK WITH BLOOMERS, FOR PLAY OR SCHOOL HOURS.

7074. Cotton prints are popular for this style of garment. Pongee and linen are also suggested. The dress is full below a yoke. The fronts lap slightly over an insert, arranged to form plaits at each side of the center. The sleeve may be finished in wrist length with a band cuff, or in short length with an up-turned cuff. A neat collar finishes the neck. The bloomers are cut on regulation lines, and with comfortable fullness, and are finished with waist bands and leg bands.

Designed in 3 sizes: 2, 4 and 6 years. To make a 4-year size will require 2 3/4 yards 35 inches wide for dress with long sleeves and bloomers.

Joseph Habersham, D. A. R.

Joseph Habersham Chapter, D. A. R., meets Thursday, January 15, at 3 o'clock in Habersham hall, 270 Fifteenth street, N. E. Mrs. A. R. Colcord, regent, will preside. Dr. J. Sproule Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will be the speaker. A special musical program has been arranged including a group of songs by Miss Frances Woodberry.

Cooking School.

Finance committee of Garden Hills Woman's Club will sponsor a cooking school beginning Monday, January 19, at 10:30 o'clock and lasting until 12:30 o'clock. The school continues on Friday, January 23, and tickets will sell for $1 for the course or at 25 cents per day.

Mrs. A. P. Boardman is in charge, and several prizes will be given away each day.

Reception at Church.

Rev. Herman L. Turner, pastor of Covenant Presbyterian church, and the official boards of the church have invited those members who have received united with this church to be present at a reception to be given in their honor in the church parlor this evening at 7:30 o'clock. A musical program has been arranged, and officers will be assisted in entertaining by their wives.

Smith-Hughes Classes.

Smith-Hughes Vocational Classes in interior decorating, under the direction of Miss Lillian Williamson, begin Monday at the Atlanta Woman's Club. These classes will be held Monday mornings and afternoons, Tuesday mornings and afternoons, Tuesday

Sterling street, N. E., 3:15; circle (4) with Mrs. Frank C. Wise, 622 Hardendord street, N. E., 10:30 a. m.; circle (5) at the church, Trinity avenue; circle (6) with Mrs. A. H. Rossmore, 949 Woodbourne drive, S. W., at 10:30 a. m.

Smith-Hughes vocational classes under the supervision of Miss Lillian Williamson will resume the lessons at 10 o'clock in Habersham Hall, 270 Fifteenth street, northeast.

Miss Myrtle Stephenson and Mrs. J. Kimble will be joint hostesses to the telephone committee of Mary E. L. Rocca Grove East Point Woodmen Circle at the home of Mrs. Kimble, 1426 Oglethorpe avenue, S. W., Atlanta.

Executive board of Bass Junior High meets at 2 o'clock in Room 211.

The Ponce de Leon P-T. A. meets at 3 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Winona Park P-T. A. meets in their auditorium at 3 o'clock.

Glenwood P-T. A. meets at 3 o'clock in the auditorium.

Fifth Avenue P-T. A. meets at 2:30 o'clock with Mrs. Floyd Field as speaker.

Senior mothers of Boys' High P-T. A. will meet at 2:30 o'clock at the school.

Reviewers' Study Club meets with Mrs. Albert Walden, 711 Myrtle street, N. E.

Beautification Lunch Takes Place Today

MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 13.—Representatives from garden clubs of Atlanta, Marietta and the vicinity there of will hold a luncheon, at which discussion of the beautification of the Atlanta-Rome highway will be featured. The luncheon will be given by the garden clubs of Marietta at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Marietta Golf Club.

Through the instrumentality of T. H. McHatten, of the department of agriculture of the University of Georgia, who presented plans for landscaping the highway; R. C. Milner, assistant engineer of the state highway department; Mrs. Mary J. Turner, of Marietta, co-chairman with Mrs. George Smith, of Rome, of the beautification of highways committee of the Garden Clubs of Georgia, plans have been forwarded for beginning the work on the highway. Interested members of garden clubs will supply plants and shrubs, which are to be set out and maintained by the maintenance forces of the state highway department.

Prominent residents from Chattanooga, Dalton, Rome, Kennesaw, Calhoun, Kinston, Cartersville and Acworth will attend the luncheon. Dr. McHatten, who furnished the blue prints for landscaping the highway, will also be present. Besides the Marietta garden clubs, those to be represented at the luncheon are the Peachtree, Lullwater and Primrose Garden Clubs of Atlanta; the High, Springhill, Log Cabin, on the Atlanta road, and the Smyrna Garden Club of Smyrna.

Woman's Guild Supper

The Woman's Guild of the Church of the Incarnation will have a chicken supper this evening from 6:30 to 8 o'clock at the parish house in rear of the church, corner of Lee street and York avenue, in West End. Tickets will be 50 cents each, and may be obtained from any member of the guild, or reservations may be made by phoning Mrs. William Carver, Raymond 0680.

WALTER R. BROWN WILL PROBATE

The estate of Colonel Walter R. Brown, prominent lawyer and noted Baptist leader who died last week, was left to relatives, his will filed Tuesday with Ordinary Thomas H. Jeffries for probate reveals.

CUBA INVOKES ARMS TO HALT CANE FIRES

HAVANA, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The full strength of the army, navy and aviation corps has been invoked by the government to put an end to burning of cane fields by enemies of the administration of President Machado. Under a policy announced after a conference of secretaries of the departments anyone caught firing the fields will be dealt with summarily under an old law which designates persons interfering with the harvest as traitors.

Allen's Entire Stock of FALL AND WINTER SHOES

At Drastic Reductions!

To be had in black or brown at the special price of—

$6.75

$10.50 to $15 Values $6.75

$12.50 to $15 Values $8.95

$12.50 to $18.50 Values $10.75

$15 to $22.50 Values $12.75

All Delman Shoes Now Half Price

All Arch Preservers Reduced to $9.95

Shoe Salon—Street Floor

J. P. ALLEN & CO.

The Store All Women Know

CHILDREN

CRY FOR IT!

51

SMART BECOMING SIMPLICITY.

No wonder so many women are wearing the cow' neckline. It is the pet of Paris. It is generally becoming and extremely flattering.

Today's model is black crepe. It's so utterly smart it doesn't need any trimming. Horizontal pin tucks nip the normal waistline at the center-front. The decorative pin tucks appear again at the wrists of the long sleeves.

The hips are snugly fitted with a shaped yoke whose curved seaming conceals breadth. The attached skirt has gracefully flaring hem.

Style No. 951 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

The 36-inch size requires 3 1/2 yards of 36-inch material.

Crepe marocain, flat crepe in plain or print and crepe wools are other charming selections.

We suggest that when you send for your pattern, you order a copy of our Fashion Magazine.

Price of book 10 cents.

Price of pattern 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin is preferred). Wrap open carefully.

Address orders to Annette Fashion Department, care The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

51

CASTORIA

Five million modern mothers will tell you that children DO cry for Fletcher's Castoria. For mothers always give a few drops of this pure vegetable preparation when a child has any of the symptoms that tell of sluggish bowels, colic, or other upsets. When tiny tongues are coated and breath is bad. When a child is restless; irritable. Always soothing and comforting to an infant—yet it is effective for children in their teens. You never have to coax children to take Castoria; they love its taste. Be ready for the next case of sour stomach, constipation, or other need for Castoria! When buying look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher on wrapper.

you can do it too.

"YOU CAN DO IT TOO" is the title of an absorbing story of a traveler's experience in seeing Europe on a very limited budget. It's free for the asking and very helpful indeed to one who has longed for the thrill of a voyage to Europe, yet cannot see how such a feat could be possible with the funds in hand. It explains how simple and surprisingly cheap it is when one "knows the ropes." When you've read it, you'll realize you can do it too.

Your Local Agent will gladly give you a copy or you may write

CUNARD LINE

44 WALTON ST., ATLANTA, GA.

SPECTACULAR SUPER-FEATURE ON AIR WEDNESDAY AFTERNOON 2:00

Edna Wallace Hopper

The One Woman in the World Who Never Grew Old

Is Going On the Air Wednesday to Tell Exactly How She Does It!

Famous Stage Star Who at Over 60 Has the Face and Figure of a Girl, to Broadcast Her Basic Secrets to American Women Over N.B.C. Blue Network in Special Youth Matinee—First Appearance Wednesday, January 14th.

DO YOU ever wonder whether you're not beginning to look your age? A bit "middle-aged", perhaps, in the way you walk, the way your skin acts, in the broadness of your hips, of one of several other obvious ways? Well, then, here's your chance.

Edna Wallace Hopper is finally going to tell American women how she does it. And so that she can accommodate her vast audience, has chosen the radio to do it, where the crowd won't be too great. One time she attempted to do it at a San Francisco theatre, and then had to call the police to handle the crowd. 10,000 women tried to jam into the theatre that afternoon.

At over sixty she looks like a girl. Her skin is as un-wrinkled and youthful as the average woman of 25. Her figure that of a girl of 16. When she walks down the streets of Paris or New York, boys of college age frequently try to flirt with her. At something past 60, she recently returned to America to present the difficult technique of the acrobatic adagio to American theatre-goers with her partner, Fernand Grip, famous dancer of the Casino de Paris.

To Tell Women 2 Basic Secrets

Wednesday on Air

Now—on Wednesday, Jan. 14th at 3:00 P. M. Eastern Standard Time, 2:00 P. M. Central Standard Time, 1:00 P. M. Mountain Time and 12:00 Noon Pacific Time. Miss Hopper will broadcast the exact ways and means she uses from the roof of the famous New Amsterdam Theatre, New York City; inaugurating the first spectacular programme of the Affiliated Super-Features of the Air.

In this talk Miss Hopper will tell you simple ways to end two universal problems of women. (1) How to eliminate age lines and wrinkles from the face. (2) How to lose that "middle-aged walk" most women past 25 reveal to advertise their age to the world. Remember the date and time and tune in.

Introduction by William Morris, Famous Theatrical Figure and Head of Morris Theatrical Agency, New York.

Program sponsored by AFFILIATED SUPER-FEATURES OF THE AIR.

STATION WSB, Atlanta, Wed., Jan. 14, 2:00 P. M. Also All Stations Blue Network N. B. C.

Strange But True

The two pictures below of Miss Hopper were taken exactly 31 years apart. No question, surely, whether or not she has found the secret of youth!

This picture was taken during Miss Hopper's star engagement with the famous "FLORADORA" Company in 1899.

This picture of Miss Hopper was taken on October 15, 1930, by P. C. A. press photographers upon her arrival on the S. S. Homeric from Paris, with her dancing partner Fernand Grip; just 31 years after the first picture!

595

THE NEW ESSEX SUPER SIX

Beauty and performance are no longer enough. Cars today must be easy to ride in and convenient to drive. Hudson Essex now gives you sparkling beauty, brilliant performance and Rere Riding and Driving Comfort at prices that all can afford.

875

THE GREATER HUDSON 8

Business Coupe Coach $895.

Other body models as attractively priced.

Special equipment extra.

All prices P. O. B. Detroit.

The Other Bullet

By Nancy Barr Maevity

INSTALLMENT XLV.

On the other hand, if Ryder were asked to lie for Lammie, he would cheerfully do it, without even asking questions. Peter had once interviewed a professor of psychology who was engaged in a study of white rats running around in mazes. He forgot what the rats were supposed to prove, but he felt a sympathetic kinship with them now. If the professor wanted to know the sensations of the rats, he might do worse than interview Peter Piper.

"If you want to get in touch with Fitzgerald," Lammie suggested, "I know where he is. We ran a story on him the first of the week."

"Yes," Peter said dazedly. "I suppose that's the next step."

"He was in an auto smashup."

"Is he dead?"

If Fitzgerald were dead, there was no way of checking Ryder's story. It was deadlocked. Was that perhaps the very reason why Ryder had been so interested in Fitzgerald's name? Or had De Lamoth, who had handled the story of the accident, been in touch with Ryder all along and suggested Fitzgerald to him?

"I don't know. I didn't follow it any further. But he was taken to St. Luke's hospital. I'll find out if you like."

"Thanks," Peter said briefly, "I'll look it up myself after the war."

He was half way through the door when Ryder called to him from behind.

"Don't forget to ask Sears about that job."

Peter hated himself for wondering if the remainder was sheer bravado. "I hope to God Fitzgerald isn't dead," he answered irrelevantly. If Fitzgerald were dead, he would have to go on hating himself, and wondering. His longing to clear Lammie and Ryder of his own suspicion rose to an almost intolerable intensity.

"Wish me good luck," he said seriously. His gray eyes dwelt in a lingering gaze on the faces of the two men—the pale, sensitive face of Lammie, the merry, irresponsible face of Ryder. It might be the last time that he could look at them like that—as fellows of the craft that was more than a craft, that was something a brotherhood as well.

"Sure, may the saints preserve you!" Ryder shouted after him as the door swung slowly shut.

Fitzgerald was not dead. In fact, he was sitting up in bed, his head wound about with a turban of bandages, listening with patient boredom to the rise and fall of his wife's voice as she sat beside him reading aloud.

At the mounding of the two men, if he could knock the book out of her hand and ascribe his violence to the lingering effects of concussion. But it wouldn't do any good—she would only pick it up again.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was firm in her generous intention to do other people good. She had given up a luncheon party in order to sit beside her husband and cheer him by reading light fiction.

To be sure, Lee detested light fiction, but the doctor had said that he must have something exciting, so he had begged in vain to be allowed to go over the notes of a case that had been postponed until his recovery, and had not even won the compromise of Wellman's "Art of Cross Examination."

Mrs. Fitzgerald had held out against a book sure to be full of words that she had never heard of, and couldn't pronounce.

"This is such a sweet story," she had said with gentle persuasiveness. "I'm sure you'll just love it."

Fitzgerald had suffered his wife's ministrations in grim silence for an hour when Peter thrust his head around the door.

"I happened to be out this way and thought I'd look in on you," Peter said maliciously. "They told me downstairs that you are able to see visitors."

Peter and Fitzgerald met occasionally at trials in the superior court, but Fitzgerald greeted him with a warmth out of all proportion to the extent of their acquaintance.

"Come in! Come in!" he said cordially. "How's the life of crime on the Herald these days?"

Mrs. Fitzgerald closed her book, holding the place with her thumb instead of laying it aside. She surveyed Peter with disapproving eyes. She was of the opinion that all newspaper reporters were little better than tramps and she considered that her husband made a great mistake in treating them as equals, even if, as he had explained, he did have to depend on the papers for favorable publicity.

"Oh, crime's at a low ebb—with a distinguished member of the bar missing from the halls of justice," Peter grinned.

There was no answering smile on Mrs. Fitzgerald's face. She considered Peter's remark an insult from an inferior and glanced at her husband, hoping that he would snub this impudent young man. But Fitzgerald was beaming at Peter, motioning him to a seat on the foot of the bed.

"My husband needs to be kept very quiet. I don't know how the management came to let him be disturbed," she said freezingly.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Peter was instantly contrite. "I won't be but a minute then. As a matter of fact I wanted to ask you something—about that ring Ben Ryder says he won from you at a poker game about a month ago."

"I never heard of Ben Ryder—and I don't play poker."

For a moment Peter felt as if the ground had tilted under his feet, leaving him sick and reeling. Ryder or Lammie—or both of them—had lied. The words pounded in his brain as if he had spoken them aloud. Then his eyes lifted to Fitzgerald's face—and for the second time in two minutes amazement smote him with the violence of a physical blow. There was no mistaking the look of guilt and fear in Fitzgerald's eyes. In this insane merry-go-round, he had not for an instant supposed that Fitzgerald, at most, was more than a link in the chain. He was a well known criminal lawyer; it was stark impossibility that he had anything to do with Morrison's murder. And yet—criminal lawyers, of course, had strange associates. Might the case be tied up in some way, with one of Fitzgerald's clients?

His eyes were still fixed in amazement on the face of the man in the bed, when he saw the lawyer turn his head with a significant gesture towards the chair where his wife sat. His right eye lid drooped warningly.

"The boys were just trying to kid me—I suspected it from the first," Peter said with a show of indignation. "I'll get even with them yet! However, while I'm here, I wonder if I couldn't talk to you a little about that Bates will contest. He got a tip on it, might be useful to you."

"I'd be glad to," Fitzgerald responded eagerly.

"It's rather confidential—" Peter cast a tentative glance in the direction of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who gave no sign of having heard.

"I'm sure you've made a martyr of yourself long enough this beautiful afternoon. If you run along now, you can still get to your party before it's all over," Fitzgerald said ingratiatingly.

"I'm sure you ought not to talk business at all—"

"Now look here, Miriam, you'd better humor me and do it quick. I have the doctor say it myself, and if you don't obey his orders, I'm going to run a temperature and have a relapse as sure as God has a little apple pie."

When Mrs. Fitzgerald heard that tone in her husband's voice, she knew that the time had come to retreat in good order.

"Well, if it makes you worse, don't say I didn't warn you!" she protested, and with a haughty half-smile to Peter, made a disgruntled exit from the room.

Fitzgerald mopped as much of his brow as was visible beneath the swathing of bandages.

"Think," Captain Flagg, quick thinker," he quoted with an exaggerated sigh of relief. "My wife," he added, "considers poker the sport of kings. She also disapproves of the low-brow company I keep when I consort with gentlemen of the press. She's a great one for upholding the dignity of the legal profession—so I let her do it."

(Continued Tomorrow.)

(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution.)

holding the place with her thumb instead of laying it aside. She surveyed Peter with disapproving eyes. She was of the opinion that all newspaper reporters were little better than tramps and she considered that her husband made a great mistake in treating them as equals, even if, as he had explained, he did have to depend on the papers for favorable publicity.

"Oh, crime's at a low ebb—with a distinguished member of the bar missing from the halls of justice," Peter grinned.

There was no answering smile on Mrs. Fitzgerald's face. She considered Peter's remark an insult from an inferior and glanced at her husband, hoping that he would snub this impudent young man. But Fitzgerald was beaming at Peter, motioning him to a seat on the foot of the bed.

"My husband needs to be kept very quiet. I don't know how the management came to let him be disturbed," she said freezingly.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Peter was instantly contrite. "I won't be but a minute then. As a matter of fact I wanted to ask you something—about that ring Ben Ryder says he won from you at a poker game about a month ago."

"I never heard of Ben Ryder—and I don't play poker."

For a moment Peter felt as if the ground had tilted under his feet, leaving him sick and reeling. Ryder or Lammie—or both of them—had lied. The words pounded in his brain as if he had spoken them aloud. Then his eyes lifted to Fitzgerald's face—and for the second time in two minutes amazement smote him with the violence of a physical blow. There was no mistaking the look of guilt and fear in Fitzgerald's eyes. In this insane merry-go-round, he had not for an instant supposed that Fitzgerald, at most, was more than a link in the chain. He was a well known criminal lawyer; it was stark impossibility that he had anything to do with Morrison's murder. And yet—criminal lawyers, of course, had strange associates. Might the case be tied up in some way, with one of Fitzgerald's clients?

His eyes were still fixed in amazement on the face of the man in the bed, when he saw the lawyer turn his head with a significant gesture towards the chair where his wife sat. His right eye lid drooped warningly.

"The boys were just trying to kid me—I suspected it from the first," Peter said with a show of indignation. "I'll get even with them yet! However, while I'm here, I wonder if I couldn't talk to you a little about that Bates will contest. He got a tip on it, might be useful to you."

"I'd be glad to," Fitzgerald responded eagerly.

"It's rather confidential—" Peter cast a tentative glance in the direction of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who gave no sign of having heard.

"I'm sure you've made a martyr of yourself long enough this beautiful afternoon. If you run along now, you can still get to your party before it's all over," Fitzgerald said ingratiatingly.

"I'm sure you ought not to talk business at all—"

"Now look here, Miriam, you'd better humor me and do it quick. I have the doctor say it myself, and if you don't obey his orders, I'm going to run a temperature and have a relapse as sure as God has a little apple pie."

When Mrs. Fitzgerald heard that tone in her husband's voice, she knew that the time had come to retreat in good order.

"Well, if it makes you worse, don't say I didn't warn you!" she protested, and with a haughty half-smile to Peter, made a disgruntled exit from the room.

Fitzgerald mopped as much of his brow as was visible beneath the swathing of bandages.

"Think," Captain Flagg, quick thinker," he quoted with an exaggerated sigh of relief. "My wife," he added, "considers poker the sport of kings. She also disapproves of the low-brow company I keep when I consort with gentlemen of the press. She's a great one for upholding the dignity of the legal profession—so I let her do it."

(Continued Tomorrow.)

(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution.)

holding the place with her thumb instead of laying it aside. She surveyed Peter with disapproving eyes. She was of the opinion that all newspaper reporters were little better than tramps and she considered that her husband made a great mistake in treating them as equals, even if, as he had explained, he did have to depend on the papers for favorable publicity.

"Oh, crime's at a low ebb—with a distinguished member of the bar missing from the halls of justice," Peter grinned.

There was no answering smile on Mrs. Fitzgerald's face. She considered Peter's remark an insult from an inferior and glanced at her husband, hoping that he would snub this impudent young man. But Fitzgerald was beaming at Peter, motioning him to a seat on the foot of the bed.

"My husband needs to be kept very quiet. I don't know how the management came to let him be disturbed," she said freezingly.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Peter was instantly contrite. "I won't be but a minute then. As a matter of fact I wanted to ask you something—about that ring Ben Ryder says he won from you at a poker game about a month ago."

"I never heard of Ben Ryder—and I don't play poker."

For a moment Peter felt as if the ground had tilted under his feet, leaving him sick and reeling. Ryder or Lammie—or both of them—had lied. The words pounded in his brain as if he had spoken them aloud. Then his eyes lifted to Fitzgerald's face—and for the second time in two minutes amazement smote him with the violence of a physical blow. There was no mistaking the look of guilt and fear in Fitzgerald's eyes. In this insane merry-go-round, he had not for an instant supposed that Fitzgerald, at most, was more than a link in the chain. He was a well known criminal lawyer; it was stark impossibility that he had anything to do with Morrison's murder. And yet—criminal lawyers, of course, had strange associates. Might the case be tied up in some way, with one of Fitzgerald's clients?

His eyes were still fixed in amazement on the face of the man in the bed, when he saw the lawyer turn his head with a significant gesture towards the chair where his wife sat. His right eye lid drooped warningly.

"The boys were just trying to kid me—I suspected it from the first," Peter said with a show of indignation. "I'll get even with them yet! However, while I'm here, I wonder if I couldn't talk to you a little about that Bates will contest. He got a tip on it, might be useful to you."

"I'd be glad to," Fitzgerald responded eagerly.

"It's rather confidential—" Peter cast a tentative glance in the direction of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who gave no sign of having heard.

"I'm sure you've made a martyr of yourself long enough this beautiful afternoon. If you run along now, you can still get to your party before it's all over," Fitzgerald said ingratiatingly.

"I'm sure you ought not to talk business at all—"

"Now look here, Miriam, you'd better humor me and do it quick. I have the doctor say it myself, and if you don't obey his orders, I'm going to run a temperature and have a relapse as sure as God has a little apple pie."

When Mrs. Fitzgerald heard that tone in her husband's voice, she knew that the time had come to retreat in good order.

"Well, if it makes you worse, don't say I didn't warn you!" she protested, and with a haughty half-smile to Peter, made a disgruntled exit from the room.

Fitzgerald mopped as much of his brow as was visible beneath the swathing of bandages.

"Think," Captain Flagg, quick thinker," he quoted with an exaggerated sigh of relief. "My wife," he added, "considers poker the sport of kings. She also disapproves of the low-brow company I keep when I consort with gentlemen of the press. She's a great one for upholding the dignity of the legal profession—so I let her do it."

(Continued Tomorrow.)

(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution.)

holding the place with her thumb instead of laying it aside. She surveyed Peter with disapproving eyes. She was of the opinion that all newspaper reporters were little better than tramps and she considered that her husband made a great mistake in treating them as equals, even if, as he had explained, he did have to depend on the papers for favorable publicity.

"Oh, crime's at a low ebb—with a distinguished member of the bar missing from the halls of justice," Peter grinned.

There was no answering smile on Mrs. Fitzgerald's face. She considered Peter's remark an insult from an inferior and glanced at her husband, hoping that he would snub this impudent young man. But Fitzgerald was beaming at Peter, motioning him to a seat on the foot of the bed.

"My husband needs to be kept very quiet. I don't know how the management came to let him be disturbed," she said freezingly.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Peter was instantly contrite. "I won't be but a minute then. As a matter of fact I wanted to ask you something—about that ring Ben Ryder says he won from you at a poker game about a month ago."

"I never heard of Ben Ryder—and I don't play poker."

For a moment Peter felt as if the ground had tilted under his feet, leaving him sick and reeling. Ryder or Lammie—or both of them—had lied. The words pounded in his brain as if he had spoken them aloud. Then his eyes lifted to Fitzgerald's face—and for the second time in two minutes amazement smote him with the violence of a physical blow. There was no mistaking the look of guilt and fear in Fitzgerald's eyes. In this insane merry-go-round, he had not for an instant supposed that Fitzgerald, at most, was more than a link in the chain. He was a well known criminal lawyer; it was stark impossibility that he had anything to do with Morrison's murder. And yet—criminal lawyers, of course, had strange associates. Might the case be tied up in some way, with one of Fitzgerald's clients?

His eyes were still fixed in amazement on the face of the man in the bed, when he saw the lawyer turn his head with a significant gesture towards the chair where his wife sat. His right eye lid drooped warningly.

"The boys were just trying to kid me—I suspected it from the first," Peter said with a show of indignation. "I'll get even with them yet! However, while I'm here, I wonder if I couldn't talk to you a little about that Bates will contest. He got a tip on it, might be useful to you."

"I'd be glad to," Fitzgerald responded eagerly.

"It's rather confidential—" Peter cast a tentative glance in the direction of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who gave no sign of having heard.

"I'm sure you've made a martyr of yourself long enough this beautiful afternoon. If you run along now, you can still get to your party before it's all over," Fitzgerald said ingratiatingly.

"I'm sure you ought not to talk business at all—"

"Now look here, Miriam, you'd better humor me and do it quick. I have the doctor say it myself, and if you don't obey his orders, I'm going to run a temperature and have a relapse as sure as God has a little apple pie."

When Mrs. Fitzgerald heard that tone in her husband's voice, she knew that the time had come to retreat in good order.

"Well, if it makes you worse, don't say I didn't warn you!" she protested, and with a haughty half-smile to Peter, made a disgruntled exit from the room.

Fitzgerald mopped as much of his brow as was visible beneath the swathing of bandages.

"Think," Captain Flagg, quick thinker," he quoted with an exaggerated sigh of relief. "My wife," he added, "considers poker the sport of kings. She also disapproves of the low-brow company I keep when I consort with gentlemen of the press. She's a great one for upholding the dignity of the legal profession—so I let her do it."

(Continued Tomorrow.)

(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution.)

holding the place with her thumb instead of laying it aside. She surveyed Peter with disapproving eyes. She was of the opinion that all newspaper reporters were little better than tramps and she considered that her husband made a great mistake in treating them as equals, even if, as he had explained, he did have to depend on the papers for favorable publicity.

"Oh, crime's at a low ebb—with a distinguished member of the bar missing from the halls of justice," Peter grinned.

There was no answering smile on Mrs. Fitzgerald's face. She considered Peter's remark an insult from an inferior and glanced at her husband, hoping that he would snub this impudent young man. But Fitzgerald was beaming at Peter, motioning him to a seat on the foot of the bed.

"My husband needs to be kept very quiet. I don't know how the management came to let him be disturbed," she said freezingly.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Peter was instantly contrite. "I won't be but a minute then. As a matter of fact I wanted to ask you something—about that ring Ben Ryder says he won from you at a poker game about a month ago."

"I never heard of Ben Ryder—and I don't play poker."

For a moment Peter felt as if the ground had tilted under his feet, leaving him sick and reeling. Ryder or Lammie—or both of them—had lied. The words pounded in his brain as if he had spoken them aloud. Then his eyes lifted to Fitzgerald's face—and for the second time in two minutes amazement smote him with the violence of a physical blow. There was no mistaking the look of guilt and fear in Fitzgerald's eyes. In this insane merry-go-round, he had not for an instant supposed that Fitzgerald, at most, was more than a link in the chain. He was a well known criminal lawyer; it was stark impossibility that he had anything to do with Morrison's murder. And yet—criminal lawyers, of course, had strange associates. Might the case be tied up in some way, with one of Fitzgerald's clients?

His eyes were still fixed in amazement on the face of the man in the bed, when he saw the lawyer turn his head with a significant gesture towards the chair where his wife sat. His right eye lid drooped warningly.

"The boys were just trying to kid me—I suspected it from the first," Peter said with a show of indignation. "I'll get even with them yet! However, while I'm here, I wonder if I couldn't talk to you a little about that Bates will contest. He got a tip on it, might be useful to you."

"I'd be glad to," Fitzgerald responded eagerly.

"It's rather confidential—" Peter cast a tentative glance in the direction of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who gave no sign of having heard.

"I'm sure you've made a martyr of yourself long enough this beautiful afternoon. If you run along now, you can still get to your party before it's all over," Fitzgerald said ingratiatingly.

"I'm sure you ought not to talk business at all—"

"Now look here, Miriam, you'd better humor me and do it quick. I have the doctor say it myself, and if you don't obey his orders, I'm going to run a temperature and have a relapse as sure as God has a little apple pie."

When Mrs. Fitzgerald heard that tone in her husband's voice, she knew that the time had come to retreat in good order.

"Well, if it makes you worse, don't say I didn't warn you!" she protested, and with a haughty half-smile to Peter, made a disgruntled exit from the room.

Fitzgerald mopped as much of his brow as was visible beneath the swathing of bandages.

"Think," Captain Flagg, quick thinker," he quoted with an exaggerated sigh of relief. "My wife," he added, "considers poker the sport of kings. She also disapproves of the low-brow company I keep when I consort with gentlemen of the press. She's a great one for upholding the dignity of the legal profession—so I let her do it."

(Continued Tomorrow.)

(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution.)

holding the place with her thumb instead of laying it aside. She surveyed Peter with disapproving eyes. She was of the opinion that all newspaper reporters were little better than tramps and she considered that her husband made a great mistake in treating them as equals, even if, as he had explained, he did have to depend on the papers for favorable publicity.

"Oh, crime's at a low ebb—with a distinguished member of the bar missing from the halls of justice," Peter grinned.

There was no answering smile on Mrs. Fitzgerald's face. She considered Peter's remark an insult from an inferior and glanced at her husband, hoping that he would snub this impudent young man. But Fitzgerald was beaming at Peter, motioning him to a seat on the foot of the bed.

"My husband needs to be kept very quiet. I don't know how the management came to let him be disturbed," she said freezingly.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Peter was instantly contrite. "I won't be but a minute then. As a matter of fact I wanted to ask you something—about that ring Ben Ryder says he won from you at a poker game about a month ago."

"I never heard of Ben Ryder—and I don't play poker."

For a moment Peter felt as if the ground had tilted under his feet, leaving him sick and reeling. Ryder or Lammie—or both of them—had lied. The words pounded in his brain as if he had spoken them aloud. Then his eyes lifted to Fitzgerald's face—and for the second time in two minutes amazement smote him with the violence of a physical blow. There was no mistaking the look of guilt and fear in Fitzgerald's eyes. In this insane merry-go-round, he had not for an instant supposed that Fitzgerald, at most, was more than a link in the chain. He was a well known criminal lawyer; it was stark impossibility that he had anything to do with Morrison's murder. And yet—criminal lawyers, of course, had strange associates. Might the case be tied up in some way, with one of Fitzgerald's clients?

His eyes were still fixed in amazement on the face of the man in the bed, when he saw the lawyer turn his head with a significant gesture towards the chair where his wife sat. His right eye lid drooped warningly.

"The boys were just trying to kid me—I suspected it from the first," Peter said with a show of indignation. "I'll get even with them yet! However, while I'm here, I wonder if I couldn't talk to you a little about that Bates will contest. He got a tip on it, might be useful to you."

"I'd be glad to," Fitzgerald responded eagerly.

"It's rather confidential—" Peter cast a tentative glance in the direction of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who gave no sign of having heard.

"I'm sure you've made a martyr of yourself long enough this beautiful afternoon. If you run along now, you can still get to your party before it's all over," Fitzgerald said ingratiatingly.

"I'm sure you ought not to talk business at all—"

"Now look here, Miriam, you'd better humor me and do it quick. I have the doctor say it myself, and if you don't obey his orders, I'm going to run a temperature and have a relapse as sure as God has a little apple pie."

When Mrs. Fitzgerald heard that tone in her husband's voice, she knew that the time had come to retreat in good order.

"Well, if it makes you worse, don't say I didn't warn you!" she protested, and with a haughty half-smile to Peter, made a disgruntled exit from the room.

Fitzgerald mopped as much of his brow as was visible beneath the swathing of bandages.

"Think," Captain Flagg, quick thinker," he quoted with an exaggerated sigh of relief. "My wife," he added, "considers poker the sport of kings. She also disapproves of the low-brow company I keep when I consort with gentlemen of the press. She's a great one for upholding the dignity of the legal profession—so I let her do it."

(Continued Tomorrow.)

(Copyright, 1931, by The Constitution.)

holding the place with her thumb instead of laying it aside. She surveyed Peter with disapproving eyes. She was of the opinion that all newspaper reporters were little better than tramps and she considered that her husband made a great mistake in treating them as equals, even if, as he had explained, he did have to depend on the papers for favorable publicity.

"Oh, crime's at a low ebb—with a distinguished member of the bar missing from the halls of justice," Peter grinned.

There was no answering smile on Mrs. Fitzgerald's face. She considered Peter's remark an insult from an inferior and glanced at her husband, hoping that he would snub this impudent young man. But Fitzgerald was beaming at Peter, motioning him to a seat on the foot of the bed.

"My husband needs to be kept very quiet. I don't know how the management came to let him be disturbed," she said freezingly.

"Oh, I'm sorry," Peter was instantly contrite. "I won't be but a minute then. As a matter of fact I wanted to ask you something—about that ring Ben Ryder says he won from you at a poker game about a month ago."

"I never heard of Ben Ryder—and I don't play poker."

For a moment Peter felt as if the ground had tilted under his feet, leaving him sick and reeling. Ryder or Lammie—or both of them—had lied. The words pounded in his brain as if he had spoken them aloud. Then his eyes lifted to Fitzgerald's face—and for the second time in two minutes amazement smote him with the violence of a physical blow. There was no mistaking the look of guilt and fear in Fitzgerald's eyes. In this insane merry-go-round, he had not for an instant supposed that Fitzgerald, at most, was more than a link in the chain. He was a well known criminal lawyer; it was stark impossibility that he had anything to do with Morrison's murder. And yet—criminal lawyers, of course, had strange associates. Might the case be tied up in some way, with one of Fitzgerald's clients?

His eyes were still fixed in amazement on the face of the man in the bed, when he saw the lawyer turn his head with a significant gesture towards the chair where his wife sat. His right eye lid drooped warningly.

"The boys were just trying to kid me—I suspected it from the first," Peter said with a show of indignation. "I'll get even with them yet! However, while I'm here, I wonder if I couldn't talk to you a little about that Bates will contest. He got a tip on it, might be useful to you."

"I'd be glad to," Fitzgerald responded eagerly.

"It's rather confidential—" Peter cast a tentative glance in the direction of Mrs. Fitzgerald, who gave no sign of having heard.

"I'm sure you've made a martyr of yourself long enough this beautiful afternoon. If you run along now, you can still get to your party before it's all over," Fitzgerald said ingratiatingly.

"I'm sure you ought not to talk business at all—"

"Now look here, Miriam, you'd better humor me and do it quick. I have the doctor say it myself, and if you don't obey his orders, I'm going to run a temperature and have a relapse as sure as God has a little apple pie."

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

To Exchange—Real Estate 88

CORNER lot, 74x92—R. R. front, near in, with 2 negro houses, NO LOAN. Trade for residence in good section Northside or West End, around $10,000.00, and pay some difference in cash. Address T-31, Constitution.

Wanted—Real Estate 89

WANTED.

HOMES, business or residential lots, acreages of all kinds and stores near Atlanta. Can assist on any loan Call at left office, magazine floor, Healey Bldg. W.A. 6869.

WANTED—For sale houses any section of city; also farm lands or business property. Write 504 Forsyth Bldg. W.A. 9550.

CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Automotive

I am fishing for. I'll hold onto the one and see if it, too, will vanish. I wonder if Blacky over there knows what became of them."

no figures at all being given for the

'30 BUICK Sport Coupe...	$1,095
'30 BUICK Sport Phaeton.	1,150
'29 BUICK Sport Coupe...	685
'28 CHRYSLER 70 Coupe...	775
'28 CHRYSLER 72 Spt. Rd.	495
'28 PACKARD Club Sedan.	995
'28 PACKARD 5 Sedan....	885
'28 PACKARD 6 Sedan....	895
'29 CHEVROLET Spt. Cpe.	395
'29 NASH Adv. 5 Sedan....	675
'29 GRAHAM-PAIGE Sed...	595

TERMS	TRADES
-------	--------

MARTIN CADILLAC CO.

486 W. PEACHTREE J.A. 0900

Used Car Dept.

OPEN EVENINGS

509 fermenters caught in the northern district. As for the stills and distilleries, however, the middle district led with 486 gallons of spirits seized. The northern produced 540 and the southern 750 gallons.

Georgia and the five other states of Florida, Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas comprising the prohibition zone will be allotted 40 new federal enforcement agents. Out of the 500 additional officers removed by the house committee in the bill, Director Woodcock made known.

The 40 additional agents will bring the enforcement force of the zone to a total of 220, the being present 170 agents and 15 investigators assigned to the territory, which are general headquarters at New Orleans.

STARTS SATURDAY

WALKERS

NASH

NASH

A New Deal for Today's Dollar

'28 Buick Std. Coach$385
'28 Chrysler "62" Coupe, rumble seat340
'27 Nash Adv. Sedan175
'29 Pontiac Coupe, second series335
'29 Nash Std. "6" Sedan495
'29 Auburn 8-90 Sport Sedan775

Several Others at Very Close Price in Our New Building

COURTLAND AND PINE

RAQUEL

—THEY'RE TOGETHER AGAIN!

In the Kind of Role That Made Them Famous

JANET GAYNOR
CHARLES FARRELL

IN FOX'S
 THE MAN WHO KNEW WOMEN

STREETS
KNOWLEDGE NASH CO

Good Used Cars
With a Written Guarantee
270
Peachtree Street
BUICKS-FORDS

Came Back
Smashing

FANCHON and MARCO'S
"IDEA in BLUE"
 Offering
 A REAL TREAT OF TRUE-BLUE
 ENTERTAINMENT
 WITH MEL RUICK AND HIS BOYS
 ENRICO LEIDE-OVERTURE
 AL EVANS-ORGANOLOGUE
 M-G-M'S "BOY FRIEND" Comedy
 AND OTHER FEATURES

LAST 3 DAYS

CHEVROLETS

*31 Buick 8 Sedan. Your chance to save money on almost any car.
*30 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	$1,075
*30 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	995
*30 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	995
*30 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	995
*30 Marquette 4-D. 2-D. Sedan.....	995
*29 Buick Std. Coupe.....	975
*29 Buick Std. Coupe.....	975
*29 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	635
*29 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	635
*29 Buick Std. Brougham.....	495
*29 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	495
*29 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	375
*29 Buick Std. Sedan.....	295
*29 Buick Std. Sedan.....	295
*29 Buick Spt. Coupe.....	295
*29 Buick Spt. Coupe.....	295
*29 Buick Std. Coach.....	233
*29 Buick Std. Coach.....	195
*29 Buick Mtr. Sedan.....	175
*29 Buick 4-D. Std. Sedan.....	175
*29 Essex Super 6 Coach.....	395
*29 Ford Roadster.....	245
*29 Ford Roadster.....	245
*28 Chevrolet Spt. Coupe.....	245

Joan CRAWFORD

...MUMS "PAID"
 ...SENSE DRAMA
 ...nson & Marco's "Cadets" Idea
 ...And
 ...

Pictures at Show at 10, 4, 7, 10 3:15, 6:15, 9:15

THIRD JANUARY FESTIVAL HIT
 OPEN
 12:45
 CHILDREN
 LOG
 ANYTIME
 PEACHTREE & PONCE DE LEON

LAST
 BIG DAY for 3 Days
 Norma
 Talmadge

More Than 60 for You to Select From OPEN AT NIGHT

Easy Terms We Trade
SYDNEY C.
JOHNSON
270 Peachtree St. WA. 7314
Cash Paid for Good Used Cars

—in—
"Du Barry
W. c

25c
11 to 1

woman or Passion"

—with—
Conrad Nagel

"Ace of Spades" Talker

Starts
THURSDAY!
AL JOLSON
in "Big Boy"

Paramount
THEATRE

ain, Look These Over

-1928 Whippet Cab.	$175
-1925 Buick 4-Pass. Coupe ..	75
-1928 Oldsmobile Sedan ..	75
-Hurtz Panel Truck, good tires, first-class con- dition	75
Cars and Sedans, $25 to $100
Ed Motor Co.
DEPARTMENT of Piedmont
1417	TRADES
..	..

251
500 SEATS

ANYTIME

DIPLOMAT

STARTS TOMORROW

A Peep into the Romances of Mi-lady's Boudoir!

The Life and Loves of a Master Lover!

WHAT AR

with
B. H. G.

Betty Compson
Ian Keith
Mary Duncan
Jeanette Loff
Lawrance Grant

TRUDY A GREAT PICTURE!

TIMES TODAY!
HERS

ROTHY SEBASTIAN

RUTHY SEBASTIAN MORRIS
Ran 2 Solid Seasons in York

TRACKLESS TRAIN WILL ARRIVE TODAY

Novel Attraction Will Visit
All Majestic
Dealers.

Majestic's trackless train is scheduled to arrive in Atlanta today to be the guest of the Capital Electric Company, distributor in Atlanta for Majestic radio receivers and refrigerators.

During the day the train will visit all of the Majestic dealers and at night will be on exhibit at the Fox theater. During the visit to the various dealers a party of girls in the stage presentation at the Fox will be on board.

The train was first shown to tremendous gatherings at Atlantic City during the radio convention and is now on a tour through the United States and Canada. It is manned by a crew of five men and includes locomotive and parlor car. The locomotive, which furnishes the power unit, is a duplicate of the modern passenger locomotive. It has pilot, boiler, steam domes, smoke stack, bell, whistle, tender, cab for the accommodation of engineer and assistant, automatic signal device and lights. The parlor car represents an outlay of $50,000.

The latest radio and sound developments have been incorporated in making it possible to broadcast, receive and reproduce music with a volume equivalent to a 35-piece band. Public address messages may be made direct from the car. Besides the broadcasting studio, the parlor car consists of the baggage compartment, amplification electrical room, visitors' reception room and beautiful observation platform.

LONGWORTH, GARNER TO DEBATE ON 'OUR CAR'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(P)—And now Speaker Longworth and Democratic Leader Garner are going to discuss "our car" over the radio. The debate, centering around the automobile, will take place Saturday night at 8 o'clock on the National Press Club.

For years Longworth and Garner, close personal friends, have joshed each other about the automobile which would go to the democratic leader if his party gained house control. It is a standing joke at the capitol.

The debate will be carried by the National Broadcasting Company. Eugene S. Leggett, Washington correspondent of the Detroit Free Press, will become president of the club.

—it may be your Radio Tubes
—your dealer will TEST THEM

When you think of Foot Correction
Think of
Dr. PARKER'S HEALTH SHOES

116 ARCADE JACKSON 4697

5% ON SAVINGS
Quaker
Savings Ass'n

COAL
Furnace Egg $6.25
Best Ky. Egg $6.75
Best Ky. Block $7.25
Half Tons $3.50 and $3.75
BOX OF KINDLING FREE

Notice.
To J. G. Grawlin, Inc., defendant:
You are hereby commanded to be and appear at the next term of the municipal court of Atlanta, to be held on the first Monday in February, 1931, and make your answer in the case of A. E. Hood, trading as A. E. Hood & Co., against yourself, same being case No. 32240, as required by the order of the court, signed by the Honorable L. Z. Rosser, Chief Justice of the Municipal Court of Atlanta, Georgia, this 2nd day of January, 1931.

Bankrupt Sale.
Pursuant to order heretofore passed by the Honorable Harry Dodd, Referee in bankruptcy, the following real estate, to-wit: the premises situated in the city of Atlanta, Georgia, and known as the premises of J. S. Smolen (operating as Smolen's Men's Bankrupt) will be offered for sale to the highest bidder for cash on the 10th day of January, 1931, at 11 o'clock A. M. in the office of the Referee, 325 Grant Building, said sale to be subject to confirmation by the court and to be conducted by the Trustee after his election. Stock of J. S. Smolen, as of January 1, 1931, $158,000; accounts receivable approximately $300.00.

Red Ash Jellico Lump $7.25
Red Ash Jellico Nut 6.75
Furnace Lump 6.75
Furnace Nut 6.25
Republic Coke 7.75

ATLANTA COAL CO.
Walnut 6521 We Deliver to East Point, College Park, Hapeville, Buckhead and Decatur.

FOR SALE
Flat newspaper paper suitable for small publishers and job printers. The price is right.

P. O. Box 1731, Atlanta, Ga.

Today's LOCALS

336.9 WGST 890
Meters Kilocycles
Studios Ansley Hotel

405.2 WSB 740
Meters Kilocycles
Studios Biltmore Hotel

1:45 A. M.—Old Dutch Church, CBS.
2:00—Something for Everyone, CBS.
2:15—Home Efficiency, CBS.
2:30—Morning Moods, CBS.
3:00—Sue and Jack.
3:15—Salon Orchestra, CBS.
3:30—Home Efficiency, CBS.
3:45—Stroll on the Avenue, CBS.
4:00—Five Minute Music, CBS.
4:15—Ben and Helen, CBS.
4:30—P. M.—Little Symphony, CBS.
4:45—School of the Air, CBS.
5:00—Salon Orchestra, CBS.
5:15—Synagogue Silhouette, CBS.
5:30—Musical Album, CBS.
5:45—Ashbury Park Casino Orchestra, CBS.
6:00—Foster's, Evangeline Adams, CBS.
6:15—The Vagabonds, CBS.
6:30—Literary Digest, CBS.
6:45—Atlanta Women's Club.
7:00—Toscha Seidel and Orchestra, CBS.
7:15—Musical Album, CBS.
7:30—Alice Denon Jeannette.
7:45—Anselm Hallett.
8:00—Doctor by Compulsion, CBS.
8:15—Columbia Concert Corp., CBS.
8:30—Atlanta Women's Club.
8:45—The Atlanta Constitution's News Review.
9:00—Musical Aviators, CBS.

Johnny Johnson, musical baritone announcer, who joined the staff of WGST last week, is going over in a big way with listeners. Johnny has been making records for the Brunswick Recording Company for the last three years, and likewise has appeared in vaudeville on R-K-O and other circuits. Previous to his affiliation with WGST Johnny was associated with the Columbia Broadcasting System, and is well known on the air for his harmony and radio capers.

Bobby Jones' series of broadcasts, eagerly awaited by millions of golfers and other admirers of the greatest champion the ancient game has ever produced, will be inaugurated tonight over the red network of the NBC through WSB. Bobby will be heard every succeeding Wednesday evening from 7 to 7:15 for 26 weeks. Bill Mundy will be the announcer.

Toscha Seidel, world-famous violinist, will present another of his recitals with concert orchestra, in which will be included Pugnani's "Praeludium and Allegro," arranged by Kreisler, for the audiences of the Columbia chain over WGST from 7:30 to 8 o'clock.

Ruth St. Dennis, creative dancer, will be interviewed during the Coca-Cola program over an NBC-WEAF network tonight at 9:30 o'clock. Miss St. Dennis, ranked as one of the outstanding interpretative dancers of her generation, together with her husband, Ted Shaw, and the Danish-born group, has carried the art to an enviable success. A musical program will be played during this period by Leonard Joy and his all-star dance orchestra.

The "Swiss Echo Song," which calls for extremely skillful interpretation, is one of the most beautiful compositions in the repertoire of Oliver Palmer, well known soprano of the Palmolive program. Miss Palmer will sing the selection during the broadcast tonight at 8:30 o'clock over WGST from an national NBC network, including WSB. A charming duet of "Two Hearts Swinging in Waltz Time," from the German motion picture opera of the same name, will be sung by Paul Oliver.

When you think of
Foot Correction
Think of
Dr. PARKER'S HEALTH SHOES

116 ARCADE JACKSON 4697

5% ON SAVINGS
Quaker
Savings Ass'n

COAL
Furnace Egg $6.25
Best Ky. Egg $6.75
Best Ky. Block $7.25
Half Tons $3.50 and $3.75
BOX OF KINDLING FREE

Notice.
To J. G. Grawlin, Inc., defendant:
You are hereby commanded to be and appear at the next term of the municipal court of Atlanta, to be held on the first Monday in February, 1931, and make your answer in the case of A. E. Hood, trading as A. E. Hood & Co., against yourself, same being case No. 32240, as required by the order of the court, signed by the Honorable L. Z. Rosser, Chief Justice of the Municipal Court of Atlanta, Georgia, this 2nd day of January, 1931.

Bankrupt Sale.
Pursuant to order heretofore passed by the Honorable Harry Dodd, Referee in bankruptcy, the following real estate, to-wit: the premises situated in the city of Atlanta, Georgia, and known as the premises of J. S. Smolen (operating as Smolen's Men's Bankrupt) will be offered for sale to the highest bidder for cash on the 10th day of January, 1931, at 11 o'clock A. M. in the office of the Referee, 325 Grant Building, said sale to be subject to confirmation by the court and to be conducted by the Trustee after his election. Stock of J. S. Smolen, as of January 1, 1931, $158,000; accounts receivable approximately $300.00.

Red Ash Jellico Lump $7.25
Red Ash Jellico Nut 6.75
Furnace Lump 6.75
Furnace Nut 6.25
Republic Coke 7.75

ATLANTA COAL CO.
Walnut 6521 We Deliver to East Point, College Park, Hapeville, Buckhead and Decatur.

FOR SALE
Flat newspaper paper suitable for small publishers and job printers. The price is right.

P. O. Box 1731, Atlanta, Ga.

Over National Networks

(By The Associated Press)
Programs in Central Standard Time. P. M. unless otherwise indicated.
454.3—WEAF New York—660 (NBC Chain)
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Science Talk—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Back of the News—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
12:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
1:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
2:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
3:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
4:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
5:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
6:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
7:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
8:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
9:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:00—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:15—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:30—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
10:45—Rodeo—Also KPO KGO KFI
11: